Front in France.

Today's War News Given in Summary

Fear that the main body of the Serbian army has been cut off between Kraljevo, on the western Morava, and Nish, is expressed in dispatches from a correspondent in the Balkan war theater, received in Italy. The correspondent says it is considered significant that no word has been received from the retreating Serbian army for five days.

Although not more than 5,000 Serbians are opposing 15,000 Bulgarians in the Babuna defile in southern Serbia, it is believed by military men in Saloniki that the Bulgarians will be forced to withdraw in time.

Comparatively inactivity on the front in Russia is indicated by today's German official statement which passes over the northern and central army groups without recording any operations. In the south a minor success by Gen. von Linsingen is recorded.

On the French front, Paris reports spirited exchanges by the artillery army in the vicinity of Loos near Bus in the Artois district. German batteries were silenced by the French guns.

What the loss of life was in the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona by a submarine in the Mediterranean has not been definitely determined. According to a dispatch, late last night from Tunis reports only 227 persons, passengers and crew, out of a total of 428 on board the Ancona were saved, which would make 203 to be accounted for. Consular advices to Washington have indicated that 347 were saved out of 496 said to be on board, leaving 149 unaccounted for.

Berlin has no official advices regarding the Ancona, it is declared there, and it is not believed in the German capital that the Austrian government has as yet received a report of the incident.

Milan, Nov. 12.—(Via Paris, 4:45 a. m.)—There is grave reason to fear that the main body of the Serbian army, which has been fighting the Germans and the Bulgarians' right wing, has been cut off between Kraljevo and Nish, says dispatches received here from the Secolo's correspondent.

Suffering in the interior of Serbia is said to be great owing to the lack of food and shelter. Thousands of refugees from the north have been driven out by the advance of the Austro-Germans.

HOLD BULGARS AT BAY.

Saloniki, Nov. 12.—Five thousand Serbians still are holding 15,000 Bulgarians at bay between Isvor and Abdi pass in the Babuna defile, but the Serbs now control the heights of Kosjare and occupy the whole line of mountains, making in the opinion of military men, withdrawal of the Bulgarians only a question of time. The people who left Monastir in a panic at the approach of the invaders are now returning. Priep and Monastir are resuming their normal appearance.

DENIED IN BERLIN.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—(Via Sayville).—The recently published news agency report that two British torpedo boat destroyers had captured a German submarine and its crew is a pure invention, the Overseas news agency stated today.

ARTILLERY DUEL RAGES.

Paris, Nov. 12.—2:30 p. m.—A spirited bombardment has continued in the sector of Loos, both sides taking part, according to announcement made by the French war office this afternoon. In the Artois district French artillery has silenced German batteries.

MOTHER OF MAYOR BELL DIES.

Indianapolis, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Mary J. Bell, mother of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, of this city, died at her home in College Corner, Ohio, early today, according to word received here. The mayor was by her bedside when she died. Mrs. Bell suffered a stroke of apoplexy two weeks ago and has been unconscious most of the time since then. She was 82 years old. The funeral will be held Saturday and a number of city officials from here will attend.

FURTHER LEGAL STEPS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Traction Officials Say Decision Does Not Change Strike Situation.

That attorneys representing the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, in their efforts for an injunction, following the dismissal of their case in the federal court at Indianapolis Thursday, will make another legal move, is believed to be certain. Both President J. M. Barrett and General Manager Sam W. Greenland were unprepared to say Friday, however, what future action would be taken.

"The decision of Judge Anderson does not change the strike situation whatever," declared General Manager Greenland Friday.

"We have nothing to say," said Clayton H. Johnson, in charge of the strike for the car men. "Judge Anderson said it all at Indianapolis Thursday."

Now that the case in the federal court has been disposed of, members of the conciliation committee expect to resume their efforts for a settlement of the difference at once. A meeting of the committee was scheduled for Friday afternoon.

Judge Anderson's Ruling. Holding that the United States district court is without jurisdiction, Judge Anderson yesterday afternoon dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff the action of the United States Mortgage and Guarantee company in New York against Joseph C. Colgan, and others, seeking a temporary injunction against the activities of striking employees of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company on the city lines at Fort Wayne.

The ruling of the court was on two points raised by the pleas of the defendants, first that Joseph C. Colgan is a citizen of Illinois, and, therefore, beyond the jurisdiction of the Indiana court; and second, that the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company is a necessary party to the complaint. The ruling of the court also set forth that the interest of the traction company in the suit is identical with that of the plaintiff's mortgage.

Recognition of Union Asked. Sept. 27, 1915, employees of the city car lines in Fort Wayne struck for recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees, demanding a wage and working hour agreement with the company through that union. The suit followed immediately upon the strike, making John C. Colgan, member of the executive board of the union, and about eighty-five street railway employees defendants. A later bill of complaint included the city of Fort Wayne.

The plaintiff alleged that the strikers were inducing Fort Wayne citizens to refrain from riding on the cars of the company, and to obtain their electric services from the municipal plant at Fort Wayne, instead of from the plant of the traction company, which supplies electrical current as a public service. Many allegations of activities on the part of the strikers to interfere with the movement of cars were made, and the suit asked for an injunction against them.

The effect of the ruling of the court that the traction company is a necessary party to the action, will be to align Indiana citizens on both sides of any further action that may be taken, which will throw such action into the state courts.

An issue of $7,400 bonds for stone road No. 3 in Springfield township and an issue of $4,800 for the Meyers stone road in Perry township have been sold to the Hamilton National bank by County Treasurer J. Herman Butler. On the Springfield issue a premium of $75 was paid and on the Perry issue a premium of $52 was paid. There were several other bidders. Indianapolis and other financial concerns making proposals, but that of the Hamilton bank was the only cash bid received.

WILL PROBE FIRES IN MUNITIONS PLANTS

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 12.—State Fire Marshal Baldwin today detailed men to make investigation of fires that have occurred this week in plants engaged in the manufacture of munitions or supplies for nations at war. One inspector was detailed to the Bethlehem steel works and another will go to the Edgemoor branch of the Baldwin Locomotive works, where there was a slight fire in the pattern storage house the same day the Bethlehem Steel company, No. 4, machine shop was burned. Other inspectors have been active in western and central parts of the state, where fires have occurred in powder and similar plants.

FT. WAYNE GLASS MAY WIN CONTEST AND BECOME PHOTO-PLAY ACTRESS.

MISS EMELISE SHEPARD.

Emelise Shepard operates a machine at the Bosa glove factory in this city. Pretty, blue-eyed, Auburn-haired, vivacious, she is a delight to look upon, and the girls at the machines around her for months have told her she ought to "try out for the movies."

Then one day several months ago she read a notice in the Photoplay Magazine to the effect that eleven young women who wanted to go into the movies would be given a chance in a "beauty and brains" contest conducted in conjunction with one of the large production companies of New York city.

She wrote the company and after a little correspondence sent her photograph. Friday she received word that she had passed the first judging, and was well to the front.

She was called from her work at the recess period and after a moment's hesitation consented to pose for The Sentinel camera man. She decided not to smile in her picture, but—oh, there are ways of getting around that. She smiled.

Sinking of Ancona With Baron Sonnino.

WILL HAVE BEARING

Ancona Captain Charges His
Warning.

Rome, Nov. 11.—(Via Paris, No. 12, 6:50 a. m.)—United States Ambassador Page called at the foreign office today and had a long talk with Baron Sonnino. The nature of the conference is unknown, but it is assumed the sinking of the Ancona was discussed informally. The Italian government has ordered a rigid investigation of the disaster. The inquiry is proceeding under the direction of the Italian consul at the Tunis naval office.

A special effort is being made to determine all the facts relating to international responsibility, whether warning was given and whether an opportunity was afforded the passengers to escape. It is expected here the investigation will have a bearing on any diplomatic representations the United States may make in behalf of American passengers on board the steamer.

CAPTAIN MAKES CHARGES.
Says Submarine Failed to Give Passengers a Chance.

Naples, Nov. 11.—Via Paris, Nov. 12, 1:45 a. m.—(Delayed in transmission).—The owners of the Italian liner, Ancona, sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine, have received the report of the Ancona's captain, in which he makes the positive charge that the submarine gave no warning to the liner or afforded those on board of her a chance to escape.

The first shot, the captain's report declares, was fired when the submarine was three miles distant. The captain immediately stopped the ship, he says, but this did not appear to satisfy the submarine.

LAD WILL DIE OF INJURIES

Albert Neumann is Fatally
Crushed in Elevator at Frank Store.

ACCIDENT OCCURS
SOON AFTER NOON

Injured Boy Disregarded
Warning, Says Elevator
Operator.

Albert Neumann, said to be 13 years old, employed as a door boy at the Frank dry goods establishment, on Calhoun street, is dying at St. Joseph hospital as the result of being crushed in the elevator at the store. Disregarding the warning of the elevator operator the boy made a dash for the cellar when he saw it leaving the cellar, and attempted to get aboard.

He slipped and hung across the edge of the floor as it raised against the ceiling. The machinery was stopped within a very few inches, but the boy was wedged into the small opening.

Every rib in his body was broken and the jagged ends crushed through both lungs. The air from the lungs was crushed out through the body and lifted the skin from his eyes to his hips. The boy was rushed to the St. Joseph's hospital and Dr. Alfred Kane made every effort to relieve him. It was seen from the first that there was no way of saving the youngster's life, although the attending surgeon made heroic efforts to do so.

Conscious After Mishap.

The boy was conscious for fully thirty minutes after he was hurt. Young Neumann was employed at the Frank store less than a week and on his employment there produced a city certificate stating that he was of working age. The management of the store has turned the affidavit over to the police. The boy is the son of Peter P. Neumann, a Pennsylvania machinist, residing at 2220 Oliver street.

Had Been Warned.

The young man in charge of the elevator states that he saw Neumann coming toward the elevator and shouted for him not to try to get aboard. Not realizing that the boy would disregard him he continued to rise and a moment later saw the lad's head and shoulders hanging over the front of the car. He threw on the safety appliance, but the car already had crushed the little form.

SAYS CHINESE "PULL" COST HIM HIS PLACE

Charge is Made by Old U. S.
Interpreter at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—Dr. John E. Gardner, Chinese inspector and interpreter at this port for twenty-three years, whose resignation yesterday was offered and accepted at Washington, charged today that the influence of Wong Doo King, a powerful Chinese recently deported, cost him his position. Dr. Gardner resigned rather than accept transfer to Gloucester, N. J., which, he said, was an unimportant post.

"The boast was made by Chinese a year ago that I would be demoted or transferred for my work in the 'Wong Doo King case,'" Dr. Gardner said today. "Six weeks ago a Chinese told me I could avoid demotion by lending money to the wife of an immigration official."

When Dr. Gardner's transfer was ordered a telegram asking revocation was sent to Washington, signed by heads of various departments here and by federal judges, he said.

Wong Doo King, a leader among Chinese, and said to have been the head of the Bing Kong tong, fought deportation for years. His power was said to match that of the great Chinese Six companies.

WILL MAKE EFFORT TO RELIEVE CONGESTION

For the purpose of discussing plans for co-operating with the city administration in devising some means to eliminate the congestion caused by parking automobiles in the downtown districts, a meeting of representatives of the Rotary club, Commercial club, the Allen County Automobile Owners' association and Retail Merchants' association will be held at 12:15 o'clock Saturday at the Commercial club.

One of the plans under consideration is to convert the property belonging to the city and county south of the ball park into a public garage. If this is done, the city council will be asked to pass an ordinance prohibiting cars standing in one spot on the downtown streets for a longer time than one-half hour.

WARREN IDENTIFIED AS KANSAS CONVICT

Dream Croesus a Fugitive and Has a Wife Now in Leavenworth.

Commodore Perry Hull, alias Charles Luther Warren, the check swindler now in jail here awaiting trial for his Fort Wayne operations, has been fully identified as B. J. Gifford, an escaped convict from the Kansas state prison at Lansing, in that state. Photographs, Bertillon measurements and finger prints forwarded to Chief of Police Charles Lenz by A. D. Hudspeth, recorder in the Kansas prison, have been found by Detective Sergeant Joseph P. Brennan, in charge of the Fort Wayne bureau of criminal identification, to have exact correspondence with similar evidences taken here.

Warren or Hull, as B. J. Gifford was convicted in Leavenworth on December 17, 1910, of obtaining money by false pretense. He was received at the Kansas prison January 11, 1911, was paroled November 13, the same year, later was returned to prison for violation of parole and escaped from the penitentiary February 5, last. He has a wife, Cora Gifford, residing at Fourth and Shawnee streets, in Leavenworth. A prison photograph that accompanies the records sent here, bears a striking resemblance to Warren as he now appears. The picture printed herewith presents him as he appeared at the time of his arrest in Leavenworth. He then wore a heavy drooping mustache that would hardly help him much in his romantic career as a check-killer. While in Leavenworth Warren or Gifford followed the pursuit of a barber.

The fact that Warren has a wife in Leavenworth adds bigamy to his other crimes and will serve to nullify his marriage to Miss Beulah Youse, the pretty 20-year-old daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Youse, with whom Warren was joined in matrimony Friday, October 15, at Michigan City, Ind., by Rev. O. E. Kiplinger, chaplain of the state prison there.

It is believed that Warren will plead guilty when he is arraigned in the circuit court the 22d inst. The prison authorities at Lansing, Kas., request that Warren be held for them in case he is not convicted here, as he is badly wanted by them.

The identification of Warren as a Kansas fugitive is due to the diligent work of Detective Sergeant Brennan, who thoroughly searched the local archives for a trace of him. A circular bearing the portrait printed with this article gave the first clue, having been sent out from Lansing shortly after Gifford escaped from the Kansas prison. Detective Brennan followed the clue and got confirmation Monday, a week ago. Chief Lenz forwarded the photographs, measurements and finger prints taken by Detective Brennan and the acknowledgment from Record Officer Hudspeth practically completes the identification.

STARR SPENDS DAY IN ADAMS COUNTY

Dr. Chester C. Starr, of Purdue university, who has been conducting a series of meetings in this county this week, telling the farmers how to raise hogs to realize the greatest profits and to combat the deadly disease of hog cholera, left Friday morning for Decatur. Two meetings are scheduled in Adams county. Friday evening he will be the principal speaker at a mass meeting of farmers at Berne.

Clarence Henry, county agent, will give an illustrated lecture Saturday evening at the regular meeting of the Washington Township Farmers club to be held in the new Lincoln school house. He will give another illustrated lecture at the Center school in Lafayette township on Monday evening.

LANSING TO ASK INQUIRY

Charges by Former Austrian Consul Create a Big Sensation.

ACCUSES AUSTRIAN OFFICIALS IN U. S.

Explosion and Strike Propaganda Hotly Denied by Embassy.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Published charges, attributed to Dr. Joseph Gorikar, former Austro-Hungarian consul at San Francisco, that Austrian consuls in the United States working under the direction of Consul General Von Neuber and Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, are active in propaganda for destruction of munitions factories and fomenting strikes among the workers, will be referred by the state department to the department of justice for investigation.

The Austrian embassy here denounced Gorikar's published statement as untrue in every particular and announced it would try to find some way to prosecute him for it. Gorikar, the embassy said, left his post at San Francisco on leave and failed to return.

Lansing Declines Comment.

Secretary Lansing declined to comment on the charges. The department of justice has a good deal of information on hand regarding the activities of Consul General von Neuber, which it gathered while investigating his connection with the case of Dr. Dumba, the recalled Austrian ambassador, but so far has nothing definite on the charges attributed to Dr. Gorikar.

In substance, Gorikar is accredited with making the statement that he resigned his post after fifteen years in the Austrian consular service because he declined to perform the work of a spy. He charges that while consul at San Francisco, Commander Maximilian Burslyn, the Austrian naval attaché, at Washington, ordered him to gather plans of the fortifications of San Francisco harbor and along the Pacific coast, and to get especially details of the works at Bremerton navy yard. When he refused, Gorikar is accredited with saying he was transferred to Berlin, where, after five months, he was ordered to proceed to Vienna, which he feared to do because of his pro-Slavic affiliations, so he fled to Rome, where he resigned last December.

Charge is Sweeping.

Gorikar's story contends the Austrian ambassador, working with von Neuber, is in touch with the Austrian consuls at Cleveland, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, St. Paul, Chicago, Philadelphia, who spread propaganda among the foreign workers in the munitions factories and such activity Gorikar alleges extends even to controlling the foreigners through fraternal and secret organizations. The alleged extent of the activities of the Austrian consuls and the so-called spy system are described at length in Gorikar's published statement. Gorikar's record shows he first came to this country in 1909 and was consul at Pittsburgh, Denver and finally San Francisco, where he served three years.

From the time the boy wore knickerbockers the idea of suicide seemed attractive to him, was the testimony of his mother.

GERMANS DRIVE SERB ARMY IN MOUNTAINS

Berlin, Nov. 12.—(By Wire) The Serbian army in a southerly direction continues according to the German official report issued today. The advance of the Germans in the Rastina valley southwest of Kruzevac has reached the town of Kupat. Further eastward Ribari and Ribars Kibari have been reached.

"Yesterday more than 1,700 Serbians were taken prisoner and 11 cannon were captured."

The statement adds that the first mountain ridge of Kraljevo has been crossed.

GREEK CHAMBER DISSOLVED.

Course of Country in War Hinges on Military Conditions.

London, Nov. 12.—All doubts as to what road Greece would choose out of the middle caused by the divergent views of her political leaders and as to how the policies of the Skouloudis cabinet could be rendered compatible with the opinions of the adverse majority in the chamber today were dispelled by a public dissolution of the chamber of deputies.

Publication of the decree apparently was received in Athens with calm despite the fact that all elements hoped to avoid elections at the present difficult moment. The Greek government it appears considered dissolution the only possible means of securing for itself full and unrestricted liberty of action.

Greek officials in London and at other points continue to assert that Greece's future actions depend solely upon military conditions. As soon as Greece is convinced that the allies have produced enough troops to make possible a successful offensive against Bulgaria and to remove the danger with which Greece would be confronted if she entered the war inadequately assisted, Greece will, so say her representatives in Europe immediately range herself on the side of the allies and render all the military co-operation of which she is capable. Today's military news from the Balkans makes it appear there is a distinct possibility that the Anglo-French and Serbian forces may succeed in gaining a part of the Nish railway as far as Uskup.

All accounts received here of the recent fighting in the neighborhood of Voles state that the Bulgarians are in full retreat after enormous losses and that the freshly arriving allied troops are expected to push the advantage already attained to a successful conclusion. In this case Bulgarians probably would have to abandon the Uskup-Kutunova line, and the whole southern portion of the railroad would revert to entente allied hands.

WAR MINISTER IN HIS MAIDEN SPEECH

Explains Recent Threat Before French Chamber of Deputies.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Minister of War Gallieni made his maiden speech to the chamber of deputies today in reply to an interpellation by J. B. Morin regarding his circular order threatening dismissal to all who are incompetent or who tolerate incompetency in those under them. Mr. Morin remarked that members of the cabinet had not solicited favors, although they had made recommendations. He requested Gen. Gallieni to mount the tribune and state whether members had intervened in the war ministry in a reprehensible manner.

"I am a soldier and never have occupied myself with politics," said Gen. Gallieni in complying with Mr. Morin's request. "All under whom I have served can tell you how I have understood my duty towards the country. I have taken the ministry of war only from devotion to the common cause we must all defend. This work would be condemned to failure if I could not count upon your unreserved co-operation."

"I thought it useful to stop the plague of recommendations. Our soldiers should have the conviction that only equity and law determine our decisions. Every soldier has the right to make a complaint without hindrance from any person. That is the object of my instructions. All complaints will be examined with the greatest sympathy because sympathy is an essential quality of military operation. It is necessary that every soldier should be able to make his complaint heard even at the top of the military hierarchy."

Gen. Gallieni declared that parliamentary control was there to repress abuses. Mr. Morin asked if any recommendation had been made by a member of parliament which was not for the best interests of the country as might be supposed from press comment.

The war minister responded that he was not responsible for press comment.

PREVENTS ACCIDENT BY SMASHING GATES

Breaking through the gates that had been lowered after he had driven his automobile onto the tracks, Louis Langard saved himself and the other occupants in the car from possible death at the Nickel Plate crossing on Columbia street, Thursday evening. Langard was onto the tracks before he noticed a switch engine bearing down upon him and he had but one chance and that was to keep on going. Those in the car with him were Charles Buhr, Gust Witte and V. Robbins, all of whom live in Lakeside.

Mrs. J. Evans Lippincott, of Cincinnati, arrives in the city on Friday to visit her parents, Captain and Mrs. Isaac D'Isay.

GRIEF OVER LOST DOG BREAKS BOY'S HEALTH

Indianapolis Lad is Under Doctor's Care After Pet Disappears.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 12.—Clem is a dog—a beautiful, brown-eyed collie, with a delicate, pointed face and a big, waving plume of a tail and a white and yellow coat—but until a week ago last evening he was one of the most important members of the family of H. T. Burnett, 1554 Ashland avenue.

Right now the Burnetts would give almost anything to get Clem back, for his prolonged and mysterious absence has made 5-year-old Harry Burnett ill. The little chap has worried so over the absence of his beloved playmate—that Harry hasn't any brothers or sisters and depended on the big, gentle dog too much of his amusement—that his parents are worried about him. He wanders from door to door, and from window to porch—always looking for Clem. He won't go out to play for fear that Clem will come home while he is gone and that he won't be there to welcome him. At all hours the baby voice can be heard calling, "Here, Clem; here, Clem," and the first thing he asks when he gets up in the morning is, "Has my Clem come back yet?"

Under Doctor's Care.
 The child has taken the disappointment of the dog so much to heart that it has affected his health and he is under the doctor's care. The doctor can not do much for him; what he needs most is to have "Clem" back again.

It is beginning to look as though Clem were gone for good. The Burnetts have advertised, telling in the advertisements how much it means to them to have the dog returned. Of course there are lots of other dogs—but they wouldn't be Clem. The Burnetts raised him from a puppy and little Harry can't remember the time when he didn't have Clem to play with. That is why he misses him so dreadfully now that he is gone.

Clem vanished, apparently, into thin air, a week ago last evening. He had just been given his supper and went out while the family was eating supper. That was the last seen of him. The neighborhood was searched from end to end, but Clem wasn't to be found. The theory is that some one passing in an automobile became attracted by the dog's beauty, picked him up and carried him off—for Clem would never have left home of his own accord.

Whoever it is that has Clem—will they please return him? There are plenty of other dogs, but only one Clem for little Harry Burnett.

TO SPEND $7,500,000 MORE ON GARY PLANTS

Gary, Ind., Nov. 12.—The Gary plants of the United States Steel corporation will be enlarged at a cost of more than $7,500,000 and will give employment to about 2,000 additional men. About $2,000,000 will be spent on the corporation's plants at Pittsburg and at Youngstown, O.

Announcement of those plans was made yesterday by E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors. This followed unofficial estimates that the corporation would earn at the rate of $225,000,000 annually on the basis of present steel prices, which on operations of 14,000,000 tons a year, and according to the ratio of profit per ton, would mean $28.50 a share on the common stock.

Because of the boom in the steel industry, in which plants are working at the highest rate in their history, additions have been made at South Chicago and additions to the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, an allied concern, which will employ about 2,000 more men, are being made at a cost of $4,000,000.

The Store That Does Things

FRANCHISE LEAGUE WRANGLE IS A TIE

Mrs. Stimson Loses at Huntington But Wins at Anderson.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Eva Robuck, of Wabash, an opponent of Mrs. S. C. Stimson in her clash with the executive board of the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana, was elected chairman yesterday afternoon of the Eleventh District Franchise League, taking the place of Mrs. W. B. Platt, of Huntington, who is removing to Fort Wayne, out of the district.

This was the second round in which the anti-Stimson women won. The first came at about noon, at the first session, just after the call to order by Mrs. Platt.

Dr. Amelia Keller, state president, arose and said that it was only fair to the state board that those present should hear the reasons for the request of Mrs. Stimson's resignations from the executive board. She then charged disloyalty to the suffrage cause, declaring Mrs. Stimson had been disloyal through malice and personal dislikes in opposing Mrs. L. J. Cox, of Terre Haute, for president of the State Federation of Clubs. Mrs. Lincoln Leach, of Muncie, defended Mrs. Stimson, speaking of her Christian character, but Mrs. R. E. Edwards, of Peru, declared her goodness of character was conceded, but was beside the issue. Mrs. Platt then called for a vote on a motion to sustain the state board's action, which carried 17 to 4. Not all the delegates were present when the vote was taken.

MRS. STIMSON SUPPORTED.
 Eighth District Resolution Indorses Suffrage Work.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. S. C. Stimson, of Terre Haute, was supported in a resolution adopted at the Eighth District Franchise League meeting here yesterday, the resolution declaring "that we indorse the suffrage work of Mrs. S. C. Stimson, of Terre Haute; that if the newspaper reports are true in regard to a call for her resignation from the state board we do not agree with the action of the board of directors of the Franchise League of Indiana in attempting to remove Mrs. Stimson." Other resolutions oppose double representation in the state meetings of the league and favor the election of a district chairman by the district organization instead of an election at the state meeting.

SUIT TO ESTABLISH A VANISHED WILL

Testament of Late Elizabeth G. McKinney Said to Be Stolen.

Alleging that the will made and executed by the late Elizabeth Gertrude McKinney, of Fort Wayne, was removed from the place of security where she kept it in her home, a short time following her death, William McDonald has begun suit in the superior court to have it declared, established and admitted to probate upon evidence. The defendants are Ada Fornier, Bessie, Nellie and Michael McDonald, St. Patrick's Catholic church, Catherine Jeannouin, Ronald Jeannouin and National McKinney, the testator's husband, who, with the plaintiff, are beneficiaries under the will. It is alleged that after executing the will in the presence of two competent witnesses Mrs. McKinney took the will, sealed in an envelope, to her home, where she deposited it in a tin box and the box in a trunk, locking both of them. Soon after her death persons having authority to do so viewed the will in its place of deposit. Then a day or two later when it was looked for it was missing. It is alleged that shortly after the woman's death her husband got possession of the keys to the trunk to himself. In the tin box, when the will was searched for, was the torn envelope in which it had been concealed. It is further alleged that Nathaniel McKinney had access to the trunk and box. It is set out that the decedent devised her estate to the plaintiff and defendants, making several bequests, leaving her husband, in lieu of dower, an income of $20 a month to be paid from the proceeds of a life insurance policy that became a part of her estate, and left the residue of her estate, real and personal, to William, Bessie, Nellie and Michael McDonald. Myron Johnson, 554 Kincaid avenue, was named in the will as executor. The complaint sets out what is said to have been the disposition the decedent made in her will of her estate. Phil R. Colerick is attorney for the plaintiff.

Edna Fears Blood and Bloodshed.
 Edna Blood began action in the superior court, Friday, against Allen Blood for divorce and obtained an order restraining him from in any way molesting her, because she fears he will make good his oft-repeated threats to take her life. They were married June 24, 1913, and separated October 22, 1915.

She says he has persistently treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner, cursing her and calling her names too vile to set out in a complaint, continually found fault, made a daily practice of accusing her of association with other men, many times pointed a loaded revolver at her and threatened her life, a habit he contracted early in their marriage and indulged toward her vicious practices too vile to be stated. The couple have resided on rural route No. 5 and the defendant is employed by Leonard, florists, which concern has been enjoined from paying him his wages. McAdams & Hartzell are the wife's attorneys.

Notes of the Courts.
 William Reichelderfer, administrator of the estate of John Schaffer, has begun suit in the circuit court against Isabel Chaney for possession of real estate.

In the circuit court Judge Eggeman has issued a writ of temporary injunction against the defendants in the suit of William Poinsette, et al., vs. Leonard and Stolte, trustees of Washington civil township, et al., to restrain proceedings in a drainage matter. The hearing is set for November 24.

Judgment for $137 has been given the plaintiff by the circuit court in the suit of Charles McKinzie, et al., vs. Amanda Klingenberg, et al.

These suits have been dismissed from the circuit court: Exchange Bank of Chubbuck vs. Edward Golden, et al.; the Keely Springfield Road Roller company vs. Daniel Yoder; Clarence F. Lewis vs. the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company.

A motion has been filed in the circuit court for a new trial in the case of Edwin H. Steele vs. the Chicago & Erie railroad. A jury gave the plaintiff a judgment for damages in the sum of $9,000.

Helen A. Pulley has begun suit in the superior court for divorce from George O. Pulley, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment and making unprintable charges against him. They were married in Williamsport, Ind., June 10, 1913, and separated May 18, last. F. H. Klecamp is the plaintiff's attorney.

William Poinsette, Christian Prange, Emmett V. Harris and Brown Cooper have begun suit in the circuit court against Leonard Stolte, trustee of Washington civil township, and William Hanauer and William Oswald for an injunction to restrain the completion of a ditch contract held by the two latter defendants. W. N. Ballou is attorney for the plaintiffs.

Hattie Huber has sued Toney Huber in the superior court for divorce, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment, failing to properly provide and physical brutality. They were married last January. Hans C. Meland appears for the plaintiff.

Russell Thompson and Gray Rainey, both defendants in divorce suits, have been certified to appear to answer contempt charges in the superior court Nov. 15.

The suit of the state ex rel. Thomas, prosecuting attorney, vs. Tom Borden, on the docket of the superior court for five years, has been dismissed at the plaintiff's costs.

The superior court has dismissed the suit of the Wayne Tobacco company vs. Forrest J. Hiser and the suit of Amelia Boedecker vs. Fred Boedecker.

Henry E. Branning, Jr., receiver in the suit of Balser, Ort et al., vs. the Townley Grain and Supply company, has filed his final report in the superior court and has been discharged.

The superior court has ordered the sale of property found indivisible in the suit of John and Sophie Krak vs. Wilhelmia Everett, et al. after finding the defendants owners of it, and has appointed Martin H. Luecke, commissioner to make the sale. Louis Curdes and R. L. Romy were appointed appraisers.

The last will and testament of the late James A. Graham has been filed for probate. The estate, real and personal, is left to the widow, Ella Graham, except that if there shall be means sufficient without disturbing the real estate, each of his children is to receive $1,000.

The will of the late Mary Roeger, just filed for probate, leaves her estate to her children.

LICENSED TO WED.

Frank H. Widner, farmer, 24, and Elma Klopfenstein, 24.
 Milton Hockman Spielman, engineer, 37, and Lydia Louise Marie Heine, 24.

NEW CORPORATION.

The Edgerton Brick and Tile company has filed articles of incorporation in the county recorder's office, with a capital of $50,000. It will manufacture and sell drainage tile and cement building blocks. Lee J. Hartzell, Harold H. Tracht and Kirk J. Corkery, all of Fort Wayne, are the incorporators and directors.

JUDGE QUITS, BIG SHORTAGE RUMORED

Hart, Mich., Nov. 12.—Shortages said to amount to $50,000 in money belonging to Oceana county and to heirs of estates administered in the probate court are alleged to have been discovered by a state accountant while auditing the books of Probate Judge F. W. Van Winkle, who has been on the county bench fifteen years.

Unwise investments of funds belonging to the county and to various estates, which resulted in heavy losses, are said to have caused the shortage.

Judge Van Winkle sent his resignation to Governor Ferris Wednesday, saying ill health caused the action. The resignation was accepted yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Hagner occupies a position at the white house first created by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, when she engaged Miss Hagner as "social secretary."

Prior to the time of the Roosevelt's, the social duties in connection with the white house receptions and other social affairs were handled by a clerk in the executive office, assisted by a retinue of helpers when a big social event was impending. Miss Hagner undertook this work and made a distinct success of it.

When President Wilson came to the white house, Mrs. Hagner returned as social secretary to Mrs. Ellen Wilson.

Miss Hagner keeps the distinction of never having allowed her picture to be taken. This is a snapshot taken at the Washington baseball park.

A Strong Assertion

But no stronger than the facts that back it up. Of course the saving is only a part—the rest is the clothing itself—the fine tailoring—the style—the fit—the fabric—the lasting satisfaction that men obtain from Sherman's clothes.

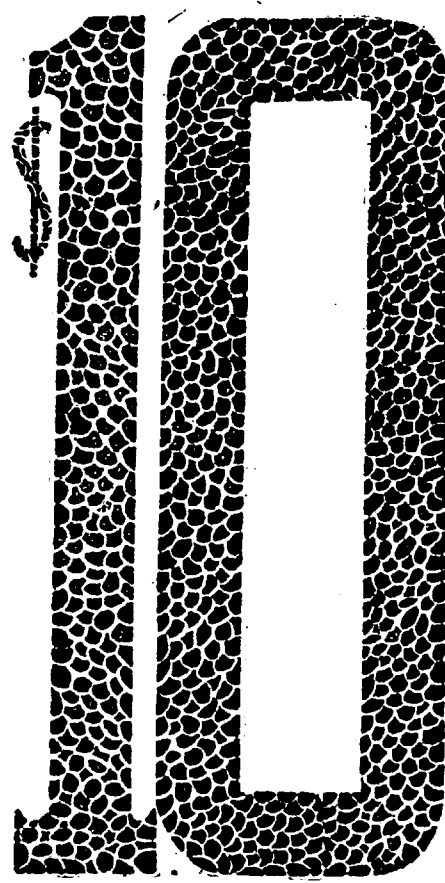

Make It a Point

To come to Sherman's and see the type of men that buy Sherman's clothes—the rich man—the poor man—all want to take that saving of $5 to $8. The rich man buys not because of the price, $10, but of true economy. Economy to them is not the price lowness, but the excellency of quality he receives for his money. The poor man buys them because he is a good judge of value and realizes his saving.

Why Such Value?

Because you buy Sherman's clothes at a factory price, $10, no more, no less, whereby you eliminate for yourself the middleman's profit of $5 to $8. We know that they are made as good in every detail as any manufacturer puts in the clothes he wholesales to the regular retail merchant for $10.00.

USE YOUR GOOD JUDGMENT—You know the merchant has to make his profit, which is $5 to $8. That is why Sherman's clothes are the equal in value as any clothing store in Fort Wayne may offer you for $15 or $18. We guarantee them such.

SAFEGUARDING THE U. S. MEAT SUPPLY

60 Per Cent. of Animals
Now Slaughtered Under Federal Inspection.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—More than 58,000,000 meat animals were slaughtered in establishments under federal inspection during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915. Since approximately from 58 to 60 per cent. of the animals killed in the country are slaughtered in establishments where federal inspection is maintained, it appears that about 100,000,000 meat animals are now being killed each year in the United States. Of the animals subjected to Federal inspection, 29,959 were condemned as unfit for human use, and 644,888 were condemned in part. Thus a little more than 1 1/2 per cent. of all the animals inspected were condemned either in whole or in part. These figures include only cattle, calves, sheep, goats and swine. Tuberculosis was the chief cause of the condemnations. More than 32,644 carcasses of cattle and 66,000 carcasses of swine were entirely rejected on account of this disease, and in addition parts of 48,000 cattle and 440,000 swine. Hog cholera was responsible for the next largest loss, nearly 102,000 swine being condemned entirely on this account.

The annual appropriation for the Federal Meat Inspection service is now about $3,375,000, so that the cost to the people would be between 5 and 6 cents per animal if the service was confined entirely to the inspection of the animals and carcasses. In addition, however, great quantities of the meat and products are re-inspected. In this item there was a very considerable increase during the last fiscal year, the reinspection resulting in the condemnation of a total of nearly 19,000,000 pounds of products of one kind or another. Furthermore, 245,000,000 pounds of imported meat or meat products were inspected and more than 2,000,000 pounds condemned or refused entry.

In the course of its work, the Bureau of Animal Industry, which is in charge of the meat inspection service, has discovered a new method of destroying trichinae in pork, which is an additional safeguard to human health. Refrigeration at a temperature of 5 degrees, F., or lower, for a period of 20 days will destroy these parasites which occasionally give rise in human beings to the serious disease known as trichinosis. Hitherto, the only known safeguard against this disease has been thorough cooking of all pork and pork products, and those persons who neglect this precaution have always been more or less exposed to the danger. Unless pork is known to have been subjected to refrigeration as above it should be thoroughly cooked. The microscopic examination of pork for the detection of trichinae has been abandoned as the usual methods have proved inefficient.

In this connection it is interesting to note that more swine were slaughtered in the past year in establishments under federal inspection than ever before. A total of 36,247,958 were inspected at the time of slaughter, and approximately 35,900,000 passed for food.

INVENTS A BUREAU TO PREVENT SUICIDE

Los Angeles Woman Has a
Plan to Assist Despondent Folk.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 12.—This city has a suicide clinic—a place where

will put the idea of making away with themselves entirely out of mind.

The suicide clinic is looked out for by the city mothers. Mrs. Aletha Gilbert, head of the city mothers' bureau, is the founder of this unique organization for the prevention of self-destruction. Daily this woman looks into the bare souls of persons so morose, so unfortunate, so despondent, that they want to take their own lives.

"And in every case," says Mrs. Gilbert, "one fact stands out clear and strong. If they had laid their troubles on a mental dissecting table before instead of brooding on them, there would have been no contemplated suicide."

"What most of them need is sympathy. Of course, many need substantial aid also, but sympathy is never amiss."

"Four persons came to me recently who had intended to kill themselves. In each instance the thought of suicide was induced by brooding.

"To confess one's troubles, even to a stranger, is to rid them of their menace. It is only by this method that one may gain courage to fight battles."

The male heart weighs from 10 to 15 ounces. Its average size is about five inches long, 3 1/2 inches wide and two inches in greatest depth.

The old boundary dispute between Michigan and Ohio, which was keener before Michigan became a state, was never settled until the last summer, when a new line of handsome granite markers were set up.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Psalm 105:16-27.

16 Moreover he called for a famine upon the land; he brake the whole staff of bread.
 17 He sent a man before them, even Joseph, who was sold for a servant;
 18 Whose feet they hurt with fetters; he was laid in iron;
 19 Until the time that his word came; the word of the Lord tried him.
 20 The king sent and loosed him; even the ruler of the people, and let him go free.
 21 He made him lord of his house, and ruler of all his substance;
 22 To bind his princes at his pleasure; and teach his senators wisdom.
 23 Israel also came into Egypt; and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.
 24 And he increased his people greatly; and made them stronger than their enemies.
 25 He turned their heart to hate his people, to deal subtly with his servants.
 26 He sent Moses his servant; and Aaron whom he had chosen.
 27 They shewed his signs among them, and wonders in the land of Ham.

The New Rap at the Primary Law.

The filing of the latest suit to test the state-wide primary law, in which attack is made on Section 10 of that much-discussed statute, will bring to a more definite decision a provision which has been violently assailed by the republican state committee. This is the contention that under the law it would be impossible for the voter to change his political affiliations and before an intervening election participate in the nomination of candidates of the party to the faith of which he has just subscribed.

Behind it, of course, is the expectation that many former progressives will wander back into the republican fold next year, and the republicans are anxious that no bugaboo of any character be allowed to bob up to frighten them off. The contention is set up that Section 10 practically disfranchises the voter who believes he has been on the wrong track politically and wants to line up with a different crowd in the primary as well as in the election. In the event his vote is challenged at the primary he would be unable to "swear it in" by an affidavit that he had voted for a majority of the candidates of the party of his new-born allegiance at the previous election, and, under the law, could vote, if he cared to do so at all, only for the candidates of the party from which he had just seceded.

The courts in a recent decision at New Albany sustained the primary law except as to the section providing for the payment of a sliding scale of fees by candidates for nomination to the various offices. That decision has already been appealed to the higher courts of the state and a finding is expected shortly. The decision on the constitutionality of the "disfranchisement" feature should very nearly completely clarify the atmosphere regarding the new statute. The provision of the state-wide law is almost identical with that which has been followed in Allen and other counties which have been using the primary method of nominating for some years, and serious question as to its legality has never been raised. The apparent blow-up of the progressive following in many parts of the state, however, invests the situation with a new importance and explains the serious attention now being given Section 10 of the law.

As a witness for the government in its prosecution of former directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, Charles S. Mellen continues to stretch a good many rather imposing financial hides upon the fence. He made it clear in his testimony that the New Haven not only organized a company for the express purpose of crushing competition, but that the proper boards were duly informed as to the facts in the case and understood precisely what they were doing. Having so long borne the burdens of attacks for the misdoings of the system of which he was formerly the head, Mr. Mellen is doubtless extracting some satisfaction in seeing the other fellows do a bit of squirming. The one thing most apparent about the whole affair is that the government was not a bit too early in uncovering New Haven's ruthless steam-roller methods of dealing with all who opposed it.

The National Voters' League, with headquarters in Washington, is out with the implied declaration that it is forced to question the sincerity of a good many of the statesmen when it contrasts their legislative performance with promises made. It appears to be plainly shocked at discrepancies developing between what actually happens in the treatment of public questions and protestations of fealty to the cause of the people and denunciation of the course of the other fellows when they were in power. For an organization which has been in close touch with the political game, the National Voters' League appears to have possessed a most amazing lot of confidence in the men who make playing it their chief end in life.

Evidence adduced in court at St. Joseph, Mich., is to the effect that in the "House of David" cult it was the custom for feminine members to draw their husbands by lot, thirteen couples having been wed after mating up in lottery fashion. Divorce court records indicate that such a system is not a great deal better than that which prevails to a considerable extent in other quarters as well.

Because her husband purchased an automobile instead of fulfilling his promise to lay his money away for her use after his death, a Shelbyville woman has filed suit for divorce. Doubtless the husband had visions of his widow whizzing about in a new auto after he had departed, and merely concluded to try a bit of the life himself.

Members of the English house of commons are indulging in some extremely bitter criticism of the course of Britannia's war leaders. Well, if you look at it from the British point of view, the thing in a good many respects seems to need a "goat," and those commoners have made up their minds that the war leaders are it.

In other words, Judge Anderson decides that the street railway trouble and the complications that have grown out of it are clearly our own little-family fuss, and that Uncle Sam has no occasion to mix in it through the medium of his courts.

WILL OPERATE JITNEYS.

Woman Says She Will Fill Every Requirement at Logansport.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 12.—"Next spring I'll fill every requirement asked for by the city and operate my jitneys just to spite those old councilmen," declared Mrs. Daisy B. Negley, owner of several jitneys, when told that the city council had passed an ordinance imposing a prohibitive license tax on these carriers which have become so numerous here this summer and out deeply into the business of the street car line. The annual fee is placed at $100 for operators with five-passenger cars, $150 for seven-passenger cars and $250 for all cars of more than seven passengers. Each jitney-driver must file a bond of $10,000 to indemnify passengers or other damages suffered by operation of the jitneys. The applicant must specify the route and the terminals and the board of works may refuse licenses to operate in streets already provided with ample transportation facilities.

"I was just getting ready to quite for winter," stated Mrs. Negley, "but you can bet I'll be on the job next spring giving the street car company a run for their money, ordinance or no ordinance."

QUININE SCARCITY IS MOST ALARMING

Price Has Gone Up from 40 Cents to $2.75 an Ounce.

Fort Wayne druggists are alarmed over the scarcity of quinine, a condition that is said to exist throughout the country. Quinine in Fort Wayne is selling for $2.75 an ounce, against forty cents an ounce eighteen months ago. The rise is said to be a speculative movement which, it is said, is one of the boldest in the drug business during a quarter of a century.

American manufacturers are receiving from abroad approximately 50 per cent. of their usual consignments of cinchona bark solely from Java, so that, on the basis of bark shipments, the price, so the retailers complain, should not be much more than twice the usual price, or fifty to seventy-five cents an ounce. Glycerine Also Up.

Coal tar derivatives used as substitutes for quinine, have also gone up, principally because the oil from which they are made is required in making explosives. This is also the situation in glycerine, which brings about sixty-six cents a pound, against twenty-one cents before the war demand. Cod liver oil is also greatly advanced.

So far, notwithstanding the advance in quinine and cod liver oil prices, there has been no advance, in general, in drug store prices.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach-becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.—Advertisement.

WIFE IS MISSING;

WHITE SLAVE TALK

Young and Pretty Mrs. Chloe Barrett
Gone Since November 2 From
Montpelier, Ohio, Home.

Montpelier, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Chloe Barrett, aged 24, the pretty brunette wife of George Barrett, has been missing from her home in this city since Tuesday, November 2, and is believed to be in hiding at some point in southern Michigan. One trail led to Fort Wayne, but early in the present week her father, Mahlon Huston, and her brother, Ed Huston, visited that city, getting no trace of her there. Michigan towns have been visited or inquired of, but no clue to the young wife's whereabouts have been gained and fears are expressed that she may be the victim of white slave procurers. The young wife and her husband had been having trouble and Mrs. Barrett told her mother the day before she disappeared that her husband had told her to leave him and that she was going to go. Her words were not taken seriously. Harold Pointer, a young man who worked on a farm near her home, at which Pointer had been a frequent caller for several weeks. The day that Mrs. Barrett left there came to the postoffice here a postal card mailed at Clayton, Mich., and bearing no message and no signature, but only the words, "From a friend." It has been learned that Mrs. Barrett went from here by rail to Alvordton, Ohio, where she bought a ticket to Hudson, Mich., where all trace of her was lost. Barrett was in Jackson, Mich., Sunday, and returned here that night, saying he had found his wife there, but he had seen her name on a hotel register and had traced her to a theater, but was not allowed to enter the playhouse and he did not wait for the performance to close because he had to leave that city at once. His story has been proved false.

BEAT UP AN AGED MAN.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12.—Charges of assault and battery with intent to kill were filed in circuit court by Prosecutor A. H. Sapp, against John Short and his son, Boyd Short, for brutally attacking Harding Fredericks, 65 years old. The quarrel arose over the disposition of some cord wood that had been cut by Fredericks and the Shorts on shares. The elder Short knocked Fredericks down and the young man leaped on him, he declared, and struck him repeatedly. While he was lying prostrate on the ground with Short kneeling on him the elder Short hit him several times on the head with a stick of heavy wood. Finally the men decided in their attacks, and Fredericks managed to get home, where his wife administered to his injuries. Mr. Fredericks was hastened to a surgeon where his wounds were dressed and then he related his story to the prosecutor.

TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD FAILS.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 12.—Sylvan E. Schwartz, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Schwartz, passed away Thursday at his parents' home southeast of the Christian Adams county line. He had been in a very serious condition for several months and an operation was performed several weeks ago in which transfusion of blood was accomplished, the lad's father giving blood from his own system in an attempt to replenish the weakened blood in his son's veins. The operation resulted in only temporary benefit. The boy's illness began after a runaway accident during the summer in which one of his hips was injured.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

Columbia City, Ind., Nov. 12.—Margaret Ann Van Orsdoll, aged 74, widow of the late Henry Van Orsdoll, who fell at her home here three weeks ago Wednesday, passed away Thursday, death resulting from the injuries she received in the fall. Mrs. Van Orsdoll was quite feeble and her sister, Mrs. Levi Bodley, had been staying with her and taking care of her. On the morning of the accident Mrs. Bodley left Mrs. Van Orsdoll sitting in a chair, with instructions that she should not try to get up, while she went to one of her neighbors to use the telephone. During the absence of Mrs. Bodley, Mrs. Van Orsdoll got up and made an attempt to cross the floor and fell.

NEW WAY DISSOLVES
SUPERFLUOUS HAIR!

A marvelous improvement over every old method of removing superfluous hairs is coming into wide use by thousands of women. For the first time it is now possible to remove superfluous hairs in a few moments, without leaving any trace, mark, tint, redness or soreness whatever or any evidence that a hair-remover has been used. This new formula is as harmless as water to the most delicate skin, has no objectionable odor and is easier to use than any previous method. Get from your drug store a bottle of the new Sulfo Solution. It is in the form of a golden, creamy liquid, poured easily from a bottle. Apply a little on the hairs anywhere, and the hairs, no matter how thick, dissolve away instantly. It leaves the skin beautiful, soft and white. Heretofore there has never been a hair-remover which would not irritate, reddens or injure even a tough skin, but such a result as this is absolutely impossible with this formula. Sulfo Solution is made by the Cooper Pharmaceutical Co., of Chicago. It costs $1.00, and is sold in Fort Wayne by Meyer Bros. Co. and Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

kets, according to statements made by Donald Purviance, of the Weber & Purviance company. No shippings have been made, the grain being sold locally at retail. The quality in many cases is poor, much of the grain being "spotted," due to poor maturing weather. The crop in Huntington county will not be as valuable as that of last year, although in quantity it will very nearly equal the last year's yield. The quality of the crop is its greatest drawback. Little has been received as yet that is in a condition to sell.

VICTIMS WILL SPLIT $165.

Garrett, Ind., Nov. 12.—The creditors of Frank A. Hall, the Garrett bankrupt, have only $165 to divide between them. This will be distributed on a basis of about 2 1/2 per cent. The settlement is being made by the trustee, Arthur F. Smith, with the assistance of his attorney, H. W. Mountz. Within a few days the checks will be mailed to the creditors. Hall's schedule of debts amounted to about $8,000. Hall's term of six months at the Indiana penal farm will expire about December 15. Upon his release he will be met at the gate by Sheriff John P. Hoff, who will present him with a Christmas gift in the shape of five indictments that were returned by the grand jury in this county.

WILL MEET IN WATERLOO.

Waterloo, Ind., Nov. 12.—President A. L. Moudy, of the DeKalb County Sunday School association, has issued a call for a meeting of all Sunday school superintendents and other workers, to be held in the assembly room of the Waterloo library, on Saturday afternoon of this week. The meeting will be called at 2 o'clock, and at this time there will be plans discussed whereby this year can be made a better year for the Sunday schools of DeKalb county. Matters of interest to the next year's Sunday school convention will also be discussed, and there will be a number of phases of the work brought out.

BIG BUSINESS DEAL IN BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 12.—In a deal announced yesterday John H. Painter took over the Hartman & Dotterer feed barn, on North Main street, purchasing the site and buildings from Fitch & Sons, a Fort Wayne real estate firm, who acquired it in the deal in which John Hartman and Henry Dotterer traded the barn for a farm near Auburn, the property of Mayor McClellene, of Auburn. The barn was given a valuation of $15,000 in the deal with Mr. Painter and he gave his automobile and a block of interurban stock in part payment.

GARRETT'S NEW CITY HALL.

Garrett, Ind., Nov. 12.—The completion of the floors and stairways in the city hall will be a Christmas gift to the city of Gaarrett. The council let contracts Tuesday night for the laying of terrazzo flooring and marble wainscoting, costing in all about $2,300. The decorating will not be done this winter, but will likely be added next year. When completed the building will have cost about $36,000. Of this, the indebtedness will amount to only $16,500, which is represented by bonds.

TO PUT ON FLESH
[AND INCREASE WEIGHT]

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all. Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by Meyer Bros. Drug Co., Dreier Drug Co., D. & N. Pharmacy, The Family Drug Store, and other good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advertisement.

MARKLE MAN LOSES TROUSERS.

Markle, Ind., Nov. 12.—Several nights ago Henry Platt was robbed of about $15 and a good pair of trousers. Mr. and Mrs. Platt returned to their home in the evening after a visit with friends and retired early. Mr. Platt leaving his trousers with his pocketbook in them lying near the bed. Some time during the night a thief entered the house and carried away the trousers and money. It is thought that whoever did the stealing entered the bedroom through a window which had been left open.

YOUTH DIES UNEXPECTEDLY.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 12.—Albert Lumm, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lumm, of South Jackson street, who had been sick with liver trouble for the past six months, passed quietly away at the home of his parents Thursday. During all his illness he had never been bedfast. Wednesday evening he felt good and was jolly, but took worse during the night. He walked down stairs next morning and in a short while changed for the worse and passed away. He was but 19 years of age and was born here.

MUST NUMBER HOUSES.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 12.—The numbers for numbering the residences of Decatur under an ordinance passed by the city council are now here and must be placed before December 15 by the owners or the city will do the work and charge it against the property. The old numbers were not satisfactory and the postal authorities asked that they be replaced with new ones for the convenience of locating homes in mail delivery. The numbers are in the hands of the city officials where they may be purchased.

CHOSEN TO GLEE CLUB.

Van Wert, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Sidney Collier, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Collier of Park Place, has been selected to sing on the Dennison Glee Club during the coming season. Mr. Collier was picked from a field of 40 candidates. The glee club will make an extended trip of western cities during the holiday vacation. Mr. Collier is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and quite prominent in college circles of that university.

VAN WERT WOMAN HONORED.

Van Wert, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Mrs. J. H. Ballen, of Collins, was elected president of the Van Wert Woman's Club, vice president, at the closing session of the annual convention of the Third District of the Woman's Relief Corps, which held its convention here. Mrs. Mary Taylor was selected delegate and Mrs. Ellen Blake of this city as alternate to the national convention, which will be held in Kansas City next year.

FOLLOWS BROTHERS' PATHWAY.

Hicksville, Ohio, Nov. 12.—This community was shocked this week by news that Charles Wetzel had committed suicide at his store in Hudson, Mich., by taking carbolic acid. He had just purchased the business. He was formerly a resident of this city, where he was reared. A year ago his brother, Walter, killed himself here in Hicksville, under very similar circumstances.

WARREN GIRL WINS HONOR.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12.—Uzefka Monroe, for two years a student in the local high school, but now a resident of Warren, received honorable mention on the manuscript she submitted to the State Fire Prevention Essay contest, sharing the honor with Miss Nell McCarty of the Fort Branch high school.

Banquet Obligations at Hammond Follow Letter Only.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 12.—The winning and losing sides in a Chamber of Commerce membership campaign sat down to a banquet at the Hammond Country club last night. The losers, headed by the Rev. C. J. Sharp, pastor of the Christian church, and J. E. Fitzgerald, were to give a $3 banquet to the winners, headed by George Hammers. The losers furnished a banquet costing $2 for the entire list of fifty guests. Hammers' force understood it was to be $3 per plate. The piece de resistance was bran, with ice water on the side. A near-riot followed.

DEPARTMENT MAKES

If Followed Would Be Great Help to Postal Employees.

The postoffice department at Washington has called the attention of Postmaster Edward Miller to the necessity of asking the patrons of the Fort Wayne postoffice to assist in the national movement of "Mailing Early" during the Christmas rush, which always buries postal employees several days before the joyful day arrives. The department also suggests that if business men and manufacturers who mail large quantities of mail would see that their mail was faced, all long letters together, full postage paid and addresses correctly and plainly written, the local office would be much benefited and the patrons receive better service. The letter states that, when possible, the mailers should bring their mail to the main office instead of using street letter boxes when several letters are to be mailed at once, as quicker service can be given them. The suggestion of the department that large mailers bring their mail to the office at frequent intervals of the day instead of mailing once or at most twice each day is worthy of much consideration. If this large volume of mail were brought to the office at intervals during the day, it would prove a much easier matter to give the speedy dispatch that all desire when a letter is put in the hands of Uncle Sam.

QUEST CLUB BANQUET.

Prof. Gilman Speaks on the Making of Valuable Men Out of Raw Material.

Prof. S. W. Gilman, of the University of Wisconsin, was the principal speaker Thursday evening at the regular monthly banquet of the Quest club at the Anthony hotel. H. Brooke Sale acted as toastmaster. Prof. Gilman spoke on the making of valuable men out of raw material and the cost of personal energy in the making of these men. He declared it is better to inspire men to do work, rather than to force them. About fifty members of the club were present.

OSTEOPATHY

AND HOW IT AFFECTS THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

The spine is composed of vertebrae, which are movable, inside of which is the spinal cord with nerves branching out through small openings between the vertebrae. These nerves pass to all parts and organs of the body and control the function of each. If one or more vertebrae become slightly rotated or tilted too far forward, or backward, undue pressure is brought to bear on the nerves and blood vessels passing in and out between those particular vertebrae. The irritation thus produced to those nerves and blood vessels is the primary cause of most diseases, either acute or chronic. For instance, a slight rotation of the first vertebra in the neck will cause disease of eyes and ears, nervousness, headache particularly in the back of the head, neuralgia, stiff neck, and a general exhaustion, or fever, or both. This is because direct pressure, mechanical pressure, is brought to bear upon the blood supply to the brain, as well as mechanical irritation to the nerve center located at that point in the spine. The "cause" of these symptoms being "mechanical" it is hardly to be expected that a "chemical" remedy will affect them, other than giving relief for a short time. Osteopathic treatment will give complete relief in most of the cases. (State Educational Bureau.)—Advertisement.

BEAUTY AT 40—WOMAN OF ANY AGE CAN WEAR ANY COLOR THAT BECOMES HER.

IDA M'GLONE GIBSON.

I was describing to a friend of mine the other day a woman whom I had never seen except in pink or blue and she exclaimed, "Mercy, is she as old as all that?"

Color plays a great part in the beauty scheme of the woman of 40. The days when black was a suitable color to signify the death of hope has passed.

A woman of any age can wear any color that becomes her. Personally, I could never wear any of the shades of pink until my hair grew white, but for the woman who has white hair and a good fresh complexion there is no color more becoming than any shade of pink, from flesh to coral, or from blush to American beauty.

I never wear a corset in my own home and my house dresses are all made after one design which I have evolved after many years of experiment.

These costumes are made of any fine material from Canton crepe to broadcloth velvet and I do not feel called on to apologize to anyone because they are unconventional, as they are graceful, modest and most comfortable.

esteem and of their recognition of the honor shown her in her recent election as the highest officer of the State Federation of clubs. Mrs. C. A. Horton spoke for the board of directors in presenting the gift.

The members of the X. Y. Z. club gave a surprise on Wednesday evening to Miss Bernadette Cranston, of West Third street. The company baked marshmallows and later were served an elegant luncheon. The X. Y. Z's are Misses Marie Grancy, Bernadette Mohl, Josephine Ertle, Sadie Marsh, Mary Pembroke, Nettie McNally, Nona O'Meara, and Don Ross, Pearl Thompson, Andy George, Jack Sears, Roy Wyszog, Frank Jerles, Bill Miller and Ervin Zollinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ersig, of Harrison street, entertained a few friends on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. John Mungovan, of Chicago, who was formerly Miss Margaret Young, of this city. Music and dancing were chief pleasures of the evening, with an excellent lunch for later enjoyment. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerren, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hartwig, Mrs. Mary Dalton and Mrs. Margaret Young.

Fl. Wayne Council, Knights of Columbus, gave a progressive thim party in their rooms in the Lau block on Wednesday evening. One of the largest crowds of members present at any time this season, was on hand for the good time. Prizes were won by Misses Helen Auerentz and Alma Huhn, and Messrs. Will Ueber and Byron Hayes. The next social event of the Knights will be a reception on Tuesday, Nov. 16, and will be the closing affair until after the first of the new year.

The Music Students club formed by piano pupils of Miss Gertrude Schick, will give an informal musicale at Packard hall this evening at 8 o'clock. Friends of the club and their teacher will be welcome if they care to attend. The members of the club who are to participate are Velma Hoffman, Irene Meyer, Adeline Hagerman, Velma Linker, Hilda Hagerman, Helen Hoffman, Mrs. Jacobs, Luella Schwehn, Marie Doctor, Carol Horman, Gertrude Wolf, Clara Lange, Esther Schild, Anita Walbaum and Frieda Trier. An interesting bit of the program will be some original compositions by two or three harmony class pupils, Esther Pohlman, Frieda Trier and Clara Lange.

Miss Stella Cochoit, who is to be a bride of Thanksgiving day, was the honor guest at a shower party, given by Mrs. Leo O'Brien and Miss Edna Bailey, on Monday evening, at their home on Third street. A decoration of hearts and cupid told of the coming nuptial event, while in the dining room the fact was more emphasized by the suspension of a big white ball, from which ribbons tied to each plate, at the table. The bride-elect was showered with many pretty gifts. Those who participated in the pretty affair were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bohne, Mr. and Mrs. Leo O'Brien, Miss J. Cochoit, Mrs. J. Bailey and

My friends tell me that the one most becoming is of American beauty and dull blue striped satin.

I must have plenty of color about me and I think as a woman reaches her Indian summer she should take a leaf from nature and use any of the brilliant tints with which autumn dyes the foliage, turning the earth to crimson and gold.

White is always becoming, especially to the woman with white hair. It is not so pretty on the gray haired woman. Of course, for the street one may not make herself too conspicuous, but it is a good rule to follow that one should never wear black except as a last resort.

It is a matter of individual taste, but I do not believe in publishing your private grief by public mourning. So in my case black is shunned from my wardrobe except when plentifully trimmed with jet or with the introduction of a touch of color near the face.

At 40 one must not follow fashion too slavishly. Make it conform to your individuality and you need never fear results.

Spielman-Heine.

Miss Lydia Louise Heine, daughter of Mrs. Augusta Heine, and Mr. Milton H. Spielman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Spielman, of Cincinnati, were married at a beautiful home wedding, on Thursday evening at half past 6 o'clock, by Prof. Walter Moll, as the bride's pastor. Rev. William Moll is out of the city. The wedding took place at the bride's home, 228 Douglas avenue, and the immediate relatives were the guests. Miss Esther Griebel played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the bride came down stairs in a ribbon pathway made by nephews and a niece who held the ribbons. The children were Margaret, Richard, Harold and Ellwood Heine. Miss Margaret in a white frock also held a calla lily blossom and it contained the wedding ring. The bride, who is very sweet and attractive looking of a pure blonde type, looked particularly lovely in her wedding dress of white crepe de chine with beautiful lace about the neck and short sleeves and also forming a cascade effect on the front of the skirt. The bride wore a veil arranged in a flat cap effect without flowers or ornament, and she carried a bouquet of bride roses. Following the extending of congratulations, the wedding company, numbering twenty-four, were served an elegant dinner for which Mrs. Grafte catered. The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and other fall flowers and pots of ferns. The bride and groom stood between an arrangement of ferns and mums for the marriage service. The bride's table was done in smilax, rosepetals and white candles under green hoods. A big wedding cake of handsome appearance as well as toothsome make, occupied the center of the table. At midnight the bride and groom left for Cleveland, where Mr. Spielman has a home ready for his bride. Mr. Spielman is an electrical engineer who was graduated from Purdue university and is employed by the Frantz Premier company, of Cleveland. After Dec. 15, Mr. and Mrs. Spielman will be at home at 1317 Lakeview avenue, in that city. For traveling the bride wears a dark blue velvet suit with trimmings of marten fur and her brides and hat correspond. The groom's parents and a brother, Mr. Carl Spielman, all of Cincinnati, were present at the wedding. The bride is very popular with a large acquaintance of young people, many of whom have entertained for her in honor of her approaching wedding while her domestic tastes and charming manner will go for towards her case in making friends in her new home.

"THE BLUE BIRD" AND HAPPINESS

Famous Fairy Fantasy Begins Three Days' Performance at Majestic.

The much written of play by Maurice Maeterlinck, "The Blue Bird," opened a three days' engagement at the Majestic theater on Thursday evening and apparently delighted a good sized audience. The presentation is excellent. The roles of the two children, Tyltyl and Mytyle, being beautifully acted and those of the other important roles leaving so little open to criticism that only praise is their due. The lines which are so necessary a part of the allegory were in all cases very distinct and clear, and the characterization of fire, the dog and the cat, light and night, were excellent. Fairy Berylune, by Anna Gates, had the same pleasing quality of work, a good enunciation, a fact that left no more to be desired for the lines of the blue bird do not require acting to be impressive. The quest of happiness in the play is as it is in life, sought for in the things one has not, but which the seeker believes will be found in obtaining some desired thing or in possibly something wholly unattainable. For happiness the blue bird is the symbol and so the children start out to find the blue bird, and in the end find one at home, through their act of doing something for someone else. The night's journey is the charm of the play and those of the audience who let loose rein on their imagination and like children, play make-believe for a while, will get an enjoyment that will send them home for a night of peaceful sleep that few theater performances can produce. Maeterlinck suggests a number of things that are sweet and charming with a belief in a future existence that is in tune with any religious belief other than of materialism. As a scenic production the performance is very beautiful. There are eleven scenes and those representing the Land of Memory, the Kingdom of the Past and the Kingdom of the Future and the Land of Happiness are lovely enough for any fairyland story imaginable.

The performance moves swiftly, too, as well as without a hesitation or noise while a lovely musical program contributes much to the enjoyment of people who like music well enough to listen to it. The company producing the performance is large and many children add to the delicate charm of the presentation. The dancing is well adapted to the character of the performance, impressive by reason of its imaginative quality, its grace and beauty. "Fire," enacted by Vincent Romeo, is a skillful bit of acrobatic dancing. Richard Moynan as Bread, Henry Duggan as a perfect dog impersonation and T. K. Corless as the cat, share in winning praises from the audience. Tyltyl and Mytyle are acted by Mary and Doris Eaton. Miss Mary's work is especially impressive in her natural manner of shrinking and fear of what she can't understand. The costuming and general effects are tip-top all the way through and no one need hesitate about seeing the performance for fear it isn't first class.

WORKMAN HIT BY JETNEY.

Stepping from the curb into the street on Calhoun street near Holman, at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening, Fred Harmeier, a laborer residing at 314 Blackledge street, was struck by a north bound jitney bus driven by Roy Williams. He was severely cut about the head and on the hand and was attended by Dr. Dean Metcalf in his office in the German-American Trust company building, in front of which the accident occurred. A north bound street car swept by as Harmeier stepped into the street and he doubtless was watching that for safety and did not see the jitney, whose speed was not excessive.

DISCUSS PLANS AT W. C. T. U. MEETING

Church Friday.

Plans of the work for the coming year were discussed at the meeting of the Allen County Superintendents of the Women's Christian Temperance union, held at Plymouth Congregational church Friday. The morning session was well attended and many plans were submitted by Mrs. Martha Ride-nour, the county president, who spoke on the subject, "The Open Door for Organization."

One of the features of the program was the demonstration given by Mrs. T. P. Potts and a class of boys and girls of foreign parentage of the work that is being accomplished at the Rolling Mill Mission for Foreign Speaking People, located in the Rolling Mill district. The girls told of their work in domestic science and the boys told how they helped in cleaning the church, such as dusting and mending rugs.

The afternoon session which opened at 2 o'clock was still better attended than the brief morning session. On account of illness some parts of the program were omitted. Mrs. Saunders told of the work among the colored people of the city and all the other superintendents who were present took part in the program.

The mass meeting which was to have been held this evening at 7:30 o'clock was cancelled on account of the illness of several people who were to speak.

NEUTRALS WILL HOLD PEACE MEETING SOON

Washington, Nov. 12.—David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, former president of Indiana university and head of the International Peace Congress held in San Francisco, told President Wilson today that a quasi-official meeting of neutral nations probably will be held some time before Christmas either at The Hague, Bern or Copenhagen to attempt to bring about peace in Europe. Dr. Jordan conveyed to the president a resolution from the peace congress urging him to co-operate with other neutrals in calling such a conference.

In a statement by Dr. Jordan it was declared that as a result of recent missions to the governments of the warring nations it could be stated that while the nations at war were not willing themselves to begin negotiations for peace, "there is nevertheless abundant evidence that those charged with the administration of the foreign policies of these nations would welcome or at least not oppose efforts to bring about a peace based on international justice."

Dr. Jordan said that with no official confirmation available peace advocates had learned from unofficial sources in Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Denmark and Spain that those countries would be glad to take part in any movement to further the cause of peace.

Dr. Jordan took the position that it would be more natural for the European neutrals to invite the United States to participate in the peace conference than for the United States to issue the invitation. He said that an unofficial meeting of peace advocates at Bern, Dec. 14, at which plans for bringing about peace will be discussed, would be attended by people from the United States.

BRIDE DIES BECAUSE HUSBAND DID NOT LIKE COLOR OF HER APRON.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Esther Campbell, a bride of a few weeks, died at a hospital here today as a result of the fact that her husband did not like the color of her apron. Last Tuesday Mrs. Campbell was standing near a stove. Her mother warned her that her apron was scorching and the young bride replied that she did not care as her husband did not like the color. A minute later her clothing burst into flames and she was fatally burned before her mother could extinguish the blaze. When Mrs. Campbell died her mother was on an adjoining cot in a serious condition from burns received in trying to save her daughter.

DEATH WRITES THE FINIS TO VIVID HAWAIIAN ROMANCE.

Henry G. Smart, Mrs. Smart and their son, Richard, heir to $3,000,000.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 12.—The recent death of Henry Gaillard Smart, in Charlottesville, Va., has written finis to one of the most sensational of Hawaiian romances.

The $3,000,000 estate of his wife, beautiful Thelma Parker, which Smart had won in legal contest after her death a year ago, now passes on to his baby son, Richard, who is with his grandmother in this city.

The contest by which the husband won control of Hawaii's largest plantation, against the claims of his wife's mother and stepfather, was the most sensational ever brought in the islands.

Henry Gaillard Smart, son of a prominent Virginia minister, and a graduate of the University of Virginia, met Thelma Parker, then 19, during a sea voyage to Honolulu, paid ardent court and married her soon after their arrival in the islands. That was three years ago.

As heiress of the Parker estate, and granddaughter of Col. Sam Parker, she brought a dowry of millions, and after the last and most brilliant of the old-time Hawaiian festivals in celebration of their nuptials, the young couple sailed around the world.

A son, Richard, was born, and Mrs. Smart's health began to fail. At the outbreak of the war they were in Paris, where a second child was born.

In a prostrate condition the young mother died from Paris. Her child lived but a few days, and the mother, pining for her lost babe, as well as the waning devotion of her husband, according to her family, died a short time later in San Francisco.

Hawaiian singers and ukulele players had tried vainly to rally her when she called for music that would conjure childhood memories. Soon after the death of his wife, Smart won the legal battle for her $3,000,000 estate and then returned to his home in Virginia.

A few days ago he succumbed to spinal meningitis.

NO CROSS WORDS DURING 63 YEARS

Probably Only Couple Living With Such a Record.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—Not one cross word during 63 years of married life.

Possibly the only two people this side of Utopia, who have a right to claim the old fairy tale ending for their lives that "they lived happily ever after," are Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bodine.

The couple celebrated the sixty-third anniversary of their wedding tonight by going to the "movies" and on their return were given a surprise party by the four generations of their family.

Summarized, these are the reasons given by the couple for having lived happily so many years. By Mrs. Bodine: She thinks there is nobody like "father." Is willing to humor his "little ways." "Will do anything in the world to please him." Cooks and bakes like an artist. Praises him when he deserves it, and loves a joke. By Mr. Bodine: Thinks his wife is the finest woman in the world. Is always willing to listen to what a lady has to say. Never takes a vacation unless she goes, too. Has a joke ready for any and every occasion. Never wants anybody else but "mother."

WELL, SHE WANTED TO KNOW
Writes County Clerk to Learn If She Is Married.

Paoli, Ind., Nov. 12.—Charles Brown, clerk of the Orange circuit court, has evidently received the "distress sign" and has been called on to decide for an Illinois woman as to whether she is really married. The woman is evidently at a loss to answer the question to her entire satisfaction, as will be noted by the following letter, just received by the clerk:

Ninantic, Ill., November 9, 1915.

County Clerk, Paoli, Ind.,
Dear Sir—Please let me know whether I am married or not. The judge in Springfield, Ill., said I was not married, so if I am not, please let me know. Judge Weaver, at the county court, said I wasn't married, and if I am not married, please let me know at once. Remaining, MRS. ANNA BEAR once. Please answer at once.

Distress in the Stomach.
There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padgham, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

WHERE PEACE PATHS NOW SEEM TO LEAD

Lucerne May See Agreement for Cessation of Hostilities.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—"Lucerne, toward which, rumor has it, all peace paths of the world now take their way, and upon which the eyes of many troubled millions have been turned, is the keen hope that the bright mountain city may soon attain the enviable fame of sending forth the call to cease hostilities in the world's greatest war, is described in a statement issued today by the National Geographic society. Prince von Buelow's visit to the city strengthened peace rumors which have been growing in assurance during weeks past, and centered peace activities in Lucerne. The war primer telling of Lucerne, reads:

"Lucerne, the capital of the Canton of Lucerne, situated in an amphitheatre of mountains upon the exquisite Lake of Lucerne, is one of the most beautiful and most picturesque towns in Switzerland, and in the land of the pilgrim's paradise, it has been one of the principal tourist centers. In tone, it is thoroughly cosmopolitan; for, during normal times, representatives of Europe and both Americas are continually passing through the place, to and from the famous St. Gotthard. More than 100,000 visitors were entertained in Lucerne each year in normal times, and, though a place of only 40,000 population, it possesses 70 hotels, many of them as pretentious as those to be found in New York and Paris.

"Mountains wall the city, save where the wall is broken through by the torrent of the Reuse, which drains Lucerne lake. The Pilatus range, Rigi, and the Alps of Uri and Engelberg fame, the crystal waters at their feet. Lucerne is primarily a city of peace, because its support depends upon the good will, the prosperity and the leisure of nations productive and at peace with one another. The annual 100,000 visitors pay the running expenses of the place and furnish it with plenty of pocket money for incidental luxuries.

"Before the outbreak of the war, Lucerne was a resort patronized all the year around, by vacationists, those in search of winter sport, mountain climbers, by the infirm in need of bracing air and inspiring surroundings, and by the small army regularly bound for the passage of St. Gotthard's pass. The town, itself, is full of picturesque and historic values. The older part of the city is medieval, threaded by narrow, crooked streets, and built up with ancient houses. Part of the old defenses are still standing, while the town hall, a survival from the 16th century, still is now housed a museum rich in antiquities.

"Lucerne is conveniently situated for informal conferences between the warring nations, for it is neutral land almost in the heart of battle-torn Europe, and the only place equally accessible to all the larger combatants. In less than a day's time, representatives can gather from London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Vienna. More difficultly is in the way of the representatives sent from Petrograd, but, for all practical purposes, Lucerne is the placid center around which Europe's cyclonic storms of war are raging in widening circles. As the hub of trouble and destruction, it is a fitting point from which to send out the suggestions of peace and reconstruction."

WAR ORPHANS COME IN VAST NUMBERS

Are Being Sent to Lives of Safety Under Stars
and Stripes.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—While Europe's men are killing each other, Europe's excess children are being sent to lives of safety under the shelter of the stars and stripes.

From some of the countries the proportion of child immigrants to the total stream of immigration has nearly doubled.

All immigration from the nations at war, of course, has fallen off, and from a few it has almost ceased, yet figures soon to be published by the immigration bureau will show that the immigration of children under 14 years of age has fallen off relatively much less than the immigration of adults.

The stoppage of the stream of aliens entering the United States is startling. Only 26 per cent., or about one-fourth as many came in the fiscal year ending June, 1915, as in the year before the war.

But the shrinkage is not uniform. For Germany, France and England, the percentage of children under 14 entering the United States remains the same now as before the war.

But for Italy, the percentage of children changed from 13 per cent. in 1914 to 20 per cent. in 1915. For races which inhabit Russia—the Finns, Russians, Rumanians and Slovaks,—the percentage of child immigrants changed from 8 in 1914 to 14 per cent. in 1915. The child immigration of Hebrews—victims of the war in every country—changed from 21 per cent. in 1914 to 25 per cent. in 1915.

The races of the Austro-Hungarian empire—Bohemian, Moravian, Croatian, Slovenian, Lithuanian and Magyar—changed their percentage of child immigrants from 12 in 1914 to 20 per cent. in 1915. And the Poles changed from 12 per cent. of children in 1914 to 20 per cent. in 1915.

Immigration bureau officials conclude that the stoppage of the alien stream affects the men of military age, while more of the children are coming to relatives and friends in this country to escape the horrors of the war.

PUT TO WORK AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—A sudden influx of child laborers from the war-ridden sections of Europe, has given Chicago juvenile court officials and factory inspection officers a new problem.

Numbers of "war orphans" or children sent to this country to escape war's ravages have been received in friends or relatives of their parents in this city. Nearly 1,000 arrived within a week last month. Many of these have been placed in factories, in some cases violating the compulsory education law.

The school board has an agreement with the immigration inspectors at Ellis island, whereby all alien minors bound for Chicago are listed and the Chicago address forwarded to this city. Keeping track of these children has more than doubled the work of the truant officers.

Good Judgment Leads to Good Clothes

Some men act from impulse; their desires and emotions take the place of judgment; promise them more than is possible to give and they "fall for it." They are the folks who have to learn through "sad experience." Desire never yet took the place of paying for what you got, a law of nature.

Something for Something

And just as much of it as you pay for is truer in the clothing business today than ever before. Competition has made it so. Each merchant gives you the best he can for the money you give him—there is no trust in the retail clothing business, no magic to help one more than the other.

CHURCH ADS INDORSED.

Plan for Increasing Membership Favored at Unitarian Conference.

Pittsburg, Nov. 12.—Advertising as the means of increasing church membership received the strong indorsement of Rev. Edwin A. Rumball, of Boston, at the thirty-first annual meeting of the Unitarian conference of the middle states and Canada here.

"The Unitarians," he said, "are prepared to spend thousands of dollars on their publicity and advertising work. Last year alone showed an increase of 200,000 pamphlets distributed."

He also referred to the generous space taken by the various churches of the denomination in the daily newspapers.

THREATEN TO MAKE FIFTH WARD DRY

Residents of the Fifth ward are now discussing the circulation of a blanket remonstrance in their ward against saloons. Following the granting of a license to Frank McNamara, after the church and temperance workers of the ward had filed a remonstrance against him with the commissioners is the reason for the activities of the workers.

There has been a great deal of talk for nearly a year among Fifth ward residents concerning the making dry of their district, and the refusal to give a license to Sthair some time ago had the effect of quieting the sentiment for a time. However, granting a license to McNamara Wednesday has set the project on its feet again.

The Fifth ward includes all of Nebraska.

DECLARES BRITISH WAR CHIEFS BLUNDER

London, Nov. 12.—Dissatisfaction with Great Britain's conduct of the war grows more evident daily. The house of commons last night was the scene of a bitter outburst by Arthur Lynch, nationalist member for West Clare. He declared that the country was headed straight for disaster unless an end was put at once to the incompetence shown by those in power.

He made a bitter attack on Earl Kitchener, whom he termed a blunderer, and declared that 75 per cent. of the British commanders should be cashiered, or at least removed from their present commands.

Even Sir John French, who is in command of the British forces in the west, did not escape his ire. He declared that French, after fifteen months' operations, had made no progress, and said the trouble with the army was that it had no leadership.

Saving Tom's Money

By Elsie Endicott

LAD LUTE PURDY has been a candidate for Tom's wife's favor. So had the sheriff of the county, a rich mine owner, and several other people of prominence. For Kate Lawrence was as pretty as a ripe peach and with a soft loveliness of curved cheek and flowing lines that were as magnet to the eye masculine.

For six weeks they had been husband and wife as well as lovers. Only one cloud had been on the horizon of their happiness. The roses no longer brushed their bloom on her soft cheeks. She moved languidly instead of with the light, free tread of other years. The doctors said she had been working too hard in the schoolroom and needed a change. That Tom had better take her to California across the mountains where she could be all day and night beneath the blue roof of the continent.

"The doctor knows best. If it's an outdoor life you need, that's what you'll get, Katie, my lass. I'll buy that camp outfit from Maddox and we'll cross the mountains by wagon. 'Twill set you right for sure."

"But what will we do with the money, Tom?"

The young Irish-American was a miner. Six months before he had taken a lease on the Nancy K and had struck pay ore. Before the lease was ended he had cleaned up nine thousand dollars. They had their dream of a little orange grove in southern California and both of them knew that this was the time to buy while prices were down. Wherefore they must have their money where they could get at it. A bank draft would not do because all over the country banks were paying in scrip. By good luck and industry he had won a "stake" and he intended to keep it within reach until that dream of an orange orchard became a reality.

"We'll take it with us," Tom answered. Kate opened her eyes wide. "With us in the wagon? Will it be safe?"

"Take it all?"

"Every cent of it."

"Where?"

He whispered in her ear. She laughed and nodded. "All right, Tom."

Within an hour she was cutting out and sewing on the machine canvas bags of long narrow shape. Tom bought the orange camping outfit complete, sold for a song by the household furniture, and closed up his business affairs. Late that same night he and his wife drew their money from the bank where it was deposited. Their method of doing this might have struck the casual observer as criminal. First they pulled down every blind in the kitchen and locked the doors. Then Tom dragged back the linoleum and removed a short plank that had fitted from joist to joist. With his hand he scraped aside loose dirt and pulled up a tin box. This he unlocked, threw back the lid, and disclosed a heap of shining yellow double eagles, hundreds upon hundreds of them.

These they put one at a time into the long, narrow bags which were just big enough to hold fifty when carefully packed one on top of another. Kate sewed up the bags as soon as they were filled and Tom dropped them through the bung hole into an empty water barrel. When the bank was empty, Tom carried the water barrel outside and attached it to its place beside the wagon, after which he filled it from another barrel in the yard. This done, he returned to the house and slept till morning.

It was still early when they started from Goldbanks across the desert. Both of them were pleased as Punch over their new wheeled home. It was the most complete and convenient thing of the kind they had ever seen. Everything had a place, from the rifle which hung suspended from a rack in the wagon within reach of Tom's hand, to the cooking cabinet that swung snugly into place above the folding table.

"We'll be ever so happy," sighed Kate with deep content.

She was glad to be leaving, for she longed for green and growing things and moreover had lived in a continual fear that her husband would be killed in the mine. Tom let his big brown hand squeeze her little one. He was an alert and pleasant-looking fellow of five and twenty. "We will that, please God."

They traveled only twenty-five miles that day, for it was their intention to take it easy so that Kate might not get tired. At four o'clock Tom made camp. He set up the little tent and built a fire. While his wife made supper he watered the horses from the barrel, fed and hobbled them, and packed the bedding from the wagon. After they had eaten he built up the camp-fire again, and together they sat in front of its leaping flames and watched the purple mountains grow into a black wall, with a jagged top reaching into the sky of stars. For the first time in her life Kate fell asleep to the sound of the wind slapping the walls of the tent.

"Buenos dias, senora. When you are through dressing come and get it." Kate ate with a ravenous appetite that surprised her. Already the tonic of the outdoors was getting into her blood.

Leisurely they traveled toward the mountains, for they were in no hurry to reach their destination. And day by day Tom saw the roses come back into the cheeks of his wife. Over precipitous mountain roads they swung, sometimes at a dizzy height above the canon bed below, working round the great peaks and over the passes that lay between.

Sometimes they would go for long walks together, he with his gun and she perhaps with a fishing rod. He taught her how to shoot, to ride, to enjoy the simple camp life. Or it might be that in their walks, rifle and rod would be left in the wagon and a candle taken. Once, far up in the mountains, they left the outfit near a friendly ranch house for two days while they tramped to Lost Lakes and fished. There was nothing in the wagon these whole-hearted mountain people would take, and as for what was in the water barrel it was as safe and as well hidden as if it had been in a city safety deposit vault.

So they thought. Nor did anything occur to change their opinion during the first two weeks of their journey. They were well across the divide, drawing down toward one of California's famous scenic valleys, when that occurred which brought the steel into Tom's sunny blue eyes. At Walley's Hump they had stopped to camp for a week. The fishing was good and Tom's rifle secured them plenty of grouse and quail. Returning together to the wagon about dusk one evening, they came on a man prowling about the camp. He was at the tail of the wagon examining the cooking box and its contents.

"Nothing doing here, Bill," he growled.

Tom, rifle in hand, strode up and looked at the fellow frostily. The man was Lute Purdy, the ne'er-do-well mucker from the Goldbanks mines, who had been a rival of Lynch for the favor of Kate.

"Making yourself at home, Purdy, I see," Tom said quietly.

The man jumped as if he had been shot. A sudden face showed from the wagon, followed by a body in an evasive hurry to descend.

Tom recognized this man as a second loose character with a reputation far from unsmirched.

"Good afternoon, Bill. This your outfit?" Tom asked with quiet sarcasm.

"No, I—last is we been tramping and was hungry. Been looking for grub," Bill replied uneasily. For the owner of the wagon stood six feet in his shoes, had well-packed, supple muscles, and had won a reputation for fearlessness in a camp where there had been many reckless men.

"Purdy didn't mention he had come to the grub if you are so hungry."

"I was just telling him," Purdy contributed.

Tom put the rifle down against the tail piece of the wagon, made up some ham sandwiches, and put them in a sack.

"This is the best we've got, boys. Now we'll say good-by," he said.

Both of them were big, hulking fellows, as ugly a pair of ruffians as one would be likely to meet. Either of them could have spared Tom twenty pounds, but they were muscle bound, and he was springy as a wildcat. There was in his steady blue eyes a moral suasion more potent than the weapon beside him. Moreover he had the law with him. They had plainly come for robbery, but they accepted sullenly his invitation to take themselves off.

"I don't know as we're in any such a mighty hurry," Purdy growled as they went. He longed to stay and fight the cold steel nerve for it.

Tom did not answer, but his eyes were on them till they had disappeared down the trail.

Kate came forward with a rather white face. "Oh, Tom. Do you think they know about—?" She looked at the water barrel without finishing her sentence.

"No, they can't. But they know I made money and they feel sure we must have some of it with us. Folks can't travel four or five hundred miles without having money for supplies and emergencies."

"What are you going to do?" she asked, for he was already busy packing.

"Going to move in closer to the Fraser ranch tonight. No use taking chances. They are a pair of mighty tame bandits, but it's better to be safe than sorry."

He did not tell her that he had seen a revolver projecting from the hip pocket of Purdy; nor did he mention that the man had been poured from her like a caged bird. She was trembling like an aspen in the wind.

She stilled the first panic in her, thinking desperately. She must hold them prisoners till Tom came back. But how? She could shoot straight enough—had killed a deer not two weeks earlier at two hundred yards. But could she shoot a man if it were necessary—and would she? Fear and excitement were fluttering in her like a caged bird. She was trembling like an aspen in the wind.

She thought of the money Tom had worked so hard to get. The tremors passed out of her. She felt her nerve and her resolution hardened to iron. Noiselessly she skirted the camp ground, working closer and closer to the wagon, till she reached the cover of a large tree. Behind its trunk she took her stand and waited, tense and alert to every sound.

In the moonlight she could see two men busy in a litter of overturned boxes and scattered goods. Literally the contents of the wagon had been emptied on the ground. Even the four had been poured from the sacks. Everything that could possibly be used as a hiding place for money had been turned topsy-turvy and ransacked.

The man doing the searching turned at last to the one sitting by the wheel with a revolver in his hand.

"It ain't here, Purdy. That's all there's to it. We been over everything."

"Except that water barrel. Smash it with the ax, Bill."

Kate fired into the air twice in quick succession. This was the signal that had been agreed upon between her and Tom in case she ever needed his help when he was at a distance.

Then Kate spoke. Her voice, as hard as hammered iron, surprised her moves.

"I'll shoot the first man that comes."

There was a moment's startled silence. The barrel of her gun could be seen shining in the moonlight. One of the men spoke to the other.

"It's only a woman."

"I killed a deer the other day," Kate said quietly.

They happened to know she spoke the truth, for a rancher in the hills told them about it. A revolver is a poor weapon against a rifle. If her nerve held out she had them for the present.

"We ain't doin' any harm," one growled, his mind searching busily for a way out.

"You can explain it to Tom when he comes," she said.

"We ain't the kind to hurt a lady. You come right forward and we'll talk it over friendly, ma'am."

"I'll stay here. Drop that pistol."

For an instant he thought of taking a chance. But she was safe behind her tree. She had him covered. The man dropped the revolver with an imprecation.

"Kick it from you."

He kicked it with the heel of his boot.

"Sit down on the ground—both of you," she ordered.

They sat down, cursing and grumbling. For fifteen minutes she held them there.

Purdy tried whining. "This ain't no way to treat an old friend, Kate. We ain't aiming to do you any harm. I always did think a heap of you."

"You may forget that stuff. I never was your friend, you barroom loafer. No, sit still!"

Behind the drifting cloud the moon went into partial eclipse. Bill crept into the brush and was gone before Kate knew it. When the cloud had passed she missed him and knew that he was crawling round to outflank her.

over." Tom ordered.

Four hands waved skyward. He disarmed Bill and gathered in the revolver of his companion. Kate came forward, very much frightened now that the danger was over. She sat down limply on a cracker box without saying anything more definite than a piteous little "Oh, Tom!"

Lynch made his prisoners harness and hitch the team after they had re-packed the wagon under his direction. This time he did not turn them loose without punishment. Under the coercion of Purdy's own revolver he drove them to the river bank. In the other hand was a coil of rope.

"You're too hot-headed, both of you. What you need is to get cooled off. Jump."

"Jump where?" whined Bill.

"Right before you. Into the river. And keep going till you reach the other bank—or the bottom."

"Goddammit, man I can't swim," Purdy pleaded.

"Too bad you never learned. Jump!" They jumped, found a step or two into the deep cold water, and turned to persuade Tom to think better of it.

"You wouldn't drown us, would you?"

"It's up to you. Sink or swim just as you please, but keep going."

A bullet splashed into the water just between them. They argued the matter no longer. It was a short swim, and Tom watched them until they reached the other bank, ready if need be to throw a rope in rescue. Standing dripping in the shallow water on the other side, they shook their fists at him and cursed raucously.

Tom turned on his heel with a derisive laugh. As the wagon swung back into the road they could still hear the impotent threats of the defeated robbers.

All night they traveled. Tom made his wife a bed in the wagon. She was quite sure her nerves were too badly shaken for her to sleep, but presently her eyes closed to the rocking of the wagon. When they opened again it was early day. She peeped through the curtains to see Tom making breakfast. Before her lay Fresno, shining in the morning sun.

The wagon and team were sold that day at auction. But the water barrel was not included. It had been knocked to pieces and the sacks of gold transferred to a handbag.

If you ever go out to Pomona, in that land of perennial summer, you may see the gold from the water barrel transmuted into golden nuggets hanging by hundreds from thousands of trees. Tom will probably tell you to help yourself, for to the orange groves of California, visitors properly introduced are made welcome.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Petersburg, Ind., Nov. 11. Judge John L. Bretz today fined Harvey Hays $10 and added a jail sentence of thirty days, for contempt of court, when Hays disobeyed the judge's instructions to stay in the courtroom while Sheriff Miller went to call Mrs. Bertha Hays, defendant in the case, who Hays said was too sick to attend court.

Mrs. Hays was charged with assault to kill her husband, whom she shot. Mrs. Hays was held in jail until Hays recovered.

Three attempts have been made to bring her to trial, but each time either the defendant or prosecuting witness was ill. Judge Bretz determined to find out if Mrs. Hays was really ill, and sent the sheriff to her home.

25,000 CHILDREN ARE ROCKEFELLER GUESTS

Cleveland Youngsters See Flower Show at Oil King's Expense.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 12.—Twenty-five thousand public school children, the first section of guests of John D. Rockefeller, swooped down on the flower show in the Coliseum yesterday, for a time completely baffling efforts of show officials, nearly 100 police, and a score of firemen to handle them.

One little girl fainted and one boy was trampled in the first wild rush after the doors were opened. More than 18,000 saw the show in two and one-half hours.

The children were the guests of Rockefeller, who contributed more than $5,000 for yesterday's tickets.

Although they had been granted a scant two hours' leave of absence in which to see the show and get back to their schools, thousands of the Thursday division of children made a half holiday event of the show and failed to report back to school until after lunch.

Police were deluged with requests of parents to hunt for "lost" children. Police and flower show officials had such a hard time handling the children that a hasty meeting was called in Mayor Baker's office to plan some way of handling the children Friday and Saturday, when 50,000 more will see the show.

no wonder of the submarine, which was ordered to shell the liner.

It is to be taken to the boats, upon which the submarine turned all her guns, killing and wounding many persons, both in the boats and on the deck of the steamer. Some of the passengers who were thrown into the water and sought to save themselves by clutching the sides of the submarine, were pushed away with jeers and insults, he asserts.

WASHINGTON IS PERPLEXED.

Washington, Nov. 12.—State department officials were perplexed today over the unexplained delays in getting definite information on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona with probable loss of American passengers. No dispatches had reached the state department early today although Secretary Lansing had confidently expected to get word from Rome, Marseilles and other points near the scene of the disaster. All information so far has been fragmentary.

A consular officer has been ordered to Tunis and on the officials arrival he is expected to get dispatches through as quickly as possible. Meanwhile Ambassador Page, at Rome, is expected to send some definite official detail. His official dispatches so far make no reference to the circumstances of the sinking of the liner, the question of whether the identity of the submarine and other facts which are to be cleared up as promptly as possible by the taking of testimony of survivors.

STILL WITHOUT WORD.

New York, Nov. 12.—No information has as yet been received in regard to the sinking of the steamer Ancona, by the Italian agents here despite their cables to Italy for details. A dispatch was received today from relatives of Mr. and Mrs. D. Canfield Jones, of Philadelphia, stating that word had been received that they are in Italy, having failed to sail on the Ancona as had been their intention.

President Wilson and the cabinet met today for the first time since last July, when the German submarine question was at one of its most serious stages. The sinking of the liner Ancona was the most important foreign question before the cabinet today, but no definite action was expected until fuller details were at hand. It was stated at the white house, however, that the cabinet meeting today was called only because the president wanted to get in touch with his official advisers before the opening of congress to discuss his annual message and legislation affecting their demands. From now on cabinet meetings will be held regularly twice a week.

POLICE COMMISSIONER SUELED.

Muncie Man Demands $1,000 for Alleged Injuries Inflicted by Dr. Smith.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 11. Dr. Nene Y. Smith, police commissioner and prominent democratic politician, under indictment in the Delaware county circuit court on charges of malfeasance in office, was sued for $1,000 damages by Jesse E. Lawrence, an iron molder. He charges that Smith, as a police officer, drove up to a curb on which the complainant was standing and assaulted Lawrence with a blackjack, breaking Lawrence's jaw. According to the plaintiff, Smith said that "an insult had been given to an officer," although, Lawrence says, he had not made an insulting remark. Dr. Smith has not made a statement, but it is understood that he asserts Lawrence resisted him as an officer of the police department.

WASN'T HANDCUFF; COULD BE BROKEN

Noted Suffragist and Peace Advocate is Separated from Husband.

New York, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Chrystal Eastman Benedict, lawyer, radical feminist and peace advocate, who once advised women to "make marriage a link, not a handcuff," has been separated from her husband for at least six months. Whether she intends to break even the "link" her closest friends do not know certainly.

In the studio colony in Greenwich village, where Mrs. Benedict, her husband, her brother, Max Eastman, editor of The Masses, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ida Paul Eastman, socialist candidate for the assembly, are known for their radical or artistic activities, it has been understood that Mr. and Mrs. Benedict were not in domestic accord.

Mrs. Benedict smiled when she was questioned about a disagreement.

"What my brother told you is all right," she said, "but there is nothing more to be said."

What her brother had said to a reporter who recently inquired whether there was "another woman in the case," was an emphatic "No."

Whatever is responsible for the separation, it is true that Benedict has been living apart from his wife. She is almost daily at the headquarters of the Woman's peace party, of which she is vice chairman. Benedict, until a short time ago, had charge of the Chelsea Greenwich activities of the People's institute.

From Max Eastman, Mrs. Benedict's brother, it was learned that "incompatibility" was responsible for the separation. But whether the "contemplation" of a suit is any more than philosophical is not to be read in the smile with which Mrs. Benedict greets the subject.

"Of course, I can not say on what grounds an action might be brought," she said, "because all those things have not been thought of yet."

Miss Chrystal Eastman, known to the public through her connection with the Pittsburgh Survey of the Russell Sage foundation and by her appointment by Gov. Hughes in 1909 as the only woman member of the New York employers' liability commission, was married to Wallace James Benedict, an insurance man of Milwaukee, in the city hall here in May, 1911. They went to Milwaukee. In the succeeding year Mrs. Benedict became state leader in the fight for suffrage there. Returning to New York she raised nearly $5,000 in one evening at the Hotel Astor for the campaign.

SAYS KISSES HAVE NO LEGAL STATUS

Judge Declares They Never Should Be Taken Into Court.

New York, Nov. 12.—Judge Joseph Hand, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, has advanced views on the subject of kissing.

In a case brought before him in the courtrooms at Stapleton he remarked that kissing was outside of the law.

"Such things go from mouth to mouth, like gossip," he said, with a perfectly calm face.

"There are about as many ways of saying 'How do you do,' as there are nationalities," he continued. "Some people rub noses instead of pressing lips. Certainly, in my opinion, kissing is more civilized than the other form of affectionate approval."

"Kissing and kisses should never be taken seriously. People who try to turn osculation into an argument are those who have forgotten how to contract the lips."

"Kissing is a form of amusement, especially for the onlooker. For instance, take the case of those lovers of an age gone by:

"Beneath a chestnut tree they sat. He held her hand, she held his hat. He held that kissing was no crime. She held her lips up every time I held my breath and wrote this rhyme."

"You see, the unimportance of being kissed cannot be over-rated, neither can the importance of remaining quiet and holding the breath."

"The only person I ever heard of who wished to put a stop to this twentieth century habit was a female policeman in Jersey."

IN THE CHURCHES

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MISSION BAND

Mission work has come to be regarded as one of the principal things in the circles of churches today and one of the congregations who is foremost in this work is the St. John Reformed church. If the plans of the leaders are realized there will be more than 75 young people who will have special work to do in the society.

The members of the Junior department of the Sunday school of the church met last Sunday and formed a similar organization.

Win-My-Chum Services.

Lawrence Pontius, president of the Epworth league of the First M. E. church, will have charge of the Win-My-Chum services at the church Friday evening. The subject is, "Praying Until Something Happens." Mrs. Robinson's Sunday school class will lead in the song service. Special music will be rendered by a male quartet.

IT'S THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER AND SHE'S CARRYING A CANE.

SO SAYING THE CAPITAL SET TAKES UP THE NEW-EST FAD.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—The president's daughter, Eleanor, has just made the capital gasp by carrying a cane.

Now Washington society women are putting in rush orders for walking sticks. The fad is bound to be the rage since the president's daughter and wife of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has started it.

The cane Mrs. McAdoo carried is an ebony hued piece with a crooked handle inlaid with silver. Sometimes she swings it in her hand and sometimes she hooks it over her arm.

Nearly every afternoon now Mrs. McAdoo dons a smart tailored walking suit and with Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, President Wilson's niece, goes for a long walk.

Just the other day the president and Mrs. Galt in a white house automobile, passed the pair. What did Mrs. McAdoo do—why she laughed and waved her cane at them.

That gave the official stamp to the fad—and so "carrying a cane" is the thing in Washington.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

H. U. DIEM SUCCEEDS JAMES A. GRAHAM

of Local Car Shops of Pennsylvania.

Announcement was made Friday of two promotions at the Pennsylvania shops that will be of great interest to all the shopmen, as well as many people in other circles.

Harry U. Diem has been appointed general foreman of the car department, succeeding the late James A. Graham, and W. A. Guy has been appointed assistant general foreman, succeeding Mr. Diem. Both men have been with the Pennsylvania a number of years and have earned the recognition they have just received.

H. U. DIEM.

Mr. Diem started work with the company at Wellsville, Ohio, September 16, 1884, in the capacity of a freight car builder. He served the C. & P. division in various positions at Wellsville and at Cleveland until September 1, 1907, when he was transferred to Fort Wayne as assistant general foreman of the company's car shops.

Mr. Guy entered the Pennsylvania employ as a car repairman at Ashtabula, Ohio, in July 1891, and a year later became assistant foreman. January 1, 1909, he was appointed assistant foreman of the car department at Erie, Pa. In October, 1910, he was transferred to Conway as assistant foreman of the car department and in October, 1912, he was transferred to the superintendent of motive power office as assistant general car inspector of the Northwest system. From the latter position he goes to the shops as assistant general foreman.

It is understood that there is to be some changes in the manner of handling the business of the car department, but one of the officials said this morning that the plan had not been fully worked out. It will involve the separation of the east car shops and the car department down town, which includes the planing mills, the lumber yards, the car machine shop, the upholstering department, the cabinet shop, the pattern shop and the cab building shop. When this change is made, an assistant general foreman who will report directly to the master mechanic will be appointed. This will probably make other vacancies which will have to be filled by promotion. The object of an assistant foreman at the down town shops, who shall report directly to the master mechanic is to eliminate frequent trips of the general foreman between the east car shops and the shops down town, which under present methods consumes considerable time.

BUSY AT 'SMITH SHOP.

Will Put on Another Night Gang Next Week.

Foreman F. A. Opatz and his men at the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop are as "busy as bees" getting out the work sent to the shop. In addition to the regular work, the smithies are engaged at present in making machinery for the car shops at Indiana Harbor, which are to be opened to business soon. Foreman Opatz is preparing to put another gang at work in the night shift. The opening of the new shop will not affect work.

SEWING GETS PROMOTION.

Is Made General Storekeeper of the Wash.

Bulletins bearing the signature of T. J. Frier, purchasing agent of the Washash, announce the appointment of A. J. Sewing general storekeeper of the Washash system, with headquarters in the Exchange building at St. Louis. Mr. Sewing was previously chief clerk to Mr. Frier and in performing the duties of that office came here frequently. He is well known in Washash circles in this city and is generally liked.

LOADING SOME FIREMEN.

G. R. & I. Helps Pere Marquette in Time of Need.

In response to an appeal for help from the Pere Marquette company, the G. R. & I. yesterday sent three of its firemen to Grand Rapids to work on the former road awhile. The Pere Marquette became flooded with business all at once and to meet the emergency resorted to borrowing experienced fire from a friendly road. E. A. Pettit, H. F. Cantant and O. C. Fredericks were sent to the P. & M.

RAILROADS TAXED TO LIMIT.

The railroads of nearly every section of the country are being taxed to handle shipments and in some sections the highest previous records are being broken. Reports from shipping centers show this. In commenting on the situation the Toledo Blade says: "Thus far the efforts of railroad officers to keep terminals clear and supply cars have met with success. In the northwest and west some apprehension is felt over the possible results of a cold snap, which would speed up the belated movement of coal, or of a heavy snow."

CARS STRIKE WAGON.

The slow pace at which the cars were moving was the only reason why an accident at Dunkirk, Ohio, on the Pennsylvania, did not result seriously yesterday. At 1:30 o'clock a freight train in charge of Conductor M. Thomas and Engineer H. Shelley was backing on a siding, when the rear cars struck a wagon in which three people were riding. They were thrown out of the vehicle, but none was hurt and the wagon was damaged.

INSIST ON REAL MUSIC.

Vaudeville Audiences No Longer Content With Counterfeits.

The vaudeville audience today embraces people from all walks of life and of all social scales, but on one point this cosmopolitan gathering is a unit. It demands the best there is in the musical world and will not be content with anything else, which accounts for the flattering manner in which Mr. Aldo Randegger, the eminent Italian, is being received at the New Palace this week. He has made several concert tours of this country with marked success and in vaudeville he has been exceptionally well appreciated.

Another artist of real distinction on this bill is Joan Vernie, the premiere American Danseuse, the girl who put Missoula, Mont., on something besides the county map. Miss Vernie has mastered the technique of the dance under the tutelage of Pavlova and other international stars. The novel number in which her dressing room is built out on the stage where she makes her changes so as not to leave the audience alone renders her numbers all the more delightful.

The big laughs on the bill are Fred J. Ardath and Company in the rural sketch "Hiram," Kennedy, Nobody and Platt, the blackface comedians; Burns and Lynn in eccentric dances; Frear, Baggett and Frear, the high speed jugglers; O'Brien Havel and Company in their touch of nonsense, "Sticks and Picks." This is Bargain Week. The light of cut rates will hold out to burn only the remainder of the week.

Triby Pleases Large Audience at the Jefferson.

Triby was the magnet that drew capacity houses to the Jefferson Thursday. This magnificent production was all that could be desired and gave universal satisfaction. The story is too well known to need a review in this column; the screen version is in some respects superior to the speaking version as what is left to your imagination in the latter is visualized for the screen. Tonight will be the last opportunity to see "Triby." Saturday we will have "Neal of the Navy," "The Brink," a Mutual Master Rature, and "Heine and Louie," a comedy. Coming for four days, starting next Tuesday is Geo. Beban in "An Alien," an eight-reel Paramount master production of unusual magnitude. Beban is recognized as the greatest of all Italian impersonators and in "An Alien" he is seen in the crowning effort of his career.

We have the "Hatch" one-button union suits, $1.00; $1.50 and $3.00. PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.

BARRBARITIES IN THE PRESENT WAR GREATER THAN IN CAESAR'S TIME

TURKISH SOLDIERS

Most Frightful Atrocities are Practiced by the Kurds, Turkish Subjects, Who Continue to Torture and Slay the Long-suffering Armenians—The Reported Ferocity of Indian and African Troops Is Tame as Compared With the Methods of the Desert Warriors of Turkey In Asia

MOSQUE OF SAN SOPHIA

Armenians, the race that suffered so greatly from the depredations and massacres of their terrible foe, occupy the northern portion of Turkey in Asia and is on the Black sea. Below is the fertile valley of the Mesopotamia.

The Armenians work their farms and build their homes only to have them wrested away by the Kurds, who either slay the owners and their families or send them into exile.

Armenia is the buffer between the southern part of Russia and the northern part of Turkey and is under Russian rule. The Russians attempted to invade Turkey through Armenia, but were driven back. The Turks declare they have allowed the reprisals on Armenia because that country aided the Russians.

Barbarism still prevails in the twentieth century as has been shown by the terrible acts of the Kurds and Bedouins against the Armenians. Thousands of men, women and children of this unhappy race have been placed on trains and taken to the mountains by the Kurds.

There they are given meager food to last two days and are turned into a desert with instructions that they are free and if they will walk on they will come to a pleasant village. As they walk forth into the desert the Kurds and Bedouins set upon them and those they don't kill are allowed to wander about in the desert until they finally die of thirst or hunger.

Many mothers when about to go into such an exile of death have thrown their babies into the river Euphrates rather than have them share the suffering of their parents.

That barbarism, as cruel and as terrible as that of the most ancient of tribes, might not have become generally known had not the European war brought out the fact in its terrible severity.

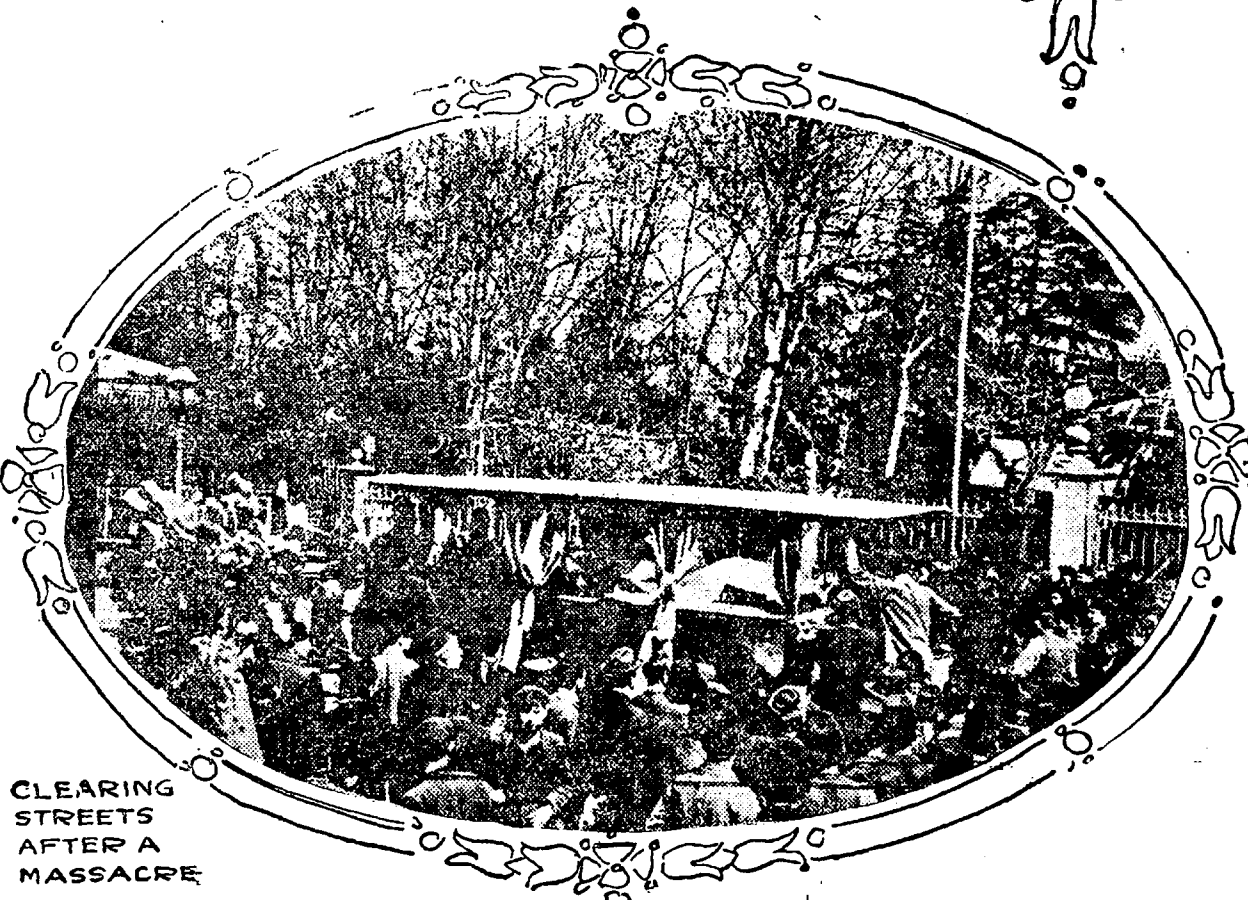

But in the present engagements civilized nations, terrible barbarians, unrestrained in their lust for blood, are practicing the most abject cruelty on other nations. The horror caused by the ravages of these demon-men has become so great that the German nation has cried out against them in the name of humanity.

Not only have the English brought from India and Africa the most terrible and blood-thirsty of their wild men, but the Turks have allowed the terrible Kurds and the wild Bedouins from Asia Minor to flock into Europe and to practice cruelty to their hearts' desire.

OUT-CAESARS CAESAR.

The English have imported their wild men even from the Punjab in upper India and in Afghanistan and Turkey has released the terrible Kurds, a wandering and deadly tribe that never has undergone subjugation and is as wild today as at any time since the creation of the world. While from the war front comes the shocking stories of these wild tribes, there even comes from the United States, itself, the tale of the ravages of another race of wild-men, the Yaqui Indians of Mexico, who burn their victims alive.

Reports from various sources in-

divate that this, the great war of the Twentieth Century, is even more barbaric in ways than the wars of Julius Caesar's time when the captive Belgae were tied to the wheels of chariots and dragged before the shouting Roman populace.

The Kurds are the unrestrained allies of Turkey. They have for ages been the foes of the Armenians. The province of Armenia lies in Turkey in Asia. It is the gateway between Russia and Turkey in the east and is under Russian dominance. To strike at Russia in the east Turkey has had to go through Armenia and before its advance it released the terrible Kurds to satiate their cruel longings.

From London comes the following dispatch:

"The Kurds are gradually but effectively exterminating the Armenians. The manner is to send from each Armenian village each day as many persons as a train can carry. When they arrive at Konish or some adjacent station they are turned out and escorted over the Vaurus mountains.

"Once on the other side they are supplied with rough food enough to last them a few days and told to continue their journey to the neighborhood of Mosul, as they now will be in perfect safety. But in point of fact the region is nothing but a desert, and before many hours marauding bands of Kurds and Bedouins rob and pillage these helpless men, women and children, so that those who are not actually slain die of thirst or hunger.

"The consequence is that many distracted mothers throw their children into the Euphrates rather than see them suffer. Some even sell them before they start the journey.

"An American missionary, who arrived at Constantinople recently, declared he saw as many as 15,000 around one station awaiting to be sent upon that journey from whence none would return. American missionaries scattered about Asia Minor and particularly in the Armenian district gradually are leaving upon the advice of their ambassadors. The attacks on the Armenians are said to be excused by the Turks on the grounds that the Armenians aided the Kurds in taking the town of Van.

"The inhumanity of the Kurds and Bedouins committed on these wretched people has become so great as to require action.

GERMANY PROTESTS.

"In the name of humanity Secretary Robert Lansing of the United States recently called on Count von Bernstorff and asked him to request the German government to intercede with Turkey to the end that such cruelty be stopped.

"Dispatches to Washington say that the Kurds again are engaged in their favorite occupation of slaughtering Armenians—men, women and children—and are a survival from the days when self-respecting men lived only, or at least principally, by the sword. Their wild tribes are scattered throughout Asia Minor, acting to thwart the most modest efforts of the land toward modern comfort, security and organization. Although once fabulously rich the country has not been able to bring forth a sufficiency through all the years that the Kurds have practiced their untamed housekeeping there.

"This housekeeping has consisted of abandoning the summer tent for the winter cottage, after the preliminaries of killing the owner and his family, and the replenishing of goods from stores at the point of rifles, the transaction usually followed by the burning of the looted shop.

"The Kurd is a picturesque citizen and what ever his numbers may be—census matters in Turkey are indefinite—he is much more in evidence than the Armenians and other peoples among whom he lives. The Kurd is the traveler's first impression in Asia Minor and in most cases he remains the predominant one. The Kurds wear clothes of vivid colors; they also wear rags, that is, the poorer ones of the most reckless nondescript. The Kurds ride the best horses, they are always armed and they oppress the Armenians, the travelers and even lord it over the Turks themselves.

"The Kurds have been unable to get a complete mastery over their subjects, the Kurds, and have employed an administration of letting these marauders alone in their wild and barbarous practices. Thus the Kurd massacres Armenians, robs Armenians and travelers and considers both of these occupations his just right. In a useful state the Kurd lives in the hills and herds sheep. He is a pastoral tent dweller in the summer. In the winter he moves to the Mesopotamian plains and either lives in his tent or turns the owner out of a selected house.

His tent is of black homespun goats' hair and his furniture consists of mats, quilts and cooking pots. His children go naked and his women ragged. His board is set with sour milk and when by chance he builds a winter home, it consists of a hole in the ground.

HOME OF THE KURDS.

"The burrow has a flat roof of wattle and clay and is air-tight, smoke tight and light tight. There are small smoke vents in the roof but the whole effect is that of a prairie dog's dwelling. Within it is as light and airy as a low level coal mine.

"To be of Ashirah blood, in Kurdish estimation, is to be really worth while. The Kurds have a certain conscious superiority that gives them a bearing of nobleness and dignity. A Kurdish chief is an impressive, often an affable individual. These people are not inclined to settle down and they do not want others to do so. In some districts, however, they have taken lands wholesale from the Armenians, massacring the owners, and have thus become rich landholders. Occasionally the Kurds attempt civilization, but it is almost always at someone else's expense.

"They reject the custom of veiling their women. They reverence fire and are on subjects of religion altogether liberal. Many of them are heretic Moslems and some few are Christians. Their little feudal organizations are their nationalities and their patriotism is a devotion to the privilege of being able to live at the expense of others. They are medieval with all the headstrong irregularities of medieval times. It was not until 1913 that the first Kurdish newspaper was published. This was printed in Constantinople. As, however, there is no such thing as a definite written Kurdish language, this paper is carried on under some difficulty. There was something called a Kurdish movement before the war, but its labors seemed hopeless. The latest reports from the haunts of the Kurds tell of the massacre of thousands of Armenians."

SAVAGE TRIBE.

While the above dispatch to Washington gives a good description of the Kurds it but slightly touches on their utter barbarity and remorseless cruelty. This has become so pronounced that early after the alliance with the Turks, the German government cut itself off from all responsibility for the actions of this savage tribe and even at present through diplomatic sources has implored Berlin to curb this race of Barbarians so that shame may not come to the cause of the entente.

That their cruelty has been almost unspeakable goes without saying. The Kurds long have been the source of fear to missionaries sent into Asia Minor. They fear nothing and never hesitate to murder. To the Turks they have been an effective barrier against a Russian invasion through Armenia. Reinforced by Turkish troops the Russians dare not attempt to pass the barrier formed by those veritable mad men of the desert.

The cruel practices of the Kurds are such as to even shock the Turks themselves, but the latter race still is unable to curb the wild habits of their so-called subjects. Their habits of torturing the Armenians has been of long standing and has for years shocked the civilized nations of the world. Many an Armenian's family has been found slaughtered and their bodies floating in the river Euphrates while in their home a Kurd and his ragged family next day ruled.

The war on a whole has become, in certain ways, a frightful contest between barbarians and civilized races, so that all the world is crying out against such practices.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR.

Miss Francis Day Painfully Hurt in Accident Thursday Evening.

In attempting to run in front of a street car which she had to board, at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening, Miss Francis Day, 19 years old, of Paulding, O., was struck by the fender of the car and knocked down. She was rendered unconscious, deep gashes being cut in her forehead and chin, besides an abrasion on the knee. She was removed to the Lutheran hospital. Miss Day was unfamiliar with the traffic rules and waited on the wrong side of the street for the car she intended to take. When she saw that the car was not going to stop she attempted to run around in front of it.

CITY WATER WORKS IS GIVEN PRAISE

But State Examiners Say Big Expenditures Are Approaching.

That the management and administration of the city waterworks department are efficient and highly praiseworthy but that heavy expenditures for improvements will soon be necessary are two pointed and important conclusions stated by James F. Hoefling and Leonard R. Schrader, field examiner for the state accounting board, in their report on the recent examination of the affairs of that department of Fort Wayne's municipal government. The report has just been transmitted to Mayor William J. Hosey by Gilbert H. Hendren, chief of the accounting board, and it covers the period from Jan. 1, 1914, to June 30, 1915.

It is shown that the bonded debt was last year reduced $15,500 out of the revenues of the department and that the bonded debt at the close of the period of examination was $246,000. There has been a marked improvement in the keeping of the records by the auditor of the department and Secretary Charles J. Beuret, who is the executive head of the department, is extolled for his management and for having impressed the heads of his divisions with his own high ideals of public service.

The report notes that the city's practice of furnishing free water for street washing, fire protection, hydrant flushing, school buildings, city buildings, libraries, parks, fire engine houses, public fountains and troughs still exists and that a vast amount of water is pumped for this purpose for which the city receives no revenues, though loss is now partly offset by the fact that the city requires the waterworks department to pay its own interest on the department's bonded indebtedness. The plant cannot be put on a paying basis, says the report until it receives compensation for service that it now renders free. Nor can it begin to set up a projected fund until the service is abandoned. The age of the plant and its present condition forecasts that provision must soon be made for a heavy expense for extensions and improvements. The cost of construction during the year was $60,435.96.

MAYOR INVENTS TRAFFIC SIGNAL.

Mayor William J. Hosey, dissatisfied with the various types of mechanical signalling devices for directing corner traffic, has invented one that he believes will overcome the objections found with devices already tried or examined and supply all the advantages of any of them. It consists of an upright rotary staff carrying disc about sixteen inches in diameter. On both sides of this disc is the direction "stop" in red letters, large enough to be legible a good distance. The staff is to be carried in a tube that will be let into the pavement and will be rigidly plumb. The device will be given a trial at Calhoun and Washington streets Saturday.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Liberal receipts and fine weather tended today to make the wheat market sag. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4c off to 1/4c up, with December 1.03 1/2 to 1.04 1/2, and May at 1.04 1/2 to 1.05 1/2, were followed by slight gains and then a down turn to well below last night's level all around.

The close was nervous, 1/4c to 1/2c net higher, with December at 1.04 1/2 to 1.05 1/2 and May at 1.05 1/2 to 1.06 1/2. Corn, as well as wheat, felt the bearish influence of good weather. After opening 1/4c lower the market rallied a little and then declined lower than before. The close was strong at 1/4c to 1/2c net advance over way with other grain. Packers buying lifted provisions.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Nov. 12.—Gains of one to three points featured today's early dealings in war shares and other issues coming under the specification, while automobile stocks, notably Willys-Overland, recorded greater advances. Oil shares, particularly those of Mexican origin, were substantially higher but Steel at 37 1/2, rose half a point, consolidated Gas of Baltimore, newly listed, opened at 11 1/2 to 112. Aside from fractional gains in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Erie, railways figured to no extent in early trading.

Specialties fell one to two points during the first hour but this was more than counterbalanced by greater strength in Coppers, American Smelting adding 3/4 to yesterday's advance at 101. Extensive gains were again confined to motor stocks, Wyllis-Overland rising 12 to 245. U. S. Industrial Alcohol was 1/4 points higher at 115 1/2 and Distillers' securities 3/4 at 48 1/2. Bethlehem Steel at 42 1/2 was down nine points. Bonds were strong. Coppers and specialties rose to higher levels in the final hour and steel repeated its recent maximum of 88 1/2. The closing was irregular.

William O. Martin, an imported motorman in the employ of the Fort Wayne Traction company, was found guilty in the city court Friday morning of public intoxication and Judge H. W. Waveland Kerr fined him $5 and costs. The fine was paid by a representative of the company. Martin's arrest followed his running his car into a jitney bus at Creighton avenue and Anthony boulevard at 5 o'clock Thursday evening. Patrolman Louis Kammer, who just started down town to report for duty, heard of the collision and went to investigate. Martin refused to give his name or answer other questions and the officer, noting that the motorman was under the influence of drink, and that a crowd was gathering, ordered him to take his car down into the city. He was taken from it at the transfer corner and escorted to headquarters to be questioned by Chief of Police Charles Lenz. The man was obstinate and profane and the chief ordered him locked up. Officer Kammer testified that Martin was drunk, and Chief Lenz testified that he smelled strongly of whiskey and was evidently under the influence of intoxicants. Prominently displayed on the lapel of Martin's coat was a "Safety First" badge such as is worn by employees of the company.

Patrolman Louis Kammer, who just started down town to report for duty, heard of the collision and went to investigate. Martin refused to give his name or answer other questions and the officer, noting that the motorman was under the influence of drink, and that a crowd was gathering, ordered him to take his car down into the city. He was taken from it at the transfer corner and escorted to headquarters to be questioned by Chief of Police Charles Lenz. The man was obstinate and profane and the chief ordered him locked up. Officer Kammer testified that Martin was drunk, and Chief Lenz testified that he smelled strongly of whiskey and was evidently under the influence of intoxicants. Prominently displayed on the lapel of Martin's coat was a "Safety First" badge such as is worn by employees of the company.

LAGRANGE MAN KILLED BY CARS.

L. D. Hughes Struck on Sidetrack of Grand Rapids Road at Sturgis.

Lagrange, Ind., Nov. 12.—Seeking shelter from the rain behind some cars on a sidetrack of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad at Sturgis, late yesterday afternoon, L. D. Hughes, one of the best known men of this city, was fatally injured when a freight train entered the siding and bumped the cars forward, running over the unfortunate man. Both legs and one arm were shockingly mangled and he died a half hour later in the office of Dr. Kane in Sturgis. Mr. Hughes was superintending the loading of pickles into a car for the Lutz & Schramm company, of Ohio, for which he had been superintendent of several pickle plants in northern Indiana and southern Michigan for the past fifteen years. He was slightly deaf and failed to hear warnings of his danger. Mr. Hughes was born in Ohio seventy-six years ago, and came early to this country. He served in the Twenty-third Indiana volunteers during the civil war, answering the first call for volunteers. He is survived by a widow, one daughter and two sons. The remains have been brought here for burial.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT. WITH "DANDERINE"

Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots fall out, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 12.—"And I've never taken another smoke since," concluded his story of how he had narrowly escaped death, when the Confederate gunboat Alabama was sunk by the Monitor. For John Prussia, aged 73, is the last survivor of that famous civil war battle.

ployed by the Pacific Mail Steamship company in Yokohama, and now that the line is out of business he is in San Francisco en route to Pennsylvania, where he has a brother.

"I suppose," Prussia said, "that this modern fighting is fiercer than what we had in '64, but that was not enough for me. I was a common sailor on the Alabama. I was so busy helping around the deck that I don't know the details of the fight very well, but the old craft shook time and again as the shells went into use and I saw comrades after comrades fall to the deck. And then the cry came that we were going down, but I knew it as well as anybody. I used to smoke and drink quite a bit in those days. Well, I slid down a rope and into the sea. Probably two miles off was a French packet, which I knew would mean life if I could reach it. I swam. But the tobacco had not my wind. I never will know just how I reached that ship, but I did. I was nearly dead from exhaustion. And I have never taken another smoke since. As for a drink, why if I should take a glass of beer, I'd tell you things that would make history ashamed of itself."

The campaign is to last seven days, and it is believed that in that period the sum required will be subscribed. Sunday there were special services held in all the local churches to promote the campaign, speakers from out of the city occupying most of the pulpits.

NEW THEORY FOR BLAZE.

Indiana Man Thinks Fresh Laid Eggs Set His Haymow Afire.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Nov. 10.—What sounds like a new theory of fire causation was presented to the local firemen by Robert Homaker, a wholesale meat dealer, whose barn burned four hours, Saturday night, before the fire was put out. Homaker says a hen got into the bottom of the hay and laid eggs and that the heat generated by the eggs caused spontaneous combustion. The firemen say green hay and lack of ventilation probably was the cause.

PURDUE TACKLES ANOTHER PROBLEM

University is Lending a Hand to the Country Church.

(By Walfred Lindstrom).

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 12.—The work of the country church is no small thing. It is a man's job. There are many things talked about and proposed in these twentieth century agricultural days, but the biggest of all these things is the country church. It is a big problem, because most people, including the church membership, think it a little one, or they don't think at all and are indifferent. The failure to see problems make them all the greater. Too many have been satisfied to give the country church a school girl's work to do, when it has all the time been aching to do the man's job.

After years of faithful work, Purdue university has come to the conclusion that better hogs and better corn are a secondary consideration to the development of character and the improvement of rural conditions. It has also come to the conclusion that the church is the proper agency through which this important work should be done, and that it would be worth their while to give of their time and effort to promote the work of the rural church.

With this idea in view the rural pastors of the state were invited to meet at the university last May, to consider their many problems. A large number of ministers were present and as a result it was thought advisable to take the inspiration of the meeting to the churches in the various districts. Following this plan there will be held at Auburn, Ind.,

under the direction of Purdue university a Rural Church Workers' conference, beginning Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 7th, and continuing through the next afternoon. The university will provide the speakers for the entire program. They will be people who have not only had the theory but who know the practical side as well. Ample time for the presentation of local problems, for proper discussion and suggestion will be given, making the meeting in the real sense of the word, a conference.

The rural church is to be congratulated that it will have the help and influence of such a great institution in the solution of its tremendous problems. If the local ministers and church workers will be willing to co-operate there is no reason why the church can't become, not only the biggest thing and strongest agency for the development of individual character, but the greatest factor for social uplift and community betterment.

ACCESSORIES THEFT CHARGED.

Illinois Men Held on Federal Court Indictment in Unusual Case.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 12.—Charging that they had automobile accessories sent from Indianapolis under assumed names, C. O. D., and then broke into the depot and stole the parts, five men, three living at Neoga, in Cumberland county, and two at Mattoon, were indicted in the federal court of this district. The men are John C. Miller, who owns a 500-acre farm near Neoga; his son, Tony C. Miller, and Logan Estes, of Neoga, and William Royer and Isaac Flaherty, of Mattoon.

The men denied the charges and have given $5,000 bond each. Federal officers say they found on an automobile belonging to John C. Miller new parts which correspond to those stolen.

How to Prevent Croup.
It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johns, Elida, Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boy is subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and when he began having that croupy cough I would give him one or two doses of it and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

THE UNDERWORLD.

There is a saying often heard in the underworld, to the effect that there is a sucker born every minute. How true this may be I cannot vouch for, as I never was much good at mathematics, but my friend and former cellmate, "Max the Jew," told me yesterday that two born a minute is nearer the mark.

"It must be at least two a minute," said Max, "or how could business keep up so?"

"You don't mean business," I corrected, "you mean graft."

"Graft" retorted Max, "I ain't a grafter any more. That's a sucker's game, I am a business man, strict business in a store—no more taking jail chances for mine."

I had just met Max on S— street, for the first time in several years, and as he had looked more prosperous than I had ever seen him before—well groomed and tailored—I stopped and renewed our acquaintance, out of the curiosity his wealthy appearance aroused in me. When I knew Max formerly he had been a stall for pickpockets.

A LUCKY CROOK.

His remark concerning taking no more chances led me to draw him out about his present occupation, and as we walked along he told me

Last week John Henry (argot for sucker) a celery grower from Kalamazoo, came to Chicago to transact a bit of business. Early Tuesday afternoon, his errand finished, having nothing particular to do until train time, John strolled along S— street enjoying the balmy air of the vacation city. Passing a small jewelry store with an ornate front and rich interior, his attention was drawn by a bargain in watches displayed in the window. After some hesitation he entered the store.

Our friend Max came forward and took him in tow, and before long sold him a solid gold watch, "worth every cent of $100," full jeweled movement, eighteen carat case, for $50 cash, together with a convincing piece of paper called an everlasting guarantee (but which, in reality, is a certificate of membership to the Sucker's Club of Illinois, unlimited.)

The watch is worth $4, but under the spell of Max's "oil" and the eighteen carat stamp on the solid silver case thinly gold plated John "falls like a log." It happened that John knew a jewelry salesman stopping at the hotel and to him, an hour later, our celery grower showed his purchase and found out he had been tricked. With watch in one hand, guarantee in the other, and rage in his heart, John hurried the following story. "You see, Peters, one time I used to sell 'slum' (fake jewelry) and I got to know a lot of the manufacturers of the phony stuff. By luck, when I came out of 'stir' (prison) this last time I ran across a guy named Moranski that in the old days was in that line. I told him I was just out of hock and broke, and I asked him to grub-stake me to some slum to peddle.

"Tell the Sergeant. He'll Fix You Up All Right," Said the Patrolman.

"It was sure my lucky day, Peters. Moranski gave me a card and told me to come to that address early next morning all dolled up ready to go to work selling goods behind a counter.

"The next morning I was there with bells on and got a job as a clerk in a swell fitted up little jewelry store on the main stem. Talk about suckers falling for phony slum—a locket worth a dime brings anywhere from 25 cents to $1.50 with a 25 per cent rakeoff for the salesman."

Max went on to tell of learning the stock and tag marks till I grew tired and said with disgust, "Aw, that is nothing but petty larceny."

"Petty larceny, hey?" snorted Max with some heat. "I got $60 for my bit yesterday; is that cheap graft?" And so, while his grafting pride was smarting under the lash of that "petty larceny" Max plunged into the meat of his story, which I will tell here in my own way.

back to the little store.

There Mr. Smooth Moranski, a stoutish gentleman of imperturbable calm, assured J. Henry that he must be mistaken in the address. "My dear sir, show me the person who sold you that watch—it never was in our stock I am sure."

For the very good reason that Max was not there J. H. could not point him out or anyone that looked like him.

"These two gentlemen and myself constitute our full force of employees," said the suave Moranski. "This should be brought to the attention of the police," he added as he ushered the bewildered man from Kalamazoo to the door.

TIME FOR GETAWAY.

As Moranski had said, there was only one course to pursue and it was with something of hopeful confidence that the sucker approached the officer on the corner and told him his troubles. The cop, hearing the tale of woe, smiled a pitying smile as he directed John to the nearest station-house. "Tell the sergeant. He'll fix you up all right," said the patrolman.

From the police station a plainclothes man is detailed to go to the store with John, with the loud-voiced command "and bring that thief in with you when you come back."

An hour later he is back the second time in the station-house listening to the detective tell the sergeant or captain that "it is a puzzling case, boss; the store manager says he has no clerk of that description and no watches like this one in stock. He showed us his books and satisfactorily accounts for his two clerks—maybe Mr. Henry has the wrong shop in spite of the fact he says he remembers the place and the firm name over the door. There is no address or firm name on this guarantee."

"Well, Mr. Henry," said the commanding police officer, "we will detail our best men on this case and get the crook who robbed you."

AND NOTHING TO SHOW.

John Henry has not got much satisfaction, unless the knowledge that he was rolled for his money can be called satisfying—he has not even the phony watch for a souvenir because the plainclothes man kept that for evidence in hunting down the thief. But the most interesting part of the affair is—where did Max go?

Almost at John Henry's heels he left the store. He did not go far—only a few blocks away is another small jewelry store—another of a chain of a half dozen scattered about the city, all owned by the same men. And there are several of these chains of small jewelry shops operated on the strength of the sucker being born every minute.

"But Max," I asked, "how can they keep right on doing business without being pinched?"

"Say, are you such a simp as to suppose the cops are not in with the play? That's what makes it safe. Most of the marks blow town before they get wise they have been trimmed and then it would cost them good hard cash to come back to make a 'belch' (complaint); the

How to Bankrupt the Underworld

The slicker, formerly called a bunco-steerer, is often a criminal who has discovered that he has intelligence enough to outwit society and the law without using desperate methods.

Perhaps he has served a prison term because of cupidty. Upon his release from "stir" he determines to play a game of easy money which will have few dangers and, if he can "outsmart" his victims, plans an "easy money" scheme which depends for success upon his own failing—cupidty—a weakness his victim shares. The strangest part of the game of "easy money" is that the victim has been taught from childhood that "you can't get something for nothing." If this truth was accepted by all men the business of the bunco-man would soon be bankrupt.

guys that get hep to themselves in Chicago are stalled by the bulls.

"Some weeks at — street station-house they have had ten to twenty suckers putting up a holler, but they never get a cent back. There ain't hardly a day passes that some chump copper don't get staked to a 'flair' ($5 bill) by the boss, besides what he sends into the main guys for protection. Pretty soft for the uniformed burglars, ain't it?"

"Do you sell any other crooked stuff except watches?" I asked.

"Sure we do. Anything in the line of jewelry a John Henry or Jane asks for they get and get good," was the proud reply of Max.

"Say Max, what is your brother Sam doing these days?" I asked.

"Ten years," was the laconic reply.

"Is that so? What for?"

"He was nailed for a 'lemon' game two years ago and got a ten spot in Sing Sing. Sam was the slickest lemon steerer that ever held a cue in his hand," boasted Max.

For the benefit of those who have never been "steered" against the 'lemon' and for some of the many who have lost hundreds and thousands of dollars to the workers in this line of graft, which originated in Chicago about fifteen years ago, I will explain what the lemon is.

The fifteen balls in the game of pool are numbered and colored to distinguish each from the other and the No. 1 ball is always a bright yellow. Thus, from its color likeness, it is called the lemon ball.

Tom, the steerer, an expert pool player, flashily dressed, leaves his two confederates at the Fashion billiard hall and goes out to corral a sucker. Across the street is the well-known Theater Grand.

One after another he approaches likely looking men, asks for a match and says "Stranger, where is the Theater Grand? I am lost in this burg—only got in from Philly last night. What—you don't say? And me right in front of it. That sticks me for an ice cream soda. Will you have a drink or cigar on me—I don't drink myself because I have to have steady nerves in my business."

HESITATE AND YOU'RE LOST.

If the come-on will stand and listen he is lost. With rapid spiel Tom explains how he came to Chicago to play a world's champion pool artist a match and shows his card (fake name) inscribed "Champion Pool Player, management of Augustus Blank.

Halting in front of the Fashion, Tom says, "Here's a billiard hall; come in, I'll show you how to clean up a pool table. I'll pay the bill."

Inside, he says, "Here, take a cue, I don't want to attract attention by playing alone."

With prodigious ease he makes marvelous shots—pockets all the balls in championship style, while John Chicago Henry admires. Harry, the "butter-in," now saunters over to them and butts in with a polite "Do you care to make the game three-handed, gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," says Tom, winking at John Henry, "but," he adds, "we are betting $10 on the one ball. Whoever pockets the yellow ball wins $10 from each player."

"That suits me," assents genial Harry, turning to the rack to select a cue.

While his back is turned Tom whispers to J. H., "We will divide this boob's money. Here take this ten spot and pay me when I win, but drop out and let me play him alone next game."

QUICK WORK AND BIG PAY.

Tom makes the lemon ball with ease—J. H. pays him the $10 and quits. Harry displays an amazing fat roll of yellow bills while settling with Tom. In short order J. H. sees Tom win three games and Harry pay him $40 in all.

The steerer bewails to his victim the fact that he has only a few dollars with him saying, "If you can dig up a few hundred to show this mark we can take him for his whole bankroll on one game. It's like stealing the money. He can't play to keep himself warm."

With such apparently easy money in sight John's cupidty is aroused; half of Harry's roll looks good to him. "Say, can you hold him while I go and get some dough out of the bank?" he asks Tom.

"Sure, if you hurry. Get all you can to make a big flash with."

J. H. hurries away, shadowed by Phil, a third lemon worker, who never loses sight of the mark and returns at his heels to the Fashion. John has been to the bank, drawn $1,000, and the shadow so reports to the crooks. On his return J. H. finds Tom still playing with Harry and learns he has won every game and is $80 winner.

After a whispered consultation between Tom and John Henry, Tom proposes to Harry to "make the game worth while. My friend here will cover any amount you would like to bet."

With practiced art the two fellow conspirators play their parts. Harry, with the reckless abandon of a fearless gambler, throws his roll on the pool table and says, "Cover that if you can."

Coolly and confidently Tom counts to see how much is there and finds $1,100. Bill the shadower is now sitting looking on and is made stakeholder, as being a stranger to the bettors. The game is played and Harry wins by an apparently clumsy fluke, or else Tom loses by a seemingly natural accident. Five times out of ten the victim will dig up more money "to get even," and be trimmed over again.

SAYS WARFARE WILL LAST FOR CENTURY

Englishman Who Became a German Discusses the Prospects.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—Houston Stewart Chamberlain, who, although the son of an English admiral, has become a German, has contributed to one of the Hamburg newspapers a statement of his views on the present and future relations between England and Germany.

He is convinced that the war between the two countries will last for at least a hundred years.
He does not mean, he explains, that the present fighting will continue for so long a time, but rather that an international struggle has commenced of which the world-war is but a phase.
"The German word 'krieg,' observes Mr. Chamberlain, 'means much more than the English word 'war,' for the French 'guerre'; it really signifies an obstinate persistence in the endeavor to accomplish some purpose. In this sense, the war between England and Germany was long feared, and every effort was made to avert it, but in the end it was wittingly brought about. Now we must steel ourselves, for the contest will be conducted as bitterly after peace has been concluded as it is being conducted now."

The Germans will easily mend their relations with Italy and Russia, declares Chamberlain. France is likely to be a disturbing element, but he is convinced that force and sagacity will ultimately master that difficulty. "With England, however, the matter is different. For the struggle between England and Germany is no mere fight for physical ascendancy. Each nation wishes to secure the ascendancy for its world-philosophy. The essential aim of the English Weltanschauung is the development of the will; the German is devoted to artistically-directed knowledge and action."

"The English philosophy produces energetic, able, but ignorant and undisciplined individuals, whereas the German method produces one great mental power in the individual and the obedient submission of all to one great purpose. Thus, the average Englishman is not nearly so well educated as the German, and is less given to reflection."

A situation has now arisen, the writer contends, which will continue until one nation subjugates the other, for the two cannot possibly live on the same footing near and with one another. Diplomatic agreements and courts of arbitration cannot in any way affect such a situation, for this is a war between two ideals of life, and it must be fought out, in war with firearms, and in peace with intellectual weapons.

"There is no need for hatred in this war," says Chamberlain, "and the German may properly perceive and acknowledge all the excellent things accomplished by the English method of life and thought."

"But it is impossible by any argument or proof to convince the Englishman that he and his race are not predestined to rule the earth. The only way to teach the Englishman that he is wrong is to compel him by force to recognize it. Once Germany holds the power in its hand, it can permit the English and others to follow the bent of their own minds in their own sphere. But in the meantime Germany must be strong and inflexible."

TWIN SIX PACKARD

Arrives in Fort Wayne.

New Departure in Motor Car Production.

The new Twin Six Packard has arrived in Fort Wayne and can be seen at the salesroom of the Randall Auto Sales Corporation, 120 West Washington St., the temporary quarters of the Randall-Stults Co.

In external appearance the new Twin Six cars retain the well known hallmarks of the Packard line. They resemble their forerunners although the hood is shorter, the radiator tapered to conform, and the running boards are set about two inches nearer to the ground.

It is in the new Packard power plant that a startling advance in the art is at once revealed. While the entire chassis gives evidence of the continued refinement of detail, the motor offers marked improvements which are appreciated at first glance.

Notwithstanding the increased power and ability, the engine is smaller and more compact than before. The Twin Six motor, of three-inch bore and five-inch stroke, is exactly what the name implies, two six-cylinder blocks arranged in V form, with an included angle of sixty degrees. Clutch and transmission are made part of a unit power plant. In reality this design is a most logical outgrowth of the Packard Six, declared by many disinterested authorities to be the highest development of the six-cylinder art.—Advertisement.

COLLAPSE IS UNEXPLAINED.

Frank Farrell Came to His Death as Result of Unavoidable Accident.

Frank Farrell, who was killed Wednesday morning in the collapse of the scaffolding at the new storage plant building at the Fort Wayne Electric works, came to his death as the result of an "unavoidable accident," according to the verdict of Coroner Edward H. Kruse. None of the witnesses could give any reason for the collapsing of the tower, the evidence showing it was strongly and substantially built.

WABASH ISN'T THE ONLY FOOTBALL TEAM

What's the Use of Scraping When Pine Village is Here.

Fort Wayne football fans are getting tired of the constant and continual squabbling with Wabash. The Friars announced several months ago that Wabash would be on the boards Nov. 21, and following close on the heels of this proclamation came the noise of battle. For the Friars had staged a preliminary engagement with the Wabash management.

Then ever since that the business managers of the teams have kept up a wrangling, the end of which is not yet in sight, and which simply slides from one matter to another. Last night, it assumed the proportions of a deadlock, when the matter of a suitable official was brought up.

Now, lookie here, Friars. Lay away from Wabash if necessary, but for the love of Peter quit wrangling. Wabash has a certain egotistical viewpoint that it will be impossible to break away from in a hundred years. It is the town's chief characteristic. Wabash feels that the world belongs at its feet in business and social activity and in sports. Its whole attitude is one of arrogance and its people have fostered this idea for years.

It would do Wabash good if the Friars simply would cancel the Wabash game for the 21st and fill in with some other coking good team, and then get a special date with Pine Village. It was Pine Village that defeated Wabash, and it would make a mighty good scrap. Wabash would like to play Fort Wayne, but if the local management would cut the W. A. A. off its calendar for a year no one in the world would object.

SEATTLE GRABS ENTIRE HOCKEY TEAM AND MOVES IT.

Seattle, Wash., backers of ice hockey have a way of doing things that is all their own.

The Seattle hockey team was not winning enough games, it seems, so the backers canceled the entire lot, went over into Canada and grabbed all the players on a team that was going like a house afire.

Hockey teams have been raided of one or two players before, but this is the first time a city grabbed an entire outfit and moved it.

ANN ARBOR COMING WITH GREAT ELEVEN

Experts Call Independents Michigan's Fastest Team.

The Ann Arbor Independents, who play here next Sunday, are considered by Cayou, the famous Carlisle player, the fastest team in Michigan and one of the fastest in the country. He says they play a better brand of football than either the Detroit Herd or the Mac Park Maroons of Detroit. When it is realized that these teams are the ones that have been giving Canton, Massillon and other central Ohio towns a taste of defeat, it will be seen that Ann Arbor will show the locals some regular football. Zaring, who has played with Indiana university, for the past three seasons without missing a game, will be a Friar tackle, and Checkaye is getting into shape to work in old time form by Sunday.

DE ORO, PAST 50, AFTER TITLE

(By Brown Holmes).

Alfred De Oro, past 50, thinks his eye is still keen enough and his hand steady enough for him to win back the three-cushion billiard championship.

The title was forfeited by William Huey, who said being champion took too much time from his engraving business, and will go to the winner of a match Dec. 2, 3 and 4 between De Oro and August Kleckhefer, of Chicago.

De Oro has been pushing the ivories over the green cloth thirty-five years. For eighteen consecutive years he was pool champion of the world. That's longer than any other man ever held a title in any other line. The nearest to that record is Frank Kramer, bicycle champion fifteen years.

De Oro was born in Cuba. He came to the United States when ten to go to school. When he returned to Cuba on a vacation trip he and his brother started for church one Sunday morning, but stopped at a pool hall. De Oro's brother taught him to handle the cue and he has been at it ever since.

At the time of the Spanish-American war De Oro was quite wealthy. He lost nearly all his money and went to playing pool to earn a living for himself and family.

The Cuban took part in a professional pool tourney for the first time in 1887. He won the title in 1889. In 1890 he was beaten by Al Powers, but won back the title and was unbeaten in eighteen years. Benny Allen, of Kansas City, a much younger player, took the title from him.

De Oro did not break into three-cushion billiards until 1904. Four years later he won the championship. Since then he has won it and lost it several times.

In his match with Kleckhefer he will play with two favorite cues. He has used one of them thirty-one years, the other twenty-four.

MORROW NOW ADMITS IT.

Finally Concedes Election of Stanley in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 12.—The election of former Congressman Augustus O. Stanley, of Henderson, democrat, as governor of Kentucky was conceded in a statement issued last night by Edwin P. Morrow, of Somerset, republican gubernatorial candidate in the election of November 2. Mr. Morrow also set at rest widespread rumors that the republicans might contest the election of Mr. Stanley before the legislature.

Until last night republican managers had claimed a victory for Mr. Morrow. Returns from 120 counties in the state showed a plurality for Mr. Stanley of slightly more than 300 votes.

LES DARCY LOOKS LIKE COMING CHAMP

The next heavyweight ring champion is liable to come from Australia, the country that produced one heavy champion—Bob Fitzsimmons, and other good fighters.

The prospect is Les Darcy, the youngster who knocked all the stars of Australia cold, then started Fistiana by knocking out Eddie McGoorty and followed with a victory over Jimmy Clabby.

First Darcy was heard of as a lightweight. In a short time he was a middleweight. He is growing so rapidly it is said his career in the middle division, although short, is about at an end. According to reports he can no longer make the middleweight limit and retain all his steam.

Darcy is only 19 and it is hard to tell where he will stop in the matter of weight. It is predicted that he will be a heavyweight even before fans of the United States get a chance to see him perform.

There is no heavyweight in sight right now who seems to have a chance to beat Jess Williams. But Darcy, at the gait he is going in the ring and he rate he is growing, looks like the fellow who, before much time has passed, will be a real match for the present champion.

YOUNG GIRL SAYS SHE'S BAD BANDIT

Runs Away from Home, Cuts Off Hair and Sleeps in a Cave.

New York, Nov. 12.—Assuming the name of "Bill Dalton, Bandit Chief of the Ozarks," Dorothy Wallace, runaway school girl, is hiding in the woods near Delawanna, N. J. She has cut off her long chestnut braids and is wearing a tramps clothes. Perhaps she thinks she looks like the desperate robber whose role she has assumed, but those who have caught a glimpse of her say that her girlish figure and actions betray her.

Dorothy, who is 13, but who appears to be 17, even when attired in her school frocks, ran away from her home at 275 River road, Passaic, N. J. She never wanted to go to school and she was particularly fond of the literature of desperadoes that thrills boys of her age.

Caddies on the Yontakah Country club's links at Delawanna, saw her emerge from the woods Tuesday. At first they believed she was a tramp, but when they observed her girlish walk they knew that she was Dorothy Wallace, the missing girl, whose description had been sent broadcast.

These caddies started toward her and she darted into the woods. They notified her mother, the wife of an engineer of construction on the Passaic Valley Trunk sewer, and Mrs. Wallace hurried to the links. With others she entered the woods and soon saw fleeting glimpses of the girl as she darted about. They called to her and tried to overtake her, but she was too swift for them and disappeared in the dense woods.

They found a cave in which the child had slept on a bed of autumn leaves several nights, remnants of lunches, begged or "acquired" from neighboring farmhouses, and the dress she had worn when she left school.

In the cave were found pieces of paper on which appeared in Dorothy's writing: "I am 'Bill' Dalton, bandit leader of the Ozarks," "Billy Dalton" and "William John Dalton."

The mother wept when she found the two long braids of chestnut hair which Dorothy had clipped off. Her hair had been admired by all who knew her.

The police sent men through the woods about Delawanna, all with lanterns, and it was said the search would be continued until she was found.

MAY TAX PROFITS ON MUNITIONS OF WAR

Question is Certain to Be Brought Up at Coming Congress.

By Gilson Gardner.
Washington, Nov. 12.—Why not tax the profits of war munitions manufacture? This question will be insistently asked during the coming session of congress. The taxation question must be settled even before the military preparedness program can be logically taken up. The failure of the income tax law due to its secrecy provisions and the fact that most of the rich men dodge it, has made the revenue situation even more acute. It has aroused talk of inheritance taxes and even brought to the front advocates of the tax on unearned land values.

But nothing is more obvious than the logic of the proposal to tax the huge profits which are now accruing from the manufacture of war materials. The vast increase in this industry is hinted at in a few figures available on our exports. For example, it appears from the government returns that the value of cartridges exported during August, 1914, (the first month of the European war), was $154,080, while in August, 1915, it was $2,284,540. The same jump is found to apply to gunpowder, other explosives and firearms. For instance, the exports of gunpowder in August, 1914, were $16,821, and in August, 1915, they reached the figure of $5,206,118. Other explosives exported in August, 1914, were valued at $26,336, and in August, 1915, they reached a total value of $6,967,046. The month before was even larger—$9,329,303. In August, 1914, the exports of firearms was valued at $208,644. By January, 1915, this had jumped to $2,156,757.

Since August, 1914, we have exported cartridges to the total amount of $29,114,711; gunpowder valued at $14,952,801; other explosives, $34,001,929, and firearms to amount of $11,800,093. To tax these articles would be much simpler than reaching incomes, since they all have to clear at customs ports and appear in ship's papers.

How engrossing the subject of matrimony may be to a president of the United States is indicated by the fact that there have been no cabinet meetings since the Arabic was sunk, nor any meetings with the newspaper correspondents since the president returned from Harlakenden house. The "pitiless publicity" is now mostly handed out by Secretary Tumulty. And one member of the cabinet remarked recently that if things went on as they are going he would have to have an introduction to the president the next time he met him.

Literally thousands of requests to congressmen and the superintendent of documents have been made asking for the Walsh Industrial Relations Commission report. Congressmen are now talking of printing a supply to be sold by the superintendent of documents. This would not meet the situation at all. The people who want and need this report are not able to pay for a high-priced document such as this might be made if all the parts were printed. What is needed is a large supply of the separate reports at the disposal of senators and representatives to supply free on request of their constituents. Constituents who want to get copies of this document will do well to hurry in a request to their congressman.

"The outstanding feature of the business situation in October," says the monthly bulletin of one of New York's biggest banks, "has been the fact that all trade has been unmistakably better. We expressed the opinion two months ago that as the season for fall trade came on the country would swing into a broad, general state of activity and that expectation has been realized. Every part of the country now sends good reports and the contrast they make with the conditions of a year ago is calculated to inspire the most profound sentiments of relief, satisfaction and gratitude."

The bulletin goes on in this strain, giving much detail for several thousand words. Even the report of the federal reserve board confirms the general story of prosperity and adds that it has reached the San Francisco banks and the Pacific coast generally. The west has been slowest to feel the effects of business revival, the bulletin says, but it now does feel it.

It will be an important political departure if President Wilson undertakes to pass his military preparedness program with republican and progressive help. And it appears that this is the only way in which he can get it through. The opposition is in his own party. Claude Kitchin, majority house leader, is still unreconciled and there will be a Bryan following which will voice a continued and vociferous protest. Wilson has hitherto secured legislation by strictly party action; he has relied on party organization and the secret caucus. The only exception to this rule was when he signalled across the party line, asking help from Senators Clapp, Norris, Kenyon and Cummins on his ship-purchase bill. The effort in the latter case was not entirely a success. The progressives felt that he had waited too long before hailing his "forward-looking" brethren on the other side of the party line. Much interest is felt in the working out of this new experiment.

FIND PRINCE GUILTY ON CHARGE OF GIRL

"House of David" Aide Loses in Mrs. Holiday's Slander Suit.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 12.—"Prince Coy"—Purnell, heir apparent of "King Benjamin" of the House of David, was found guilty in the circuit court last night of slander as charged by Augusta Holliday.

The jury disagreed for hours and once asked to be discharged. Damages of 6 cents and costs were recommended.

Mrs. Holliday, who told sensational stories of marriage customs as practiced by the cult, had sued for $25,000 after "Prince Coy" had accused her and her sister, Lena McFarlane, of perjury in the expose.

In his charge to the jury Judge Weist left only two major points for jurors to determine. The first was whether it is a tenet of the colony that intimate relationship between husband and wife is sinful, and the second whether malicious intent was indicated in Coy Purnell's published article accusing Mrs. Holliday of perjury.

Mrs. Holliday Tells Story.

Mrs. Holliday was her own last witness. She was called to the stand for cross-examination just before the attorneys began their closing addresses.

Before a crowd that jammed the courtroom to suffocation the girl told her story. It was a recital of the life in the "inner court" of Shiloh, "King Benjamin's" headquarters. Benjamin was pictured by Mrs. Holliday as a "debaucher of young girls," operating under the cloak of religion.

Mrs. Holliday and her sister, Mrs. Lena MacFarlane, withdrew from the colony more than a year ago. Both signed affidavits at that time alleging that conditions of immorality were so widespread in the House of David that they were unable longer to endure the life there.

Coming to the defense of his father, "Prince Coy," in a statement published in a Benton Harbor newspaper, asserted the women were guilty of perjury in their statements. Each immediately filed suit for $25,000 against the heir apparent.

Rumors were renewed last night that "King Benjamin" and his "pillars," angered by what they termed a "persecution" of their sect, would at once dispose of all their holdings in Berrien county, consisting of hundreds of acres of valuable fruit land, and move the colony to California.

From now until the holidays we will sell a one dollar shape Four-in-Hand Tie for 50c. We will receive a shipment every week.

PART OF PLUM CROP HAS NOT YET FALLEN

Some Likely Postoffice Fruit in Indiana is Still on Trees.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The postoffice department is not addicted to levity or irony, as a general thing, but a statement it has given out, is like salt rubbed into the lacerate feelings of politicians who have failed to get jobs under the Wilson administration, as well as those who disapprove of the president's civil service ideas. The statement might well be labeled "The Politician's Tale of Woe," but the caption over it shows that it is a list of "first, second and third class postoffices where presidential postmasters have not been appointed since March 4, 1912." The period covered takes in all the time since the present administration went into power.

The list covers eight and a third long, single-spaced, typewritten sheets, and it reveals the fact that there are about 1,600 presidential postoffices where changes of postmasters have not been made under the present administration. In Indiana there are thirty-nine presidential postmasters who have not been disturbed. They are the postmasters at the following cities and towns: Anderson, Argos, Batesville, Berne, Brownstown, Cayuga, Chubbuck, Clay City, Crawfordville, Elwood, Fremont, Garrett, Greentown, Hamlet, Hebron, Kendallville, Kirklint, Knox, Kramer, LaGrange, Lynn, Marengo, Milan, Montezuma, Monticello, Muncie, New Carlisle, North Liberty, Orleans, Owensville, Oxford, Rosko, Rosedale, Royal Center, Valparaiso, Walkerton, Westfield, West Lebanon and Winona Lake.

WOMAN IS BURNED TO DEATH.

Exploding Oil Can Costs Life of Mrs. Vesta Foster at Brookston.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Vesta Foster, 31, of Brookston, fourteen miles north of here, was burned to death at her home last night when a two-gallon coal oil can exploded and burning oil was thrown over her clothing. She was pouring the oil from the can onto some live coals in a heating stove when it exploded. Three children who were in the room with her rushed from the house and escaped injury. The house took fire but the flames were extinguished by the volunteer fire department.

"THEOLOGICAL TEA" IS THE LATEST FAD

More Theology in Feeding Than in Sending Them Away Hungry.

Boston, Nov. 12.—Drinking tea after the evening services in many Boston churches is the new fad. It is called by the ministers "Theological Tea."

This custom has now been adopted by the Central Congregational church, Newbury street, Emanuel church, Trinity church, First Baptist church, Commonwealth avenue, Meeting House Hill and many others.

At Trinity House a supper is served to all thinking of attending the meetings there.

The ladies of the Central Congregational church will serve tea in the chapel every Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. from November, until May.

The Rev. Kelley Jenness, pastor of the Tremont street M. E. church, serves chocolate after his evening service, as he gets more young people to drink chocolate than tea.

"We get to be very sociable over the chocolate pot," he says. "You will find people more happy after they've something to eat. There is more real theology in giving people something to eat than in sending them away hungry."

ATTEMPT AT RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

Several States Are Trying Experiment of Laws on the Situation.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The matter of unemployment received attention in several states during the legislative sessions of the current year, resulting in the adoption of measures for relief of more or less extensive nature. The California legislature adopted a resolution requesting an investigation by the congress of the United States and the adoption of such remedial measures as might be thought necessary and proper.

The legislature of Illinois provided for a state commission on the subject, while in Idaho the state law prohibits the employment of alien labor on public works, and submitting to the congress the proposition that a similar rule should control in favor of citizen labor on federal undertakings within the state.

The formation of associations of certain employees on steam and electric railways for the purpose of providing a co-operative fund from which unemployment benefits should be paid was provided for by a Michigan statute. Legislation in Massachusetts.

Of a more direct nature is legislation by the legislature of Massachusetts authorizing the employment of needy persons by the Metropolitan park commission in labor on parkways, boulevards, parks and reservations, also by the state forester; while in New Jersey the common council or other body in charge of the departments of municipalities employing unskilled labor are authorized to select "from the needy poor of such city or other municipality" residents for the purpose of such public work as may be assigned to them.

The most elaborate provision is that of the Idaho statute, which the press has called a "right to work" law, which authorized and requires county commissioners to provide emergency employment for any person who is a citizen of the United States and has been for an interrupted period of not less than six months a resident of the state of Idaho. The work is to be done on public highways or such other work as may be determined on. Applicants must be residents of the county for more than ninety days preceding the application, must show that they are unable to obtain other employment, and that they do not possess property of a total value of more than $1,000. A statement of the number of dependents, if any, must be given; also as to the amount of any emergency employment had during the twelve months last past.

May Be Suspended.
One applying for work must also agree to do with reasonable diligence and efficiency the work assigned, and a failure or refusal to perform such work is regarded as an offense for which one may be suspended for a period of one week in the first instance and for a second offense be disqualified for receiving the benefit of emergency employment for a period of one year. No person may receive more than sixty days' employment within a year and such applicants must be identified and vouchered for by some free-holder in the county where the application is made. Payments on vouchers issued by the auditor of the county and a record kept of names and amounts, and on a certificate to the state auditor of the total amount expended in this behalf, 50 per cent. of this sum shall be remitted to the county by deducting it from the sum of the general taxes collected by the state.

TO CLEAN THE PORES OF ALL IMPURITIES

The only way to get the impurities out of the pores of the skin is to use a milk massage cream. This can easily be made at home by adding to a half pint of fresh skimmed milk two ounces of powdered bryol crystal, which you can get from any druggist. Massaging this into the skin loosens and gathers all the dust, dirt, grease and poisons that accumulate in the pores and by massaging gently for a few minutes the cream will roll out, bringing all these poisons and impurities with it, leaving the skin soft and clear.

This treatment produces the same effect on the skin as the famous milk baths of the Ancient Egyptians. The above formula will make enough to last you several months. Advertisement.

PORT HURON CALLS HER FIRST CITIZEN

Miss West Has Disbursed
$13,000,000 in Aid of Women.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 12.—Miss Bina M. West, 23 years after organizing the first reviews of the Women's

Bina M. West
Benefit association of the Macabees, recently broke ground for a beautiful new $200,000 home office, the only woman's building of its kind in the world. It will accommodate the clerical business for the largest fraternal benefit society in the world for women. These honors have come to Miss West, after years of hard work, and on October 22, the cornerstone was laid with great ceremony in her home city, Port Huron, Mich. The local business men took the matter out of Miss West's hands, and the mayor declared a holiday on that date, so that the city might pay honor to its "First citizen."

Miss West is a woman who does things. She began her work on October 1, 1892, with no members and no funds. Today there are nearly 486,000 women enrolled in membership and the reserve fund of the society reaches nearly the nine million mark. She has signed away with her own hand nearly thirteen millions of dollars in benefits.

RARE BIRD IS FOUND.

South American Coot is Captured in Indiana.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 12.—James Hanner, Jr., while on the road between this place and Rosedale, was surprised when a bird nearly as large as a bantam hen dropped into his automobile. The bird has been classified as a South American coot, and various theories are advanced as to how it happened to be flying so low in this latitude. Its color is bronze blue, with white about the head and tail. It has long, slender toes with membranes along the sides. It coos similar to a dove.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1915, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 14

DANIEL IN THE KING'S COURT.

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 1:3-16, 19, 20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong. I Cor. 16:13.

This familiar story has been selected for the "World's Temperance Sunday"—it is the first record of his Babylonian experiences and is an illustrious example of those everlasting principles which govern a successful life.

I. Daniel's Position, vv. 1-7. Nebuchadnezzar, on the death of his father, returned to Babylon from besieging Jerusalem to take the throne. He carried with him Jehoiakim and a number of young men, "in whom was no blemish" (14). They were perhaps twelve years old. Among these were four who had been particularly selected for pious training and the name of each is compounded with the name of God; Daniel's meaning—"God is my judge." They are now alone in a licentious heathen palace and absolutely at the power of the king and his court. Their names are now changed; Daniel becomes Belteshazzar—"favored of Bel." Such changing of names is customary in most heathen or Mohammedan lands even today. A still greater danger or temptation confronts these young men, viz., that the king appointed them "a daily portion of the king's meat" (Am. Rev. v. 5). To refuse to eat invited ridicule and perhaps loss of life, but to eat was to break the Jewish law as to food (Deut. 12:23-25). See also (I Cor. 8:7-10; 10:27-28). Their captivity had been foretold (II Kings 20:17), but a change of location and name does not involve a change of heart as many a tempted one has discovered. These men in spite of natural appetites, danger of being thought peculiar, or even gratitude to king for lives preserved refused to eat the king's meat and to drink his wine.

II. Daniel's Purpose, 18:13. The real purpose of a man's heart not alone governs his acts but reveals what he is—God looks upon that when he judges men (II Cor. 9:7; 8:12; Luke 16:15). "Without will (purpose) there is no character" (Acts 11:23). Daniel purposed "in his heart" not to defile "himself." No compromise, no trimming because of being away from home, no partnership with the rich and opulent court. Daniel was to be "as clean as a hound's tooth." Men who dare to stand alone always find co-operation, so Daniel found those who stood by him (v. 12). Daniel exercised great tact in his dealings with the prince of the eunuchs but God had evidenced his protecting and leading care (v. 9) enabling him to win his way and persuade the eunuch to allow the suggested test (v. 12). If Christian workers would exercise more tact they would more frequently attain their desired ends (Luke 18:8). It is possible to be so unbendingly puritanical as to lay us open to a charge of pharisaical pride. Daniel illustrates spotless purity, inflexible loyalty mingled with a sweet reasonableness that always gains its ends. Daniel had sufficient confidence in his God and faith in his actions to be willing to be submitted to the acid test of experience. His was a religion that could stand without being tied.

III. Daniel's Proft (Reward), vv. 14-21. Pulse denotes such vegetables as beans and peas. Their diet was to be a general vegetable one. Samson as a Nazarite drank no wine. This age has yet to fully comprehend the reasonableness and efficacy of those ancient Jewish laws of sanitation and diet. Myriads of men are today digging their graves with their teeth. The result of this test was that Daniel and his companions were delivered from transgressing God's laws and the prince of the eunuchs from being punished because of the physical condition of his charges. Beauty, health, and strength came to Daniel and his friends with the result of preferment, position, and influence at court (v. 19). They "stood before the king" (Rom. 14:10-12; I Cor. 3:10-15; II Cor. 5:9); (a) because of their unswerving loyalty to God and obedience to his Word (John 14:15; 16:26 R. V.); (b) because of their life of prayer, for it is the work of the Holy Spirit to give unto us wisdom (Luke 2:15, Acts 6:10) even as Daniel was thus blessed (v. 17) the spirit bestows diverse gifts (I Cor. 12:14-11); (c) and finally because having a special place in the purposes and plans of God their lives were counted precious in his sight (v. 27). Verily, "He that doeth the will of God abideth forever."

Temperance Application.—This lesson suggests the value of total abstinence. "No user of tobacco has ever taken first honor at Harvard."—Longfellow. Temperance and self-control must begin in the home and be perpetuated in the strength and power of God which alone comes through an intelligent knowledge and obedience of his Word. There is no way to win success except by means of a complete victory; to compromise is to fail. The loyalty of such is not earth born and their victories are superhuman.

MAKE A PROTEST; THEN RING IT UP PROPERLY

Diplomatic Record Must Be Kept Straight on Such Matters.

By Gilson Gardner.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Having protested vigorously—or vigorously protested—against the latest outrage committed by Great Britain on American commerce, and having rung it up on the protest register, our state department is prepared to deal vigorously with the next offender. The diplomatic record must be kept straight on matters of this sort.

Three prohibition votes have been added to the house of representatives by the elections of November 2. Five congressional vacancies were filled in that election, three in New York state. The prohibitionists made an issue in the case of the New York candidates and all three stand pledged to the constitutional remedy against liquor. In the election of William S. Bennett, whose margin was narrow, his success was undoubtedly due to the support of the Anti-saloon league. Of New York's forty-three members, only three voted last winter for submitting the prohibition amendment. These three will now be reinforced by three more and possibly by others who have begun to see the oncoming of the prohibition movement.

During the month of September, horses were exported from the United States to the value of $8,032,407, and mules to the value of $1,968,195. A new export was added—seeds—the value of $148,414. Usually the United States is a buyer of seeds from foreign markets. The total exports for September were $300,000,000, as compared with $156,000,000 for September, 1914. The total exports for the nine months ending in September were $2,532,485,167, as compared with $1,467,401,989 for the nine months period of 1914.

The factory fire in New York, where a dozen employees were burned to death, is given a national significance by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the industrial relations committee, who was asked what he thought about the fire. "The base of such crimes," said Mr. Walsh, "is economic. The employer gets a faulty building cheaper than a good one, and the workers must pay the awful toll in death and suffering. Greed is at the bottom of it, of course."

The inquiries of the commissioners of industrial relations showed beyond dispute that approximately 35,000 lives are lost in American industry every year and that 700,000 workers are seriously injured, who do not immediately die. Among these 700,000 are the armless, the legless, the blind and those suffering from injuries which mean a lingering death. Researches of the government definitely show that the accidents which bring about this dreadful loss of life and limb, with the pain and misery incident to it, are what are termed preventable accidents; that is, accidents which would not occur were the ordinary common precautions for safety taken."

Beware of Cheap Substitutes. In these days of keen competition it is important that the public should see that they get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and not take substitutes sold for the sake of extra profit. BE CAREFUL, MR. HENRY; THEY'VE GOT THEIR EYES ON YOU.

ROBERT LEE HENRY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—Robert Lee Henry, of Texas, sir, is not a lady's man. Everybody in Washington will tell you that.

To Congressman Henry, those of the fair and busy sex who dwell without his family circle are creatures of only the vaguest interest.

And yet—
This serious leader of political affairs has had wished upon him the concentrated attention of 100,000 women for the next five months.

The "concentrated attention" is designed to win prosaic ballots rather than to lure bouquets or billet doux.
Congressman Henry, it is known, is chairman of the committee on rules in the house of representatives. When the Susan B. Anthony suffrage amendment is brought before the next congress it will be referred finally to the rules committee, and the chairman will hold the fate of woman suffrage in the hollow of his hand.

"What chance," asked Mrs. McNeill McCormick, "has a congressman when 100,000 women concentrate their attention upon him for five months?"

And from Congressman Henry's bailiwick one seems to hear the echo: "What chance?"

ACCUSE FATHER OF SHOCKING CRUELTY

Earl Smith Arrested for Terrible Abuse of Little Girl.

Earl Smith, 830 East Creighton avenue, a locomotive engineer on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, was arraigned in the city court, Friday morning, on a charge of cruelty to his 11-year-old daughter, Opal Smith. The case was continued until Monday for hearing and Smith furnished $200 bond for his appearance. The charges were filed by Humane Officer William M. Clutter, to whom and to Chief of Police Charles Lenz and Deputy Prosecutor S. A. Callahan Smith has admitted the truth of shocking accusations.

The details of the charges are in some respects revolting. Smith admits that in an attempt to break the little girl of a very common infirmity of childhood, he compelled her to submit to a shocking and filthy treatment that cannot be described in this newspaper. He also is charged with beating her cruelly and has admitted that he purchased a rawhide whip with which to flog her. Neighbors complained to Humane Officer Clutter of the treatment to which she is subjected at home and an investigation led to Smith's arrest. The abused daughter is a bright little girl of quiet demeanor and womanly manners. She is kept from school and upon her falls the far greater burden of the household duties in the Smith home. Her stepmother is infirm and the child is compelled to live the life of a domestic slave. Smith had been warned to place the child in school, but had failed to do so.

Rear Admiral Strauss Tells of New 14-Inch Guns in U. S. Navy.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Battleships now building for the United States navy will carry 14-inch, fifty caliber, guns, which are believed by ordnance experts to be the equal of the 15-inch weapons in foreign navies, although of lighter weight. In his annual report, Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, chief of the navy ordnance bureau, says:

"With the object of keeping pace with the increased range of modern naval warfare, the bureau has increased the power of the 14-inch guns for the California, Mississippi, and Idaho, by increasing the length of the gun to 50 calibers and enlarging its chamber capacity."

In order that these latest additions to the navy should carry the highest type of artillery, the bureau took the bold step of ordering their guns without manufacturing a trial gun. The bureau's confidence in its design has been fully justified. The first gun proved not only gave the designed velocity and pressure exactly, but its additional longitudinal strength which has been provided for, has resulted in these guns having less drop than any guns of large caliber heretofore produced. As it stands, these guns, although of lesser caliber and weight than the 15-inch guns now mounted abroad, are capable of penetrating the heaviest side armor at oblique impacts and at the greatest effective battle range, and give us the advantage of flatter trajectory, with greater volume of fire due to the increased number that we are permitted to mount on any ship of equal displacement.

"In August, 1914, a type 16-inch gun of 45 calibers length was tested. This gun fulfilled the highest expectations of its design, and the bureau believes it to be as powerful a gun as in existence today."

The report shows that the navy's armament had been kept well up to date, older type 5-inch guns having been replaced on all ships of the line; that anti-aircraft rifles of sizes up to 4-inch rifles have been designed, and that mounts for the disappearing guns for submarines have been built. The latter weapons will be given an increased elevation so that they may fire at aeroplanes.

Difficulty has been encountered in placing contracts for a sufficient number of the new armor piercing projectiles for big guns now being used by the navy. The rise in price due to the war is indicated by the fact that projectiles were purchased in 1913 at $320 each, while those contracted for in 1915 cost $415. Part of the increased cost, however, is due to the new design. Satisfactory 8-inch projectiles have been produced at the naval gun factory and larger shells are now being made there.

As to the value of armor piercing shells, the report says experiments during the year have strengthened the view that missiles of this type, but carrying high explosive in limited quantities, are superior to high explosive shells that depend wholly upon the force of an outside explosion to accomplish their mission. A French official report is quoted to show that plain shells carrying high explosive in large quantities were "absolutely powerless" against armor of any importance.

The Indian Head powder factory turned out 700,000 pounds above its 1914 output last year, as a result of improved methods, and with increases authorized by congress, is expected to make 5,000,000 pounds in 1916 and 6,000,000 in 1917, the report states. In this connection the report adds:

"Owing to the increase in the output of the Indian Head powder factory, contracts for private manufacture of smokeless powder have been greatly reduced, and at the present time there is only one contract outstanding, amounting to 790,000 pounds, with the Carneys Point plant of the du Pont Co.

The facilities for the production of smokeless powder and other explosives in the United States have been enormously increased, owing to the demands of the belligerents for these materials. It has taken many months of time and enormous expenditures of money to develop these facilities, and there conservation for the benefit of the United States government in time of war is a problem which will require the most careful consideration of the department when the European war is over and the present demand from abroad has ceased."

Great strides in development of the mine planting equipment of the fleet in the last few months are recorded in the report. It says:

"The Dubuque has been fitted out as a mine layer and mine instruction ship. Six old torpedo vessels are being equipped for sweeping. A mining division has been formed in the fleet. All capital ships are being provided with sweeping nets. All destroyers are being fitted for sweeping. A mine-sweeping manual has been prepared and submitted to the fleet for comment."

A list of steam fishing vessels of over 100 tons has been prepared and their owners communicated with, and arrangements have been made for their inspection with a view to their utilization as mine sweepers in time of war. These vessels are now being inspected. Recommendations have been made and approved that six gunboats be fitted for mine sweeping. Portable mine laying tracks have been ordered for one division of destroyers in each of the fleets. These tracks are to be carried in the destroyer tender, to be shifted to the destroyers when necessity arises. Mine laying track have been authorized for 11 vessels of the cruiser class. During the summer extensive exercises have been conducted in mine laying and sweeping in the fleet, and in general it may be said that the whole subject has been made active and progressive."

Progress has been made during the year toward gathering smaller navy guns at various yards in reserve for use on merchantmen in time of war, and instructions have been issued to provide for quick mobilization of weapons loaned to the naval militia should need arise.

Inventors have been busy with war materials and the report shows that the special board appointed to examine suggestions dealing with ordnance matters considered 656 proposals.

German Government Would Insure an Equitable Distribution.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Virtually the entire food supply of the nation is expected soon to pass under government control to insure an equitable distribution of supplies at fair prices among the entire population, rich and poor. Coffee, tea and cocoa were added to the list of products whose sale will be regulated by the state. The federal council authorized the chancellor to issue regulations covering trade in them.

The chancellor also was authorized to establish maximum prices for buckwheat and millet, marmalades and honey, vegetables, fruits and sauerkraut. These prices apply to producers. Local authorities in municipalities of more than 10,000 population are required to fix maximum prices for retailers in these supplies. The authorities in smaller places are empowered to take similar action if they see fit. The chancellor is given authority to set a high limit above which prices may not go. Bread, potatoes, pork, milk and butter already have been subjected to a maximum price schedule. The consumption of other meats is regulated and limited by so-called "meatless days." Maximum prices for all varieties of meat and fish are believed to be in sight.

MAY SOON CONTROL ENTIRE FOOD SUPPLY

German Government Would Insure an Equitable Distribution.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Virtually the entire food supply of the nation is expected soon to pass under government control to insure an equitable distribution of supplies at fair prices among the entire population, rich and poor. Coffee, tea and cocoa were added to the list of products whose sale will be regulated by the state. The federal council authorized the chancellor to issue regulations covering trade in them.

The chancellor also was authorized to establish maximum prices for buckwheat and millet, marmalades and honey, vegetables, fruits and sauerkraut. These prices apply to producers. Local authorities in municipalities of more than 10,000 population are required to fix maximum prices for retailers in these supplies. The authorities in smaller places are empowered to take similar action if they see fit. The chancellor is given authority to set a high limit above which prices may not go. Bread, potatoes, pork, milk and butter already have been subjected to a maximum price schedule. The consumption of other meats is regulated and limited by so-called "meatless days." Maximum prices for all varieties of meat and fish are believed to be in sight.

MAIN SERB ARMY CUT OFF

Main Activity on the Front in France.

Today's War News Given in Summary

Fear that the main body of the Serbian army has been cut off between Kralievo, on the western Morava, and Nish, is expressed in dispatches from a correspondent in Italy. The correspondent says it is considered significant that no word has been received from the retreating Serbian army for five days.

Although not more than 5,000 Serbians are opposing 15,000 Bulgarians in the Babuna defile in southern Serbia, it is believed by military men in Saloniki that the Bulgarians will be forced to withdraw in time.

Comparatively inactivity on the front in Russia is indicated by today's German official statement which passes over the northern and central army groups without recording any operations. In the south a minor success by Gen. von Linsingen is recorded.

On the French front, Paris reports spirited exchanges by the artillery in the vicinity of Loos while near Bus in the Aisne district German batteries were silenced by the French guns.

What the loss of life was in the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona by a submarine in the Mediterranean has not been definitely determined. According to a dispatch late last night from Tunis reports only 225 persons, passengers and crew, out of a total of 428 on board the Ancona were saved, which would make 203 to be accounted for. Consular advice to Washington have indicated that 347 were saved out of 428 said to be on board, leaving 149 unaccounted for.

Berlin has no official statement regarding the Ancona. It is declared there, and it is not believed in the German capital that the Austrian government has as yet received a report of the incident.

Milan, Nov. 12.—(Via Paris, 4:45 a. m.)—There is grave reason to fear that the main body of the Serbian army, which has been fighting the Germans and the Bulgarians' right wing, has been cut off between Kralievo and Nish, says dispatches received here from the Secolo's correspondent.

Suffering in the interior of Serbia is said to be great owing to the lack of food and shelter. Thousands of refugees from the north have been driven out by the advance of the Austro-Germans.

HOLD BULGARS AT BAY.

Saloniki, Nov. 12.—Five thousand Serbians still are holding 15,000 Bulgarians at bay between Iavor and Abdi pass in the Babuna defile, but the Serbs now control the heights of Kojasja and occupy the whole line of mountains, making, in the opinion of military men, a question of time. The people who left Monastir in a panic at the approach of the invaders are now returning. Priests and Monastir are resuming their normal appearance.

DENIED IN BERLIN.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—(Via Sayville)—The recently published news agency report that two British torpedo boat destroyers had captured a German submarine and its crew is a pure invention, the Overseas news agency stated today.

ARTILLERY DUEL RAGES.

Paris, Nov. 12.—2:30 p. m.—A spirited bombardment has continued in the sector of Loos, both sides taking part, according to announcement made by the French war office this afternoon. In the Aisne district French artillery has silenced German batteries.

MOTHER OF MAYOR BELL DIES.

Indianapolis, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Mary J. Bell, mother of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, of this city, died at her home in College Corner, Ohio, early today, according to word received here. The mayor was at her bedside when she died. Mrs. Bell suffered a stroke of apoplexy two weeks ago and has been unconscious most of the time since then. She was 82 years old. The funeral will be held Saturday and a number of city officials from here will attend.

FURTHER LEGAL STEPS UNDER CONSIDERATION

Traction Officials Say Decision Does Not Change Strike Situation.

That attorneys representing the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, in their efforts for an injunction, following the dismissal of their case in the federal court at Indianapolis Thursday, will make another legal move, is believed to be certain. Both President J. M. Barrett and General Manager Sam W. Greenland were unprepared to say Friday, however, what future action would be taken.

"The decision of Judge Anderson does not change the strike situation whatever," declared General Manager Greenland Friday.

"We have nothing to say," said Clayton H. Johnson, in charge of the strike for the car men. "Judge Anderson said it all at Indianapolis Thursday."

Now that the case in the federal court has been disposed of, members of the conciliation committee expect to resume their efforts for a settlement of the difference at once. A meeting of the committee was scheduled for Friday afternoon.

Judge Anderson's Ruling.

Holding that the United States district court is without jurisdiction, Judge Anderson yesterday afternoon dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff the action of the United States Mortgage and Guarantee company in New York against Joseph C. Colgan, and others, seeking a temporary injunction against the activities of striking employees of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company on the city lines at Fort Wayne.

The ruling of the court was on two points raised by the plea of the defendants, first that Joseph C. Colgan is a citizen of Illinois, and, therefore, beyond the jurisdiction of the Indiana court; and second, that the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company is a necessary party to the complaint.

The ruling of the court also set forth that the interest of the traction company in the suit is identical with that of the plaintiff's mortgage.

Recognition of Union Asked.

Sept. 27, 1915, employees of the city car line in Fort Wayne struck for recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees, demanding a wage and working hour agreement with the company through that union. The suit followed immediately upon the strike, making John C. Colgan, member of the executive board of the union, and about eighty-five street railway employees defendants. A later bill of complaint included the city of Fort Wayne.

The plaintiff alleged that the strikers were inducing Fort Wayne citizens to refrain from riding on the cars of the company and to obtain their electric services from the municipal plant at Fort Wayne, instead of from the plant of the traction company, which supplies electrical current as a public service. Many allegations of activities on the part of the strikers to interfere with the movement of cars were made, and the suit asked for an injunction against them.

The effect of the ruling of the court that the traction company is a necessary party to the action, will be to align Indiana citizens on both sides of any further action that may be taken, which will throw such action into the state courts.

WILL PROBE FIRES IN MUNITIONS PLANTS

Harriburg, Pa., Nov. 12.—State Fire Marshal Baldwin today detailed men to make investigation of fires that have occurred this week in plants engaged in the manufacture of munitions or supplies for nations at war. One inspector was detailed to the Bethlehem steel works and another will go to the Edgemoor branch of the Baldwin Locomotive works, where there was a slight fire in the pattern storage house the same day the Bethlehem Steel company, No. 4, machine shop was burned. Other inspectors have been active in western and central parts of the state, where fires have occurred in powder and similar plants.

FT. WAYNE GIRL MAY WIN CONTEST AND BECOME PHOTO-PLAY ACTRESS.

MISS EMELISE SHEPARD.

Emelise Shepard operates a machine at the Boss glove factory in this city. Pretty, blue-eyed, Auburn-haired, vivacious, she is a delight to look upon, and the girls at the machines around her for months have told her she ought to "try out for the movies."

Then one day several months ago she read a notice in the Photoplay Magazine to the effect that eleven young women who wanted to go into the movies would be given a chance in a "beauty and brains" contest conducted in conjunction with one of the large production companies of New York city.

She wrote the company and after a little correspondence sent her photograph. Friday she received word that she had passed the first judging, and was well to the front.

She was called from her work at the recess period and after a moment's hesitation consented to pose for The Sentinel camera man. She decided not to smile in her picture, but—oh, there are ways of getting around that. She smiled.

Ambassador Page Discusses Sinking of Ancona With Baron Sonnino.

WILL HAVE BEARING ON ACTION BY U. S.

Ancona Captain Charges His Ship Was Given No Warning.

Rome, Nov. 11.—(Via Paris, No. 12, 6:50 a. m.)—United States Ambassador Page called at the foreign office today and had a long talk with Baron Sonnino. The nature of the conference is unknown, but it is assumed the sinking of the Ancona was discussed informally.

The Italian government has ordered a rigid investigation of the disaster. The inquiry is proceeding under the direction of the Italian consul at the Tunis naval office.

A special effort is being made to determine all the facts relating to international responsibility, whether warning was given and whether an opportunity was afforded the passengers to escape. It is expected here the investigation will have a bearing on any diplomatic representations the United States may make in behalf of American passengers on board the steamer.

CAPTAIN MAKES CHARGES.

Says Submarine Failed to Give Passengers a Chance.

Naples, Nov. 11.—Via Paris, Nov. 12, 1:45 a. m.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The owners of the Italian liner, Ancona, sunk in the Mediterranean by a submarine, have received the report of the Ancona's captain in which he makes the positive charge that the submarine gave no warning to the liner or afforded those on board of her a chance to escape.

The first shot, the captain's report declares, was fired when the submarine was three miles distant. The captain immediately stopped the ship, he says, but this did not appear to satisfy the

LAD WILL DIE OF INJURIES

Albert Neumann is Fatally
Crushed in Elevator at
Frank Store.

ACCIDENT OCCURS SOON AFTER NOON

Operator.

Albert Neumann, said to be 13 years old, employed as a door boy at the Frank dry goods establishment, on Calhoun street, is dying at St. Joseph hospital as the result of being crushed in the elevator at the store. Disregarding the warning of the elevator operator the boy made a dash for the car when he saw it leaving the cellar, and attempted to get aboard.

He slipped and hung across the edge of the floor as it raised against the ceiling. The machinery was stopped within a very few inches, but the boy was wedged into the small opening.

Every rib in his body was broken and the jagged ends crashed through both lungs. The air from the lungs was crushed out through the body and lifted the skin from his eyes to his hips. The boy was rushed to the St. Joseph's hospital and Dr. Alfred Kane made every effort to relieve him. It was seen from the first that there was no way of saving the youngster's life, although the attending surgeon made heroic efforts to do so.

Conscious After Mishap.

The boy was conscious for fully thirty minutes after he was hurt. Young Neumann was employed at the Frank store less than a week and on his employment there produced a city certificate stating that he was of working age. The management of the store has turned the affidavit over to the police.

The boy is the son of Peter P. Neumann, a Pennsylvania machinist, residing at 2220 Oliver street.

Had Been Warned.

The young man in charge of the elevator states that he saw Neumann coming toward the elevator and shouted for him not to try to get aboard. Not realizing that the boy would disregard him he continued to rise and a moment later saw the lad's head and shoulders hanging over the front of the car. He threw on the safety appliance, but the car already had crushed the little form.

SAYS CHINESE "PULL" COST HIM HIS PLACE

Charge is Made by Old U. S. Interpreter at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—Dr. John B. Gardner, Chinese Inspector and Interpreter at this port for twenty-three years, whose resignation yesterday was offered and accepted at Washington, charged today that the influence of Wong Do King, a powerful Chinese recently deported, cost him his position. Dr. Gardner resigned rather than accept transfer to Gloucester, N. J., which, he said, was an unimportant post.

"The boast was made by Chinese a year ago that I would be demoted or transferred for my work in the 'Wong Do King case,'" Dr. Gardner said today. "Six weeks ago a Chinese told me I could avoid demotion by lending money to the wife of an immigration official."

When Dr. Gardner's transfer was ordered to Washington, signed by heads of various departments here and by federal judges, he said.

Wong Do King, a leader among Chinese, and said to have been the head of the Bing Kong tong, fought deportation for years. His power was said to match that of the great Chinese Six companies.

WILL MAKE EFFORT TO RELIEVE CONGESTION

For the purpose of discussing plans for co-operating with the city administration in devising some means to eliminate the congestion caused by parking automobiles in the downtown districts, a meeting of representatives of the Rotary club, Commercial club, the Alien Control Automobile Owners' association and Retail Merchants' association will be held at 12:15 o'clock Saturday at the Commercial club.

One of the plans under consideration is to convert the property belonging to the city and county south of the ball park into a public garage. If this is done the city council will be asked to pass an ordinance prohibiting cars standing in one spot on the downtown streets for a longer time than one-half hour.

WARREN IDENTIFIED AS KANSAS CONVICT

Dream Croesus a Fugitive
and Has a Wife Now in Leavenworth.

Commodore Perry Hull, alias Charles Luther Warren, the check swindler now in jail here awaiting trial for his Fort Wayne operations, has been fully identified as B. J. Gifford, an escaped convict from the Kansas state prison at Lansing, in that state. Photographs, Bertillon measurements and finger prints forwarded to Chief of Police, Charles Lenz by A. D. Hudspeth, record officer in the Kansas prison, have been found by Detective Sergeant Joseph P. Brennan, in charge of the Fort Wayne bureau of criminal identification, to have exact correspondence with similar evidences taken here.

Warren or Hull, as B. J. Gifford was convicted in Leavenworth on December 17, 1910, of obtaining money by false pretense. He was received at the Kansas prison January 11, 1911, was paroled November 13, the same year, later was returned to prison for violation of parole and escaped from the penitentiary February 5, last. He has a wife, Cora Gifford, residing at Fourth and Shawnee streets, in Leavenworth. A prison photograph that accompanies the records sent here, bears a striking resemblance to Warren as he now appears. The picture printed herewith presents him as he appeared at the time of his arrest in Leavenworth. He then wore a heavy drooping mustache that would hardly help him much in his romantic career as a lady-killer. While in Leavenworth Warren or Gifford followed the pursuit of a harbor.

The fact that Warren has a wife in Leavenworth adds bigamy to his other crimes and will serve to nullify his marriage to Miss Benah Yousse, the pretty 20-year-old daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Yousse, with whom Warren was joined in matrimony Friday, October 15, at Michigan City, Ind., by Rev. O. L. Kiplinger, chaplain of the state prison there.

It is believed that Warren will plead guilty when he is arraigned in the circuit court the 22d inst. The prison authorities at Lansing, Kas., request that Warren be held for them in case he is not convicted here, as he is badly wanted by them.

The identification of Warren as the Kansas fugitive is due to the diligent work of Detective Sergeant Brennan, who thoroughly searched the local archives for a trace of him. A circular bearing the portrait printed with this article gave the first clue, having been sent out from Lansing shortly after Gifford escaped from the Kansas prison. Detective Brennan followed the clue and got confirmation more than a week ago. Chief Lenz forwarded the photographs, measurements and finger prints taken by Detective Brennan and the acknowledgment from Record Officer Hudspeth practically completes the identification.

LANSING TO ASK INQUIRY

Charges by Former Austrian Consul Create a Big Sensation.

ACCUSES AUSTRIAN OFFICIALS IN U. S.

Explosion and Strike Propaganda Hotly Denied
by Embassy.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Published charges, attributed to Dr. Joseph Gorica, former Austro-Hungarian consul at San Francisco, that Austrian consuls in the United States working under the direction of Consul General Von Neuber and Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, are active in propaganda for destruction of munitions factories and fomenting strikes among the workers, will be referred by the state department to the department of justice for investigation.

The Austrian embassy here denounced Gorica's published statement as untrue in every particular and announced it would try to find some way to prosecute him for it. Gorica, the embassy said, left his post at San Francisco on leave and failed to return.

Lansing Declines Comment.

Secretary Lansing declined to comment on the charges. The department of justice has a good deal of information on hand regarding the activities of Consul General von Neuber, which it gathered while investigating his connection with the case of Dr. Dumba, the recalled Austrian ambassador, but so far has nothing definite on the charges attributed to Dr. Gorica.

In substance Gorica is accredited with making the statement that he resigned his post after fifteen years in the Austrian consular service because he declined to perform the work of a spy. He charges that while consul at San Francisco, Commander Maximilian Burslyn, the Austrian naval attaché, at Washington, ordered him to gather plans of the fortifications of San Francisco harbor and along the Pacific coast, and to get especially details of the works at Bremerton navy yard. When he refused, Gorica is accredited with saying he was transferred to Berlin, where, after five months, he was ordered to proceed to Vienna, which he feared to do because of his pro-Slavic affiliations, so he fled to Rome, where he resigned last December.

Charge is Sweeping.

Gorica's story contends the Austrian ambassador, working with von Neuber, is in touch with the Austrian consuls at Cleveland, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, St. Paul, Chicago and Philadelphia, who spread propaganda among the foreign workers in the munitions factories and such activity Gorica alleges extends even to controlling the foreigners through fraternal and secret organizations. The alleged extent of the activities of the Austrian consuls and the so-called spy system are described at length in Gorica's published statement.

Gorica's record shows he first came to this country in 1899 and was consul at Pittsburgh, Denver and finally San Francisco, where he served three years.

GERMANS DRIVE SERB ARMY IN MOUNTAINS

Berlin, Nov. 12.—(By Wireless to Sarajevo.)—Pursuit of the Serbian army in a southerly direction continues according to the German official report issued today. The advance of the Germans in the Rastina valley southwest of Kruzevac has reached the town of Kupet. Further eastward Kibaci and Jiburs Kibaci have been reached.

"Yesterday more than 1,700 Serbians were taken prisoner and 11 cannons were captured."

GREEK CHAMBER DISSOLVED.

Course of Country in War Hinges on Military Conditions.

London, Nov. 12.—All doubts as to what road Greece would choose out of the middle caused by the divergent views of her political leaders and as to how the policies of the Skoufoudis cabinet could be rendered compatible with the opinions of the adverse majority in the chamber today were dispelled by a public dissolution of the chamber of deputies.

Publication of the decree apparently was received in Athens with calm despite the fact that all elements hoped to avoid elections at the present difficult moment. The Greek government

Paris, Nov. 12.—Minister of War Gallieni made his maiden speech to the chamber of deputies today in reply to an interpellation by J. B. Mr. Morin remarked that members of the cabinet had not solicited favors, although they had made recommendations. He requested Gen. "I am a soldier and never have occupied myself with politics," said Gen. Gallieni in complying with Mr. Morin's request. GRIEF OVER LOST DOG BREAKS BOY'S HEALTH

Indianapolis Lad is Under Doctor's Care After Pet Disappears.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 12.—Clem is a dog—a beautiful, brown-eyed collie, with a delicate, pointed face and a big, waving plume of a tail and a white and yellow coat—but until a week ago last evening he was one of the most important members of the family of H. A. Burnett, 1554 Ashland avenue. Right now the Burnetts would give almost anything to get Clem back, for his prolonged and mysterious absence has made 5-year-old Harry Burnett ill. The little chap has worried so over the absence of his beloved playmate—that Harry hasn't any brothers or sisters and depended on the big, gentle dog too much of his amusement—that his parents are worried about him. He wanders from door to window, and from window to porch—always looking for Clem. He won't go out to play for fear that Clem will come home while he is gone and that he won't be there to welcome him. At all hours the baby voice can be heard calling, "Here, Clem; here, Clem," and the first thing he asks when he gets up in the morning is, "Has my Clem come back yet?"

Under Doctor's Care. The child has taken the disappearance of the dog so much to heart that it has affected his health and he is under the doctor's care. The doctor can not do much for him; what he needs most is to have "Clem" back again.

It is beginning to look as though Clem were gone for good. The Burnetts have advertised, telling in the advertisements how much it means to them to have the dog returned. Of course there are lots of other dogs—but they wouldn't be Clem. The Burnetts raised him from a puppy and little Harry can't remember the time when he didn't have Clem to play with. That is why he misses him so dreadfully now that he is gone.

Clem vanished, apparently, into thin air, a week ago last evening. He had just been given his supper and went out while the family was eating supper. That was the last seen of him. The neighborhood was searched from end to end, but Clem wasn't to be found. The theory is that some one passing in an automobile became attracted by the dog's beauty, picked him up and carried him off—for Clem would never have left home of his own accord. Whoever it is that has Clem—will they please return him! There are plenty of other dogs, but only one Clem for little Harry Burnett.

TO SPEND $7,500,000 MORE ON GARY PLANTS

Gary, Ind., Nov. 12.—The Gary plants of the United States Steel corporation will be enlarged at a cost of more than $7,500,000 and will give employment to about 3,000 additional men. About $2,000,000 will be spent on the corporation's plants at Pittsburg and at Youngstown, O.

Announcement of these plans was made yesterday by E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors. This followed unofficial estimates that the corporation would earn at the rate of $225,000,000 annually on the basis of present steel prices, which on operations of 14,500,000 tons a year, and according to the ratio of profit per ton, would mean $25.50 a share on the common stock.

Because of the boom in the steel industry, in which plants are working at the highest rate in their history, additions have been made at South Chicago and additions to the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, an allied concern, which will employ about 2,000 more men, are being made at a cost of $4,000,000.

FRANCHISE LEAGUE WRANGLE IS A TIE

Mrs. Stimson Loses at Huntington But Wins at Anderson.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Eva Robuck, of Wabash, an opponent of Mrs. S. C. Stimson in her clash with the executive board of the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana, was elected chairman yesterday afternoon of the Eleventh District Franchise League, taking the place of Mrs. W. B. Platt, of Huntington, who is removing to Fort Wayne, out of the district.

This was the second round in which the anti-Stimson women won. The first came at about noon, at the first session, just after the call to order by Mrs. Platt.

Dr. Amelia Keller, state president, arose and said that it was only fair to the state board that those present should hear the reasons for the request of Mrs. Stimson's resignations from the executive board. She then charged disloyalty to the suffrage cause, declaring Mrs. Stimson had been disloyal through malice and personal dislikes in opposing Mrs. L. J. Cox, of Terre Haute, for president of the State Federation of Clubs.

Mrs. Lincoln Lesh, of Muncie, defended Mrs. Stimson, speaking of her Christian character, but Mrs. R. E. Edwards, of Peru, declared her goodness of character was conceded, but was beside the issue. Mrs. Platt then called for a vote on a motion to sustain the state board's action, which carried 17 to 4. Not all the delegates were present when the vote was taken.

MRS. STIMSON SUPPORTED.

Eighth District Resolution Indorses Suffrage Work.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. S. C. Stimson, of Terre Haute, was supported in a resolution adopted at the Eighth District Franchise League meeting here yesterday, the resolution declaring "that we indorse the suffrage work of Mrs. S. C. Stimson, of Terre Haute; that if the newspaper reports are true in regard to a call for her resignation from the state board we do not agree with the action of the board of directors of the Franchise League of Indiana in attempting to remove Mrs. Stimson." Other resolutions oppose double representation in the state meetings of the league and favor the election of a district chairman by the district organization instead of an election at the state meeting.

SUIT TO ESTABLISH A VANISHED WILL

Testament of Late Elizabeth G. McKinney Said to Be Stolen.

Alleging that the will made and executed by the late Elizabeth Gertrude McKinney, of Fort Wayne, was removed from the place of security where she kept it in her home, a short time following her death, William McDonald has begun suit in the superior court to have it declared, established and admitted to probate upon evidence. The defendants are Ada Fornier, Bessie, Nellie and Michael McDonald, St. Patrick's Catholic church, Catherine Jeannemongin, Ronald Jeannemongin and National McKinney, the testator's husband, who, with the plaintiff, are beneficiaries under the will. It is alleged that after executing the will in the presence of two competent witnesses Mrs. McKinney took the will, sealed in an envelope, to her home, where she deposited it in a tin box and the box in a trunk, looking both of them. Soon after her death persons having authority to do so viewed the will in its place of deposit. Then a day or two later when it was looked for it was missing. It is alleged that shortly after the woman's death her husband got possession by "means best known to himself," of the keys to the trunk and box. In the tin box, when the will was searched for, was the torn envelope in which it had been concealed. It is further alleged Nathaniel McKinney had access to the trunk and box. It is set out that the decedent devised her estate to the plaintiff and defendants, making several bequests, leaving her husband, in lieu of dower, an income of $20 a month to be paid from the proceeds of a life insurance policy that became a part of her estate, and left the residue of her estate, real and personal, to William, Bessie, Nellie and Michael McDonald. Myron Johnson, 554 Kincaid avenue, was named in the will as executor. The complaint sets out what is said to have been the disposition the decedent made in her will of her estate. Phil B. Colerick is attorney for the plaintiff.

Edna Fears Blood and Bloodshed.

Edna Blood begun action in the superior court, Friday, against Allen Blood for divorce and obtained an order restraining him from in any way molesting her, because she fears he will make good his off-repeated threats to take her life. They were married June 24, 1913, and separated October 22, 1915.

She says he has persistently treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner, cursing her and calling her names too vile to set out in a complaint, continually found fault, made a daily practice of accusing her of association with other men, many times pointed a loaded revolver at her and threatened her life, a habit he contracted early in their marriage and indulged toward her vicious practices too vile to be stated. The couple have resided on rural route No. 5 and the defendant is employed by Lanternier, florists, which concern has been enjoined from paying him his wages. McAdams & Hartzell are the wife's attorneys.

Notes of the Courts.

William Reichelderfer, administrator of the estate of John Schaffer, has begun suit in the circuit court against Isabel Chaney for possession of real estate.

In the circuit court Judge Eggeman has issued a writ of temporary injunction against the defendants in the suit of William Poinsette, et al., vs. Leonard Stoltz, trustee of Washington civil township, et al., to restrain proceedings in a drainage matter. The hearing is set for November 24.

Judgment for $137 has been given the plaintiff by the circuit court in the suit of Charles McKinzie, et al., vs. Amanda Klingenberg, et al.

These suits have been dismissed from the circuit court: Exchange Bank of Chubbuck vs. Edward Golden, et al.; The Keely Springfield Road Roller company vs. Daniel Yoder; Clarence F. Lewis vs. the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company.

A motion has been filed in the circuit court for a new trial in the case of Edwin H. Steele vs. the Chicago & Erie railroad. A jury gave the plaintiff a judgment for damages in the sum of $9,000.

Helen A. Pulley has begun suit in the superior court for divorce from George O. Pulley, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment and making unprintable charges against him. They were married in Williamsport, Ind., June 16, 1913, and separated May 18, last. F. H. Klecamp is the plaintiff's attorney.

William Poinsette, Christian Prange, Emmett V. Harris and Brown Cooper have begun suit in the circuit court against Leonard Stoltz, trustee of Washington civil township, and William Hanauer and William Oswalt for an injunction to restrain the completion of a ditch contract held by the two latter defendants. W. N. Ballou is attorney for the plaintiffs.

Hattie Huber has sued Toney Huber in the superior court for divorce, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment, failure to properly provide and physical brutality. They were married last January. Hans C. Meland appears for the plaintiff.

Russel Thompson and Gray Rainey, both defendants in divorce suits, have been certified to appear to answer contempt charges in the superior court Nov. 15.

The suit of the state ex rel. Thomas, prosecuting attorney, vs. Tom Bordan, on the docket of the superior court for five years, has been dismissed at the plaintiff's costs.

The superior court has dismissed the suit of the Wayne Tobacco company vs. Forrest J. Hiler and the suit of Amelia Boedecker vs. Fred Boedecker.

Henry E. Branning, Jr., receiver in the suit of Baiser Ort et al., vs. the Townley Grain and Supply company, has filed his final report in the superior court and has been discharged.

The superior court has ordered the sale of property found indivisible in the suit of John and Sophie Krak vs. Wilhelmina Everett, et al., after finding the defendants owners of it, and has appointed Martin H. Luecke, commissioner to make the sale. Louis Curdus and R. J. Romy were appointed appraisers.

The last will and testament of the late James A. Graham has been filed for probate. The estate, real and personal, is left to the widow, Ella Graham, except that if there shall be means sufficient without disturbing the real estate, each of his children is to receive $1,000.

The will of the late Mary Roeger, just filed for probate, leaves her estate to her children.

LICENSED TO WED.

Frank H. Widner, farmer, 24, and Emma Klopfenstein, 24.

Milton Hockman Spielman, engineer, 27, and Lydia Louise Marie Heine, 24.

The Edgerton Brick and Tile company has filed articles of incorporation in the county recorder's office, with a capital of $30,000. It will manufacture and sell drainage tile and cement building blocks. Les J. Hartzell, Harold H. Tracht and Kirk J. Corkery, all of Fort Wayne, are the incorporators and directors.

JUDGE QUITS, BIG SHORTAGE RUMORED

Hart, Mich., Nov. 12.—Shortages said to amount to $50,000 in money belonging to Oceana county and to heirs of estates administered in the probate court are alleged to have been discovered by a state accountant while auditing the books of Probate Judge F. W. Van Winkle, who has been on the county bench fifteen years.

Unwise investments of funds belonging to the county and to various estates, which resulted in heavy losses, are said to have caused the shortage.

Judge Van Winkle sent his resignation to Governor Ferris Wednesday, saying ill health caused the action. The resignation was accepted yesterday afternoon.

Miss Hagner occupies a position at the white house first created by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, when she engaged Miss Hagner as "social secretary."

Prior to the time of the Roosevelt's, the social duties in connection with the white house receptions and other social affairs were handled by a clerk in the executive offices, assisted by a retinue of helpers when a big social event was impending. Miss Hagner undertook this work and made a distinct success of it.

When President Wilson came to the white house, Miss Hagner returned as social secretary to Mrs. Ellen Wilson.

Miss Hagner bears the distinction of never having allowed her picture to be taken. This is a snapshot taken at the Washington baseball park.

A Strong Assertion

But no stronger than the facts that back it up. Of course the saving is only a part—the rest is the clothing itself—the fine tailoring—the style—the fit—the fabric—the lasting satisfaction that men obtain from Sherman's clothes.

Make It a Point

To come to Sherman's and see the type of men that buy Sherman's clothes—the rich man—the poor man—all want to take that saving of $5 to $8. The rich man buys not because of the price, $10, but of true economy. Economy to them is not the price lowness, but the excellency of quality he receives for his money. The poor man buys them because he is a good judge of value and realizes his saving.

Why Such Value?

Because you buy Sherman's clothes at a factory price, $10, no more, no less, whereby you eliminate for yourself the middleman's profit of $5 to $8. In the making of Sherman's clothes we use only guaranteed all-wool fabrics, the very best of linings, trimmings and buttons, therefore we know the clothes we have to offer. We know that they are made as good in every detail as any manufacturer puts in the clothes he wholesales to the regular retail merchant for $10.00.

USE YOUR GOOD JUDGMENT—You know the merchant has to make his profit, which is $5 to $8. That is why Sherman's clothes are the equal in value as any clothing store in Fort Wayne may offer you for $15 or $18. We guarantee them such.

SAFEGUARDING THE U. S. MEAT SUPPLY

60 Per Cent. of Animals
Now Slaughtered Under Federal Inspection.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—More than 58,000,000 meat animals were slaughtered in establishments under federal inspection during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915. Since approximately from 58 to 60 per cent. of the animals killed in the country are slaughtered in establishments where federal inspection is maintained, it appears that about 100,000,000 meat animals are now being killed each year in the United States.

Of the animals subjected to Federal inspection, 299,938 were condemned as unfit for human use, and 644,688 were condemned in part. Thus a little more than 1 1/2 per cent. of all the animals inspected were condemned either in whole or in part. These figures include only cattle, calves, sheep, goats and swine. Tuberculosis was the chief cause of the condemnations. More than 32,044 carcasses of cattle and 66,000 carcasses of swine were entirely rejected on account of this disease, and in addition parts of 48,000 cattle and 440,000 swine. Hog cholera was responsible for the next largest loss, nearly 102,000 swine being condemned entirely on this account.

The annual appropriation for the Federal Meat Inspection service is now about $2,375,000, so that the cost to the people would be between 5 and 6 cents per animal if the service was confined entirely to the inspection of the animals and carcasses. In addition, however, great quantities of the meat and products are re-inspected. In this item there was a very considerable increase during the last fiscal year, the re-inspection resulting in the condemnation of a total of nearly 19,000,000 pounds of products of one kind or another. Furthermore, 245,000,000 pounds of imported meat or meat products were inspected and more than 2,000,000 pounds condemned or refused entry.

In the course of its work, the Bureau of Animal Industry, which is in charge of the meat inspection service, has discovered a new method of destroying trichinae in pork, which is an additional safeguard to human health. Refrigeration at a temperature of 5 degrees, F., or lower, for a period of 20 days will destroy these parasites which occasionally give rise in human beings to the serious disease known as trichinosis. Hitherto, the only known safeguard against this disease has been thorough cooking of all pork and pork products, and those persons who neglect this precaution have always been more or less exposed to the danger. Unless pork is known to have been subjected to refrigeration as above, it should be thoroughly cooked. The microscopic examination of pork for the detection of trichinae has been abandoned as the usual methods have proved inefficient.

In this connection it is interesting to note that more swine were slaughtered in the past year in establishments under federal inspection than ever before. A total of 30,247,958 were inspected at the time of slaughter, and approximately 35,900,000 passed for food.

INVENTS A BUREAU TO PREVENT SUICIDE

Los Angeles Woman Has a
Plan to Assist Despondent Folk.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 12.—This city has a suicide clinic—a place where

will put the idea of making away with themselves entirely out of mind.

The suicide clinic is looked out for by the city mothers. Mrs. Aletha Gilbert, head of the city mothers' bureau, is the founder of this unique organization for the prevention of self-destruction. Daily this woman looks into the bare souls of persons so morose, so unfortunate, so despondent, that they want to take their own lives.

"And in every case," says Mrs. Gilbert, "one fact stands out clear and strong. If they had laid their troubles on a mental dissecting table before instead of brooding on them, there would have been no contemplated suicide." "What most of them need is sympathy. Of course, many need substantial succor also, but sympathy is never amiss." "Four persons came to me recently who had intended to kill themselves. In each instance the thought of suicide was induced by brooding.

"To confess one's troubles, even to a stranger, is to rid them of their menace. It is only by this method that one may gain courage to fight battles."

The male heart weighs from 10 to 15 ounces. Its average size is about five inches long, 3 1/2 inches wide and two inches in greatest depth.

The old boundary dispute between Michigan and Ohio, which was keenest before Michigan became a state, was never settled until the last summer, when a new line of handsome granite markers were set up.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Psalm 105:16-27.

16 Moreover he called for a famine upon the land; he brake the whole staff of bread.
17 He sent a man before them, even Joseph, who was sold for a servant;
18 Whose feet they hurt with fetters; he was laid in iron;
19 Until the time that his word came; the word of the Lord tried him.
20 The king sent and loosed him; even the ruler of the people, and let him go free.
21 He made him lord of his house, and ruler of all his substance;
22 To bind his princes at his pleasure; and teach his senators wisdom.
23 Israel also came into Egypt; and Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.
24 And he increased his people greatly; and made them stronger than their enemies.
25 He turned their heart to hate his people, to deal subtly with his servants.
26 He sent Moses his servant; and Aaron whom he had chosen.
27 They shewed his signs among them, and wonders in the land of Ham.

The New Rap at the Primary Law.

The filing of the latest suit to test the state-wide primary law, in which attack is made on Section 10 of that much-discussed statute, will bring to a more definite decision a provision which has been violently assailed by the republican state committee. This is the contention that under the law it would be impossible for the voter to change his political affiliations and before an intervening election participate in the nomination of candidates of the party to the faith of which he has just subscribed.

Behind it, of course, is the expectation that many former progressives will wander back into the republican fold next year, and the republicans are anxious that no bugaboo of any character be allowed to bob up to frighten them off. The contention is set up that Section 10 practically disfranchises the voter who believes he has been on the wrong track politically and wants to line up with a different crowd in the primary as well as in the election. In the event his vote is challenged at the primary he would be unable to "swear it in" by an affidavit that he had voted for a majority of the candidates of the party of his new-born allegiance at the previous election, and, under the law, could vote, if he cared to do so at all, only for the candidates of the party from which he had just deserted.

The courts in a recent decision at New Albany sustained the primary law except as to the section providing for the payment of a sliding scale of fees by candidates for nomination to the various offices. That decision has already been appealed to the higher courts of the state and a finding is expected shortly. The decision on the constitutionality of the "disfranchisement" feature should very nearly completely clarify the atmosphere regarding the new statute. The provision of the state-wide law is almost identical with that which has been followed in Allen and other counties which have been using the primary method of nominating for some years, and serious question as to its legality has never been raised. The apparent blow-up of the progressive following in many parts of the state, however, invests the situation with a new importance and explains the serious attention now being given Section 10 of the law.

As a witness for the government in its prosecution of former directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, Charles S. Mellen continues to stretch a good many rather imposing financial hides upon the fence. He made it clear in his testimony that the New Haven not only organized a company for the express purpose of crushing competition, but that the proper boards were duly informed as to the facts in the case and understood precisely what they were doing. Having so long borne the burdens of attacks for the misdoings of the system of which he was formerly the head, Mr. Mellen is doubtless extracting some satisfaction in seeing the other fellows do a bit of squirming. The one thing most apparent about the whole affair is that the government was not a bit too early in uncovering New Haven's ruthless steam-roller methods of dealing with all who opposed it.

The National Voters' League, with headquarters in Washington, is out with the implied declaration that it is forced to question the sincerity of a good many of the statesmen when it contrasts their legislative performance with promises made. It appears to be plainly shocked at discrepancies developing between what actually happens in the treatment of public questions and protestations of fealty to the cause of the people and denunciation of the course of the other fellows when they were in power. For an organization which has been in close touch with the political game, the National Voters' League appears to have possessed a most amazing lot of confidence in the men who make playing it their chief end in life.

Evidence adduced in court at St. Joseph, Mich., is to the effect that in the "House of David" cult it was the custom for feminine members to draw their husbands by lot, thirteen couples having been wed after mating up in lottery fashion. Divorce court records indicate that such a system is not a great deal better than that which prevails to a considerable extent in other quarters as well.

Because her husband purchased an automobile instead of fulfilling his promise to lay his money away for her use after his death, a Shelbyville woman has filed suit for divorce. Doubtless the husband had visions of his widow whizzing about in a new auto after he had departed, and merely concluded to try a bit of the life himself.

Members of the English house of commons are indulging in some extremely bitter criticism of the course of Britannia's war leaders. Well, if you look at it from the British point of view, the thing in a good many respects seems to need a "goat," and those commoners have made up their minds that the war leaders are it.

In other words, Judge Anderson decides that the street railway trouble and the complications that have grown out of it are clearly our own little family fuss, and that Uncle Sam has no occasion to wix in it through the medium of his courts.

WILL OPERATE JITNEYS.

Woman Says She Will Fill Every Requirement at Logansport.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 12.—"Next spring I'll fill every requirement asked by the city and operate my jitneys just to spite those old councilmen," declared Mrs. Daisy B. Negley, owner of several jitneys, when told that the city council had passed an ordinance imposing a prohibitive license tax on these carriers which have become so numerous here this summer and cut deeply into the business of the street car line. The annual fee is placed at $100 for operators with five-passenger cars, $150 for seven-passenger cars and $250 for all cars of more than seven passengers. Each jitney driver must file a bond of $10,000 to indemnify passengers or other damages suffered by operation of the jitneys. The applicant must specify the route and the terminals and the board of works may refuse licenses to operators in streets already provided with ample transportation facilities.

"I was just getting ready to quit for winter," stated Mrs. Negley, "but you can bet I'll be on the job next spring giving the street car company a run for their money, ordinance or no ordinance."

QUININE SCARCITY IS MOST ALARMING

Price Has Gone Up from 40 Cents to $2.75 an Once.

Fort Wayne druggists are alarmed over the scarcity of quinine, a condition that is said to exist throughout the country. Quinine in Fort Wayne is selling for $2.75 an ounce, against forty cents an ounce eighteen months ago. The rise is laid to a speculative movement which, it is said, is one of the boldest in the drug business during a quarter of a century.

American manufacturers are receiving from abroad approximately 50 per cent. of their usual consignments of cinchona bark solely from Java, so that, on the basis of bark shipments, the price, so the retailers complain, should not be much more than twice the usual price, or fifty to seventy-five cents an ounce.

Glycerine Also Up. Coal tar derivatives used as substitutes for quinine, have also gone up, principally because the oil from which they are made is required in making explosives. This is also the situation in glycerine, which brings about sixty cents a pound, against twenty-one cents before the war demand. Cod liver oil is also greatly advanced.

So far, notwithstanding the advance in quinine and cod liver oil prices, there has been no advance, in general, in drug store prices.

MISS COLERICK IS PRESIDENT

Fort Wayne Librarian Chosen to Head State Association.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 12.—The Indiana Library association concluded the business of its 1915 meeting here, deciding to follow its customary rule to hold every second annual convention in Indianapolis. Accordingly the 1916 meeting will be at the state capital.

Miss Margaret Colerick, librarian at Fort Wayne, was chosen president. H. N. Sanborn, secretary of the Indianapolis library commission, was elected vice-president. Miss Winifred Tier, of Huntington, was named secretary.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent calomel, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not salivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.—Advertisement.

Chips from the Time Block

THE WAITRESS IN THE HASHERY—

—was large and passing fair, and she always wore a smile and plenty dresses;

when you had ordered well done beans she never brought them rare, and she seldom mixed the butter with her tresses. She won a corner in my heart first time I ordered peas, for she brought me peas that were above suspicion, and she didn't try to substitute some evil smelling cheese, nor wait until I'd died of insanity. She bore herself with dignity and never tried to flirt, but once upon a time a gay young granger said, "Hasten hither Dimples! Say, I think you're quite a skirt!" Said she, "What kind of hash this evening, Stranger?" He answered, "Why not meet me at a quarter after nine, just beside the little booze shop over yonder? You're just the kind of chicken that's exactly in my line, and of you 'most every minute I grow fonder!" At that she spilled the gravy and the coffee down his back, and while the folks about her smiled approval she laid a six-pound platter on his coco with a whack. Then she quietly requested his removal. "That's another one knocked out. I surely busted 'Willie on the beanie!" Well, maybe these young boobies will learn to mind what they're about, and to tell that after-dinner stuff to Sweeney!"—Charles B. Driscoll.

WIFE IS MISSING;
WHITE SLAVE TALK

Young and Pretty Mrs. Chloe Barrett
Gone Since November 2 From
Montpelier, Ohio, Home.

Montpelier, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Chloe Barrett, aged 24, the pretty brunette wife of George Barrett, has been missing from her home in this city since Tuesday, November 2, and is believed to be in hiding at some point in southern Michigan. One trail led to Fort Wayne, but early in the present week her father, Mahlon Huston, and her brother, Ed Huston, visited that city, getting no trace of her there. Michigan's towns have been visited or inquired of, but no clue to the young wife's whereabouts have been gained and fears are expressed that she may be the victim of white slave promoters. The young wife and her husband had been having trouble and Mrs. Barrett told her mother the day before she disappeared that her husband had told her to leave him and that she was going to go. Her words were not taken seriously. Harold Pointer, a young man who worked on a farm near here, had been accused by Barrett of breaking up his home, at which Pointers had been a frequent caller for several weeks. The day that Mrs. Barrett left there came to the postoffice here a postal card mailed at Clayton, Mich., and bearing no message and no signature, but only the words, "From a friend." It has been learned that Mrs. Barrett went from here by rail to Alford, Ohio, where she bought a ticket to Hudson, Mich., where all trace of her was lost. Barrett was in Jackson, Mich., Sunday, and returned here that night, saying he had found his wife there; that he had seen her name on a hotel register and had traced her to a theater, but was not allowed to enter the playhouse and he did not wait for the performance to close because he had to leave that city at once. His story has been proved false.

BEAT UP AN AGED MAN.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12.—Charges of assault and battery with intent to kill were filed in circuit court by Prosecutor A. H. Sapp, against John Short and his son, Boyd Short, for brutally attacking Harding Fredericks, 65 years old. The quarrel arose over the disposition of some cord wood that had been sent by Fredericks and the Shorts on loans. The elder Short knocked Fredericks down and the young man leaped on him, he declared, and struck him repeatedly. While he was lying prostrate on the ground with short kneeling on him, the elder Short bit him several times on the head with a stick of heavy wood. Finally the men desisted in their attack, and Fredericks managed to get home, where his wife administered to his injuries. Mr. Fredericks was hastened to a surgeon where his wounds were dressed and then he related his story to the prosecutor.

TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD FAILS.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 12.—Sylvan E. Schwartz, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Schwartz, passed away Thursday at his parents' home southeast of the Christian Apostolic church near the Wells-Adams county line. He had been in a very serious condition for several months and an operation was performed several weeks ago in which transfusion of blood was accomplished, the lad's father giving blood from his own system in an attempt to replenish the weakened blood in his son's veins. The operation resulted in only temporary benefit. The boy's illness began after a runaway accident during the summer in which one of his hips was injured.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

Columbia City, Ind., Nov. 12.—Margaret Ann Van Orsdoll, aged 74, widow of the late Henry Van Orsdoll, who fell at her home here three weeks ago Wednesday, passed away Thursday, death resulting from the injuries she received in the fall. Mrs. Van Orsdoll was quite feeble and her sister, Mrs. Levi Bodley, had been staying with her and taking care of her. On the morning of the accident Mrs. Bodley left Mrs. Van Orsdoll sitting in a chair, with instructions that she should not try to get up, while she went to one of her neighbors to use the telephone. During the absence of Mrs. Bodley, Mrs. Van Orsdoll got up and made an attempt to cross the floor and fell.

NEW WAY DISSOLVES
SUPERFLUOUS HAIR!

A marvelous improvement over every old method of removing superfluous hairs is coming into wide use by thousands of women. For the first time it is now possible to remove superfluous hair in a few moments, without leaving any trace, mark, tint, redness or soreness whatever, or any evidence that a hair-remover has been used. This new formula is as harmless as water to the most delicate skin, has no objectionable odor and is easier to use than any previous method. Get from your drug store a bottle of the new Sulfo Solution. It is in the form of a golden, creamy liquid, poured easily from a bottle. Apply a little on the hairs anywhere, and the hairs, no matter how thick, dissolve away instantly. It leaves the skin beautiful, soft and white. Heretofore there has never been a hair-remover which would not irritate, render or injure even a tough skin, but such a result as this is absolutely impossible with this formula. Sulfo Solution is made by the Cooper-Pharmaceutical Co. of Chicago. It costs $1.00, and is sold in Fort Wayne by Meyer Bros. Co. and Dreier Drug Co.—Advertisement.

VICTIMS WILL SPLIT $165.

Garrett, Ind., Nov. 12.—The creditors of Frank A. Hall, the Garrett bankrupt, have only $165 to divide between them. This will be distributed on a basis of about 2 1/2 per cent. The settlement is being made by the trustee, Arthur E. Smith, with the assistance of his attorney, H. W. Mount. Within a few days the checks will be mailed to the creditors. Hall's schedule of debts amounted to about $5,000. Hall's term of six months in the Indiana penal farm will expire about December 15. Upon his release he will be met at the gate by Sheriff John P. Hoff, who will present him with a Christmas gift in the shape of five indictments that were returned by the grand jury in this county.

WILL MEET IN WATERLOO.

Waterloo, Ind., Nov. 12.—President A. L. Moody, of the DeKalb County Sunday School association, has issued a call for a meeting of all Sunday school superintendents and other workers, to be held in the assembly room of the Waterloo library, on Saturday afternoon of this week. The meeting will be called at 2 o'clock, and at this time there will be plans discussed whereby this year can be made a better year for the Sunday schools of DeKalb county. Matters of interest to the next year's Sunday school convention will also be discussed, and there will be a number of phases of the work brought out.

BIG BUSINESS DEAL IN BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 12.—In a deal announced yesterday John H. Painter took over the Hartman and Diller feed barn, on North Main street, purchasing the site and buildings from Pilek & Sons, a Fort Wayne real estate firm, who acquired it in the deal in which John Hartman and Henry Diller traded the barn for a farm near Auburn, the property of Mayor McClellene, of Auburn. The barn was given a valuation of $15,000 in the deal with Mr. Painter and he

GARRETT'S NEW CITY HALL.

Garrett, Ind., Nov. 12.—The completion of the floors and stairways in the city hall will be a Christmas gift to the city of Garrett. The council let contracts Tuesday night for the laying of terrazzo flooring and marble wainscoting, costing in all about $2,300. The decorating will not be done this winter, but will likely be added next year. When completed the building will have cost about $30,000. Of this, the indebtedness will amount to only $16,500, which is represented by bonds.

TO PUT ON FLESH
[AND INCREASE WEIGHT]

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all a matter of what they eat. It's the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all. Most thin people say this because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by Meyer Bros. Drug Co., Dreier Drug Co., D. & N. Pharmacy, The Family Drug Store, and other good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advertisement.

MARKLE MAN LOSES TROUSERS.

Markle, Ind., Nov. 12.—Several nights ago Henry Platt was robbed of about $15 and a good pair of trousers. Mr. and Mrs. Platt returned to their home in the evening after a visit with friends and retired early. Mr. Platt leaving his trousers with his pocketbook in them lying near a bed. Some time during the night a thief entered the house and carried away the trousers and money. It is thought that whoever did the stealing entered the bedroom through a window which had been left open.

YOUTH DIES UNEXPECTEDLY.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 12.—Albert Lumm, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lumm, of South Jackson street, who had been sick with liver trouble for the past six months, passed quietly away at the home of his parents Thursday. During all his illness he had never been budging. Wednesday evening he felt good and was jolly, but took worse during the night. He walked down stairs next morning and in a short while changed for the worse and passed away. He was but 19 years of age and was born here.

MUST NUMBER HOUSES.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 12.—The numbers for numbering the residences of Decatur under an ordinance passed by the city council are now here and must be placed before December 15 by the owners or the city will do the work and charge it against the property. The old numbers were not satisfactory and the postal authorities asked that they be replaced with new ones for the convenience of locating homes in mail delivery. The numbers are in the hands of the city officials where they may be purchased.

DEPARTMENT MAKES

If Followed Would Be Great Help to Postal Employees.

The postoffice department at Washington has called the attention of Postmaster Edward Miller to the necessity of asking the patrons of the Fort Wayne postoffice to assist in the national movement of "Mailing Early" during the Christmas rush, which always buries postal employees several days before the joyful day arrives. The department also suggests that if business men and manufacturers who mail large quantities of mail would see that their mail was mailed, all long letters together, full postage paid and addressed correctly and plainly written, the local office would be much benefited and the patrons receive better service. The letter states that, when possible, the mailers should bring their mail to the main office instead of using street letter boxes when several letters are to be mailed at once, as quicker service can be given them. The suggestion of the department that large mailers bring their mail to the office at frequent intervals of the day instead of mailing once or at most twice each day is worthy of much consideration. If this large volume of mail were brought to the office at intervals during the day, it would prove a much easier matter to give the speedy dispatch that all desire when a letter is put in the hands of Uncle Sam.

QUEST CLUB BANQUET.

Prof. Gilman Speaks on the Making of Valuable Men Out of Raw Material.

Prof. S. W. Gilman, of the University of Wisconsin, was the principal speaker Thursday evening at the regular monthly banquet of the Quest club at the Anthony hotel. H. Brooks Sale acted as toastmaster. Prof. Gilman spoke on the making of valuable men out of raw material and the need of personal energy in the making of these men. He declared it is better to inspire men to do work, rather than to force them. About fifty members of the club were present.

OSTEOPATHY

AND HOW IT AFFECTS THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

The spine is composed of vertebrae, which are movable, inside of which is the spinal cord with nerves branching out through small openings between the vertebrae. These nerves pass to all parts and organs of the body and control the function of each. If one or more vertebrae become slightly rotated or tilted too far forward, or backward, undue pressure is brought to bear on the nerves and blood vessels passing in and out between those particular vertebrae. The irritation thus produced to the primary nerves and blood vessels is the primary cause of most diseases, either acute or chronic. For instance, a slight rotation of the first vertebra in the neck will cause disease of eyes and ears, nervousness, headache, particularly in the back of the head, neuralgia, stiff neck, and a general exhausted feeling. Why it does this is because direct pressure, mechanical pressure, is brought to bear upon the blood supply to the brain, as well as mechanical irritation to the nerve center located at that point in the spine. The "cause" of these symptoms being "mechanical" it is hardly to be expected that a "chemical" remedy will affect them, other than giving relief for a short time. Osteopathic treatment will give complete relief in most of the cases. (State Educational Bureau.)—Advertisement.

BEAUTY AT 40—WOMAN OF ANY AGE CAN WEAR ANY COLOR THAT BECOMES HER.

IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON.

I was describing to a friend the other day a woman whom I had never seen except in pink or blue and she exclaimed, "Mercy, is she as old as all that?"

Color plays a great part in the beauty scheme of a woman of 40. The days when black as a suitable color to signify the death of hope has passed.

A woman of any age can wear any color that becomes her. Personally, I could never wear any of the shades of pink until my hair grew white, but for the woman who has white hair and a good flesh complexion there is no color more becoming than any shade of pink, from flesh to coral, or from blush to American beauty.

I never wear a corset in my own home and my house dresses are all made after one design which I have evolved after many years of experiment.

These costumes are made of any fine material from Canton crepe to broad velvet and I do not feel called on to apologize to anyone because they are unconventional, as they are graceful, modest and most comfortable.

esteem and of their recognition of the honor shown her in her recent election as the highest officer of the State Federation of clubs. Mrs. C. A. Horton spoke for the board of directors in presenting the gift.

The members of the X. Y. Z. club gave a surprise on Wednesday evening to Miss Bernadette Cranston, of West Third street. The company baked marshmallows and later were served an elegant luncheon. The X. Y. Z.'s, Misses Marie Grancy, Bernadette Mohl, Josephine Nettie, Sadie Marsh, Mary Pembroke, Etta, McCall, Nona O'Meara, and Don Ross, Miss Thompson, Andy George, Jack Sears, Roy Wenzel, Frank Jerles, Bill Miller and Ervin Zollinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Erisig, of Harrison street, entertained a few friends on Wednesday evening. The guests were Miss Margaret Young, of this city. Music and dancing were chief pleasures of the evening, with an excellent lunch for later enjoyment. The guests were Mrs. and Mrs. J. F. Walker, Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Gerren, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hartwig, Mrs. Mary Dalton and Mrs. Margaret Young.

St. Wayne Council, Knights of Columbus, gave a progressive luncheon party in their rooms in the Laus block on Wednesday evening. One of the largest crowds of members present at any time this season, was on hand for the good time. Prizes were won by Misses Helen Auer and Alma Huber, and Messrs. Will Ueber and Byron Hayes. The next social event of the Knights will be a reception on Tuesday, Nov. 16, and will be the closing affair until after the first of the new year.

The Music Students club formed by piano pupils of Miss Gertrude Schick, will give an informal musicale at Packard hall this evening at 8 o'clock. Friends of the club and their teacher will be welcome if they care to attend. The members of the club who are to participate are Velma Hoffman, Irene Meyer, Adeline Hagerman, Velma Linker, Hilja Hagerman, Helen Hoffman, Mrs. Jacobs, Luella Schwehn, Marie Doctor, Carol Horman, Gertrude Wolf, Clara Lange, Frieda Schild, Anita Walbaum and Frieda Trier. An interesting bit of the program will be some original compositions by two or three harmony class pupils, Esther Follman, Frieda Trier and Clara Lange.

Miss Stella Chochoit, who is to be a bride of Thanksgiving day, was the honor guest at a shower party, given by Mrs. Leo O'Brien and Miss Edna Bailey, on Monday evening, at their home on Third street. A decoration of hearts and cupid's told of the coming nuptial event, while in the dining room the fact was more emphasized by the suspension of a big white bell, from which ribbons led to each plate, at the table. The bride-elect was showered with many pretty gifts. Those who participated in the pretty affair were Mr. and Mrs. Leo O'Brien, Mrs. and Mrs. J. Bailey and

My friends tell me that the one most becoming is of American beauty and dull blue striped satin.

I must have plenty of color about me and I think as a woman reaches her fiftieth summer she should take a leaf from nature and use any of the brilliant tints with which autumn dyes the foliage, turning the earth to crimson and gold.

White is always becoming, especially to the woman with white hair. It is not so pretty on the gray haired woman. Of course, for the street one may not make herself too conspicuous, but it is a good rule to follow that one should never wear black except as a last resort.

It is a matter of individual taste, but I do not believe in publishing my private grief by public mourning. So in my wardrobe except when plentifully trimmed with jet or with the introduction of a touch of color near the face.

At 40 one must not follow fashion too slavishly. Make it conform to your individuality and you need never fear results.

Misses Della Reese, Frances Long, Edith Neale, Josephine Lange, Charlotte, Marie and Lucille Chochoit, Etheldreda and Olive Freisenstein, Agnes and Anna Bailey, and Messrs. Alvin Hartman, Jack Hendrick, Fred Weberus, Tony Hartman and Ernest Bailey.

Spielman—Heine. Miss Lydia Louise Heine, daughter of Mrs. August Heine, and Mr. Milton H. Spielman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Spielman, of Cincinnati, were married at a beautiful home wedding, on Thursday evening at half past 6 o'clock, by Prof. Walter Moll, as the bride's pastor, Rev. William Moll, is out of the city. The wedding took place at the bride's home, 228 Douglas avenue, and the immediate relatives were the guests.

Miss Estelle Griebel played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the bride came down stairs in a ribbon pathway made by nephews and a niece who held the ribbons. The children were Margaret, Richard, Harold and Ellwood Heine. Miss Margaret in a white frock also held a calla lily blossom and it contained the wedding ring. The bride, who is very sweet and attractive looking of a pure blonde type, looked particularly lovely in her wedding costume. Her gown was an evening dress of white crepe de chine with beautiful lace about the neck and short sleeves and also forming a cascade of sleeves on the front of the skirt. The bride wore a veil arranged in a flat cap effect with flowers or ornament, and she carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Following the extending of congratulations, the wedding company, numbering twenty-four, were served an elegant dinner for which Mrs. Griebel catered. The house was decorated with chrysanthemums and other fall flowers and pots of ferns. The bride and groom stood between an arrangement of ferns and "mums for the marriage service. The bride's table was done in smilax, rose petals and white candles under green lights. A big wedding cake of handsome appearance as well as toothsome make, occupied the center of the table. At midnight the bride and groom left for Cleveland, where Mr. Spielman has a home ready for his bride. Mr. Spielman is an electrical engineer who was graduated from Purdue university and is employed by the Frantz Premier company, of Cleveland. After Dec. 15, Mr. and Mrs. Spielman will be at home at 1217 Lakeview avenue, in that city. For traveling the bride wears a dark blue velvet suit with trimmings of maroon fur and her blouse and hat correspond. The groom's parents and a brother, Mr. Carl Spielman, all of Cincinnati, were present at the wedding. The bride is very popular with a large acquaintance of young people, many of whom have entertained for her in honor of her approaching wedding, while her domestic tastes and charming manner will go far towards her ease in making friends in her new home.

"THE BLUE BIRD" AND HAPPINESS
 Famous Fairy Fantasy Begins Three Days' Performance at Majesty.

The much written of play by Maurice Maeterlinck, "The Blue Bird," opened a three days' engagement at the Majestic theater on Thursday evening and apparently delighted a good sized audience. The presentation is excellent, and the two children, Tyltyl and Mytyl, being beautifully acted and those of the other important roles leaving so little open to criticism that only one praise is their due. The lines which are necessary a part of the story were in all cases very distinct and clear, and the characterization of the dog and the cat, light and night, were excellent. Fairy Beryl, by Anna Gates, had the same pleasing quality of voice, a good enunciation, a face that left no more to be desired for the lines of the blue bird do not require acting to be impressive. The quest of happiness in the play is as it is in life, sought for in the things one has not, but which the seeker believes will be found in obtaining some desired thing or in possibly something wholly unattainable. For happiness the blue bird is the symbol and so the children start out to find the blue bird, and in the end find one at home, through their act of doing something for someone else. The night's journey is the charm of the play and those of the audience who let loose rein on their imagination and like children, play make-believe for a while, will get an enjoyment that will send them home for a night of peaceful sleep that few theater performances can produce. Maeterlinck suggests a number of things that are sweet and charming with a belief in a future existence that is in tune with any religious belief other than of materialism. As a scenic production the performance is very beautiful. There are eleven scenes and those representing the Land of Memory, the Kingdom of the Past and the Kingdom of the Future and the Land of Happiness are lovely enough for any fairyland story imaginable.

The performance moves swiftly, too, as well as without a hesitation or noise while a lovely musical program contributes much to the enjoyment of people who like music well enough to listen to it. The company producing the performance is large and many children add to the delicate charm of the presentation. The dancing is as would be natural to the character of the performance, impressive by reason of its imaginative quality, its grace and beauty. "Fire" enacted by Vincent Romeo, is a skillful bit of acrobatic dancing. Richard Morgan as Bread, Henry Duggan as a perfect dog impersonation and T. K. Curless as the Cat, share in winning praises from the audience. Tyltyl and Mytyl are acted by Mary and Doris Eaton. Miss Mary's work is splendid and little Doris is especially impressive in her natural manner of shrinking and fear of what she can't understand. The costuming and general effects are tip-top all the way through and no one need hesitate about seeing the performance for fear it isn't first class.

WORKMAN HIT BY JETNEY. Stepping from the curb into the street on Calhoun street near Holman, at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening, Fred Harmer, a laborer residing at 311 Brook-bridge street, was struck by a north bound Jetney bus driven by Roy Williams. He was severely cut about the head and on the hand and was attended by Dr. Dean Metcalf in his office in the German-American Trust company building, in front of which the accident occurred. A north bound street car swept by as Harmer stepped into the street and he was watching that for safety and did not see the Jetney, whose speed was not excessive.

DISCUSS PLANS AT W. C. T. U. MEETING

Church Friday.

Plans of the work for the coming year were discussed at the meeting of the Allen County Superintendents of the Women's Christian Temperance union, held at Plymouth Congregational church Friday. The morning session was well attended and many plans were submitted by Mrs. Martha Ride-nour, the county president, who spoke on the subject, "The Open Door for Organization."

One of the features of the program was the demonstration given by Mrs. T. P. Potts and a class of boys and girls of foreign parentage at the Rolling Mill Mission for Foreign Speaking People, located in the Rolling Mill district. The girls told of their work in domestic science and the boys told how they helped in cleaning the church, such as dusting and pounding rugs.

The afternoon session which opened at 2 o'clock was still better attended than the brief morning session. On account of illness some parts of the program were omitted. Mrs. Saunders told of the work among the colored people of the city and all the other superintendents who were present took part in the program.

The mass meeting which was to have been held this evening at 7:30 o'clock was cancelled on account of the illness of several people who were to speak.

NEUTRALS WILL HOLD PEACE MEETING SOON

Washington, Nov. 12.—David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, former president of Indiana university and head of the International Peace Congress held in San Francisco, told President Wilson today that a quasi-official meeting of neutral nations probably will be held some time before Christmas either at The Hague, Bern or Copenhagen to attempt to bring about peace in Europe. Dr. Jordan conveyed to the president a resolution from the peace congress urging him to co-operate with other neutrals in calling such a conference.

In a statement by Dr. Jordan it was declared that as a result of recent missions to the governments of the warring nations it could be stated that while the nations at war were not willing themselves to begin negotiations for peace, "there is nevertheless abundant evidence that those charged with the administration of the foreign policies of these nations would welcome or least not oppose efforts to bring about a peace based on international justice."

Dr. Jordan said that with no official confirmation available peace advocates had learned from unofficial sources in Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Denmark and Spain that those countries would be glad to take part in any movement to further the cause of peace.

Dr. Jordan took the position that it would be more natural for the European neutrals to invite the United States to participate in the peace conference than for the United States to issue the invitation. He said that an unofficial meeting of peace advocates at Bern, Dec. 14, at which plans for bringing about peace will be discussed, would be attended by people from the United States.

BRIDE DIES BECAUSE HUSBAND DID NOT LIKE COLOR OF HER APRON.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Esther Campbell, a bride of a few weeks, died at a hospital here today as a result of the fact that her husband did not like the color of her apron. Last Tuesday Mrs. Campbell was standing near a stove. Her mother warned her that her apron was scorching and the young bride replied that she did not care as her husband did not like the color. A minute later her clothing burst into flames and she was fatally burned before her mother could extinguish the blaze. When Mrs. Campbell died her mother was on an adjoining cot in a serious condition from burns received in trying to save her daughter.

NO CROSS WORDS DURING 63 YEARS

Probably Only Couple Living With Such a Record.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.--Not one cross word during 63 years or married life. Possibly the only two people this side of Utopia, who have a right to claim the old fairy tale ending for their lives that "they lived happily ever after," are Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bodine.

The couple celebrated the sixty-third anniversary of their wedding tonight by going to the "movies" and on their return were given a surprise party by the four generations of their family.

Summarized, these are the reasons given by the couple for having lived happily so many years:

By Mrs. Bodine: She thinks there is nobody like "father." "Will do anything in the world to please him." Cooks and bakes like an artist. Praises him when he deserves it, and loves a joke. By Mr. Bodine: "Thinks his wife is the finest woman in the world. Is always willing to listen to what a lady has to say. Never takes a vacation unless she goes, too. Has a joke ready for any and every occasion. Never wants anybody else but "mother."

WELL, SHE WANTED TO KNOW

Writes County Clerk to Learn If She Is Married.

Paoli, Ind., Nov. 12.--Charles Brown, clerk of the Orange circuit court, has evidently received the "distress sign" and has been called on to decide for an Illinois woman as to whether she is really married. The woman is evidently at a loss to answer the question to her entire satisfaction, as will be noted by the following letter, just received by the clerk:

Niptic, Ill., November 9, 1915.
County Clerk, Paoli, Ind.

Dear Sir--Please let me know whether I am married or not. The judge in Springfield, Ill., said I was not married, or if I am not, please let me know. Judge Weaver, at the county court, said I wasn't married, and if I am not married, please let me know at once. Remaining, MRS. ANNA BEAR once. Remaining, MRS. ANNA BEAR. Please answer at once.

Distress in the Stomach.

There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padgham, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere.---Advertisement.

PUBLIC WAS TOO EAGER.

The public was too eager to take something for nothing. The Pennsylvania company is placing in its stations along the Louisville division, machines from which an individual drinking cup may be had by dropping 1 cent in a slot. The company began by giving free individual drinking cups. The demand for these was so great that investigation was made and the company found that persons would take dozens of the cups for use elsewhere because they were free.

DEATH WRITES THE FINIS TO VIVID HAWAIIAN ROMANCE.

Henry G. Smart, Mrs. Smart and their son, Richard, heir to $3,000,000.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 12.--The recent death of Henry Gaillard Smart, in Charlottesville, Va., has written finis to one of the most sensational of Hawaiian romances.

The $3,000,000 estate of his wife, beautiful Thelma Parker, which Smart had won in legal contest after her death a year ago, now passes on to his baby son, Richard, who is with his grandmother in this city.

The contest by which the husband won control of Hawaii's largest plantation, against the claims of his wife's mother and stepfather, was the most sensational ever brought in the islands.

Henry Gaillard Smart, son of a prominent Virginia minister, and a graduate of the University of Virginia, met Thelma Parker, then 19, during a sea voyage to Honolulu, paid ardent court and married her soon after their arrival in the islands. That was three years ago.

As heiress of the Parker estate, and granddaughter of Col. Sam Parker, she brought a dowry of millions, and after the last and most brilliant of the old-time Hawaiian festivals in celebration of their nuptials, the young couple sailed around the world.

A son, Richard, was born, and Mrs. Smart's health began to fail. At the outbreak of the war they were in Paris, where a second child was born.

In a prostrate condition the young mother died from Paris. Her child lived but a few days, and the mother, pining for her lost babe, as well as the waning devotion of her husband, according to her family, died a short time later in San Francisco.

Hawaiian singers and ukulele players had tried vainly to rally her when she called for music that would conjure childhood memories. Soon after the death of his wife, Smart won the legal battle for her $3,000,000 estate and then returned to his home in Virginia.

A few days ago he succumbed to spinal meningitis.

WHERE PEACE PATHS NOW SEEM TO LEAD

Lucerne May See Agreement for Cessation of Hostilities.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—"Lucerne, toward which, rumor has it, all peace paths of the world now take their way, and upon which the eyes of many troubled millions have been turned in the keen hope that the bright mountain city may soon attain the enviable fame of sending forth the call to cease hostilities in the world's greatest war, is described in a statement issued today by the National Geographic Society. Prince von Buelow's visit to the city strengthened peace rumors which have been growing in assurance during weeks past, and centered peace activities in Lucerne. The war primer telling of Lucerne, reads:

"Lucerne, the capital of the Canton of Lucerne, situated in an amphitheatre of mountains upon the exquisite Lake of Lucerne, is one of the most beautiful and most picturesque towns in Switzerland, and, in the end of the pilgrim's paradise, it has been one of the principal tourist centers. In tone, it is thoroughly cosmopolitan; for, during normal times, representatives of Europe and both Americas are continually passing through the place, to and from the famous St. Gotthard. More than 100,000 visitors were entertained in Lucerne each year in normal times, and, though a place of only 40,000 population, it possesses 70 hotels, many of them as pretentious as those to be found in New York and Paris.

"Mountains wall the city, save where the wall is broken through by the torrent of the Reuse, which drains Lucerne lake. The Pilatus range, Rigi, and the Alps of Uri and Engelberg frame the crystal waters at their feet. Lucerne is primarily a city of peace, because its support depends upon the good-will, the prosperity, and the leisure of nations productive and at peace with one another. The annual 100,000 visitors pay the running expenses of the place and furnish it with plenty of pocket money for incidental luxuries.

"Before the outbreak of the war, Lucerne was a resort patronized all the year around, by vacationists, those in search of winter sport, mountain climbers, by the infirm in need of bracing air and inspiring surroundings, and by the small army regularly bound for the passage of St. Gotthard's pass. The town, itself, is full of picturesque and historic values. The older part of the city is medieval, threaded by narrow, crooked streets and built up with ancient houses. Part of the old defenses are still standing, while the town-hall is a survival from the 16th century. In it, is now housed a museum rich in antiquities.

"Lucerne is conveniently situated for informal conferences between the warring nations, for it is neutral land, most in the heart of battle-torn Europe, and the only place equally accessible to all the larger combatants. In less than a day's time, representatives can gather from London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Vienna. More difficultly is in the way of the representatives sent from Petrograd, but, for all practical purposes, Lucerne is the placid center around which Europe's cyclonic storms of war are raging in widening circles. As the hub of trouble and destruction, it is a fitting point from which to send out the suggestions of peace and reconstruction."

WAR ORPHANS COME IN VAST NUMBERS

Are Being Sent to Lives of Safety Under Stars
and Stripes.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—While Europe's men are killing each other, Europe's excess children are being sent to lives of safety under the shelter of the stars and stripes.

From some of the countries the proportion of child immigrants to the total stream of immigration has nearly doubled.

All immigration from the nations at war, of course, has fallen off, and from a few it has almost ceased, yet figures sent to be published by the immigration bureau will show that the immigration of children under 14 years of age has fallen off relatively much less than the immigration of adults.

The stoppage of the stream of aliens entering the United States is startling. Only 26 per cent., or about one-fourth as many came in the fiscal year ending June, 1915, as in the year before the war.

But the shrinkage is not uniform. For Germany, France and England, the percentage of children under 14 entering the United States remains the same now as before the war.

But for Italy, the percentage of children changed from 13 per cent. in 1914 to 20 per cent. in 1915. For rances which inhabit Russia—the Finns, Russians, Rumanians and Slovaks—the percentage of child immigrants changed from 8 in 1914 to 14 per cent. in 1915. The child immigration of Hebrews—victims of the war in every country—changed from 21 per cent. in 1914 to 25 per cent. in 1915.

The rates of the Austro-Hungarian empire—Bohemian, Moravian, Croatian, Slovenian, Lithuanian and Magyar—changed their percentage of child immigrants from 12 in 1914 to 20 per cent. in 1915. And the Poles changed from 12 per cent. of children in 1914 to 20 per cent. in 1915.

Immigration bureau officials conclude that the stoppage of the alien stream affects the men of military age, while more of the children are coming to relatives and friends in this country to escape the horrors of the war.

PUT TO WORK AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—A sudden influx of child laborers from the war-ridden sections of Europe, has given Chicago juvenile court officials and factory inspection officers a new problem.

Numbers of "war orphans" or children sent to this country to escape war's ravages have been received in friends or relatives of their parents in this city. Nearly 1,600 arrived within a week last month. Many of these have been placed in factories, in some cases violating the compulsory education law.

The school board has an agreement with the immigration inspectors at Ellis island, whereby all alien minors bound for Chicago are listed and the Chicago addresses forwarded to this city. Keeping track of these children has more than doubled the work of the truant officers.

Good Judgment Leads to Good Clothes

Some men act from impulse; their desires and emotions take the place of judgment; promise them more than is possible to give and they "fall for it." They are the folks who have to learn through "sad experience." Desire never yet took the place of paying for what you got, a law of nature.

Something for Something

And just as much of it as you pay for is truer in the clothing business today than ever before. Competition has made it so. Each merchant gives you the best he can for the money you give him—there is no trust in the retail clothing business, no magic to help one more than the other.

If you desire to be well fitted, well "tailored" and well satisfied you'll have to pay for good designing, good tailoring and good material. If you pay for less you'll get less. $10 never bought $15 worth of value, under normal circumstances and $15 won't buy $25 worth of value. It costs too much to produce real value.

Our $10, $15, $20 and $25 Clothing

Gives you just as much value as can be squeezed into it for the price—That means we take the least profit on the best clothes, for the money, we can buy. There is this in the name of

Stein-Bloch and Fashion Clothes
Their history of many years points to honest values and clever styles. We sell such clothes at all prices.

CHURCH ADS INDORSED.

Plan for Increasing Membership Favored at Unitarian Conference.

Pittsburg, Nov. 12.—Advertising as the means of increasing church membership received the strong indorsement of Rev. Edwin A. Rumball, of Boston, at the thirty-first annual meeting of the Unitarian conference of the middle states and Canada here.

"The Unitarians," he said, "are prepared to spend thousands of dollars on their publicity and advertising work. Last year alone showed an increase of 200,000 pamphlets distributed."

He also referred to the generous space taken by the various churches of the denomination in the daily newspapers.

Washington, Nov. 12.—"I love you," May Irwin, the actress, told President Wilson yesterday.

"And it is not because you are president. I have loved you throughout your career. So have my two sons and my husband."

"You don't know," she said, "how I have grieved over the suffrage defeat in New York. Had it passed I would have been able to vote for you next year."

THREATEN TO MAKE FIFTH WARD DRY

Residents of the Fifth ward are now discussing the circulation of a blanket remonstrance in their ward against saloons. Following the granting of a license to Frank McNamara, after the church and temperance workers of the ward had filed a remonstrance against him with the commissioners is the reason for the activities of the workers.

There has been a great deal of talk for nearly a year among Fifth ward residents concerning the making dry of their district, and the refusal to give a license to Stihar some time ago had the effect of quieting the sentiment for a time. However, granting a license to McNamara Wednesday has set the project on its feet again.

The Fifth ward includes all of Nebraska.

DECLARES BRITISH WAR CHIEFS BLUNDER

London, Nov. 12.—Disatisfaction with Great Britain's conduct of the war grows more evident daily. The house of commons last night was the scene of a bitter outburst by Arthur Lynch, nationalist member for West Clare. He declared that the country was headed straight for disaster unless an end was put at once to the incompetence shown by those in power.

He made a bitter attack on Earl Kitchener, whom he termed a blunderer, and declared that 75 per cent. of the British commanders should be cashiered, or at least removed from their present commands.

Even Sir John French, who is in command of the British forces in the west, did not escape his ire. He declared that French, after fifteen months' operations, had made no progress, and said the trouble with the army was that it had no leadership.

Saving Tom's Money

By Elsie Endicott

BAD LUTE PURDY has been a candidate for Tom's wife's favor. So had the sheriff of the county, a rich mine owner, and several other people of prominence. For Kate Lawrence was as pretty as a ripe peach with a soft loveliness of curved cheek and flowing lines that were as a magnet to the eye masculine.

For six weeks they had been husband and wife as well as lovers. Only one cloud had been on the horizon of their happiness. The roses no longer brushed their bloom on her soft cheeks. She moved languidly instead of with the light, free tread of other years. The doctors said she had been working too hard in the schoolroom and needed a change, that Tom had better take her to California across the mountains where she could be all day and night beneath the blue roof of the continent.

"The doctor knows best. If it's an outdoor life you need, that's what you'll get, Katie, my lass. I'll buy that camp outfit from Maddox and we'll cross the mountains by wagon. Twill set you right for sure."

"But what will we do with the money, Tom?"

The young Irish-American was a winner. Six months before he had taken a lease on the Nancy K and had struck pay ore. Before the lease was ended he had cleaned up nine thousand dollars. They had their dream of a little orange grove in southern California and both of them knew that this was the time to buy while prices were down. Wherefore they must have their money where they could get at it. A bank draft would not do because all over the country banks were paying in scrip. By good luck and industry he had won a "stake" and he intended to keep it within reach until that dream of an orange orchard became a reality.

"WELL take it with us," Tom answered.

Kate opened her eyes wide. "With us in the wagon? Will it be safe?"

"It will, for nobody will know of it."

"Take it all?"

"Every cent of it."

"Where?"

He whispered in her ear.

She laughed and nodded. "All right, Tom."

Within an hour she was cutting out and sewing on the machine canvas bags of long narrow shape.

Tom bought the Maddox camping outfit complete, sold for a song the household furniture, and closed up his business affairs. Late that same night he and his wife drew their money from the bank where it was deposited.

Their method of doing this might have struck the casual observer as criminal. First they pulled down every blind in the kitchen and locked the door. Cautiously Tom dragged back the linoleum and removed a short plank that had fitted from joist to joist. With his hand he scraped aside loose dirt and pulled up a tin box. This he unlocked, threw back the lid, and disclosed a heap of shining yellow discs, hundreds upon hundreds of them.

These they put one at a time into the long, narrow bags which were just big enough to hold fifty when carefully packed on top of another. Kate sewed up the bags as soon as they were filled and Tom dropped them through the bung hole into an empty water barrel. When the bank was empty, Tom carried the water barrel outside and attached it to its place beside the wagon, after which he filled it from another barrel in the yard. This done, he returned to the house and slept till morning.

It was still early when they started from Goldbanks across the desert. Both of them were pleased as Punch over their new wheeled home. It was the most complete and convenient thing of the kind they had ever seen. Everything had a place, from the rifle which hung suspended from a rack in the wagon within reach of Tom's hand, to the cooking cabinet that swung snugly into place above the folding table.

"We'll be ever so happy," sighed Kate with deep content.

She was glad to be leaving, for she longed for green and growing things and moreover had lived in a continual fear that her husband would be killed in the mine. Tom let his big brown hand squeeze her little one. He was an alert and pleasant-looking fellow of five and twenty. "We will that, please God."

They traveled only twenty-five miles that day, for it was their intention to take it easy so that Kate might not get tired. At four o'clock Tom made camp. He set up the little tent and built a fire. While his wife made supper he fed the horses, from the barrel, water and hobbled them, and unpacked the bedding from the wagon. After they had eaten he built up the camp-fire again, and together they sat in front of its leaping flames and watched the purple mountains grow into a black wall, with a jagged top reaching into the sky of stars.

The first thing in her life Kate fell asleep to the sound of the wind slapping the walls of the tent.

When she awoke she was amazed to see the sun peering at her over a saddle between two hills. Tom, busy making biscuits, called to her cheerfully. "Buenos dias, senora. When you are through dressing come and get it." Kate ate with a ravenous appetite that surprised her. Already the taste of the outdoors was getting into her blood.

Lelaurely they traveled toward the mountains, for they were in no hurry to reach their destination. And day by day Tom saw the roses come back into the cheeks of his wife. Over precipitous mountain roads they swung, sometimes at a dizzy height above the canon bed below, working round the great peaks and over the passes that lay between.

Sometimes they would go for long walks together, he with his gun and she perhaps with a fishing rod. He taught her how to shoot, to ride, to enjoy the simple camp life. Or it might be that in their walks, rifle and rod would be left in the wagon and a camera taken. Once, far up in the mountains, they left the outfit near a friendly ranch house for two days while they tramped to Lost Lakes and fished. There was nothing in the wagon these whole-hearted mountain people would take, and as for what was in the water barrel it was as safe and as well hidden as if it had been in a city safety deposit vault.

So they thought. Nor did anything occur to change their opinion during the first two weeks of their journey. They were well across the divide, drawing down toward one of California's famous scenic valleys, when that occurred which brought the steel into Tom's sunny blue eyes. At Waller's Humph they had stopped to camp for a week. The fishing was good and Tom's rifle secured them plenty of grouse and quail. Returning together to the wagon about dusk one evening, they came on a man prowling about the camp. He was at the tail of the wagon examining the cooking box and its contents.

"Nothing doing here, Bill," he growled.

Tom, rifle in hand, strode up and looked at the fellow frostily. The man was Lute Purdy, the ne'er-do-well mucker from the Goldbanks mines, who had been a rival of Lynch for the favor of Kate.

"Making yourself at home, Purdy, I see," Tom said quietly.

The man jumped as if he had been shot. A sudden face showed from the wagon, followed by a body in an evident hurry to descend.

Tom recognized this man as a second loose character with a reputation far from unimmaculate.

"Good afternoon, Bill. This your outfit?" Tom asked with quiet sarcasm.

"No, I—fact is we been tramping and we're hungry. Been looking for grub," Bill replied uneasily. For the owner of the wagon stood six feet in his shoes, had well-packed, supple muscles, and had won a reputation for fearlessness in a camp where there had been many reckless men.

"Funny Purdy didn't mention he had come to the grub if you are so hungry."

"I—I was just telling him," Purdy contributed.

Tom put the rifle down against the tail piece of the wagon, and put some ham sandwiches, and put them in a sack.

"Now we is the best we've got, boys. Now we'll say good-by," he said.

Both of them were big, hulking fellows, as ugly a pair of ruffians as one would be likely to meet. Either of them could have spared Tom twenty pounds, but they were muscle bound, and he was springy as a wildcat. There was in his steady blue eyes a moral suasion more potent than the weapon beside him. Moreover he had the law with him. They had plainly come for robbery, but they accepted sullenly his invitation to take themselves off.

"I don't know as we're in any such a mighty hurry," Purdy growled as they went. He longed to stay and fight with the cold-steel knife for it.

Tom did not answer, but his eye was on them till they had disappeared down the trail.

Kate came forward with a rather white face. "Oh, Tom. Do you think they know about—?" She looked at the water barrel without finishing her sentence.

"No, they can't. But they know I made money and they feel sure we must have some of it with us. Folks can't travel four or five hundred miles without having money for supplies and emergencies."

"What are you going to do?" she asked, for he was already busy packing.

"Going to move in closer to the Fraser ranch tonight. No use taking chances. They are a pair of mighty tame bandits, but it is better to be safe than sorry."

He did not tell her that he had seen a revolver projecting from the hip pocket of Purdy; nor did he mention that the man had been present when he drew the little fortune of gold pieces from the bank at Goldbanks.

The panic. No need to frighten her with the thought that these scoundrels had followed them a hundred and fifty miles with robbery as their aim.

But always from that time on he watched for them. Not for a moment did he believe he was rid of them permanently. When he was least expecting it, the pair of prize beauties would reappear, and if they ever took him at disadvantage the scoundrels would stick at nothing to gain their end. He pushed down the valley toward a more thickly settled country. Whenever it was possible he camped at a ranch house.

A week, and Tom began to feel easier in the mind. They were nearing Fresno, the end of their long journey. Probably after all he had shaken off the men who had been following him.

They came to camp at dusk one evening close by the bank of a river. It was on the edge of the raising-growing country. Game was beginning to get scarce, but they could hear the distant hooting of quail. The horses watered and fed, Tom and Kate took down the guns and followed the call of the birds. He was always a more eager hunter than she, and presently Kate returned to camp with the intention of starting supper.

On the edge of the little clearing by the river bank she stopped abruptly. A shadowy something was crouched at the tail of the wagon. The low murmur of the young woman stood still, then began to beat fast. It must be robbers after their money again. And Tom would not be back for half an hour.

She stilled the first panic in her, thinking desperately. She must hold them prisoners till Tom came back. But how? She could shoot straight enough—had killed a deer not two weeks earlier at two hundred yards. But could she shoot a man if it were necessary—and would she? Fear and excitement were fluttering in her like a caged bird. She was trembling like an aspen in the wind.

She thought of the money Tom had worked so hard to get. The tremors passed out of her. She felt her nerve and her resolution harden to iron. Noiselessly she skirted the camp ground, working closer and closer to the wagon, till she reached the cover of a large tree. Behind its trunk she took her stand and waited, tense and alert to every sound.

In the moonlight she could see two men busy in a litter of overturned boxes and scattered goods. Literally the contents of the wagon had been emptied on the ground. Even the flour had been poured from the sacks. Everything that could possibly be used as a hiding place for money had been turned topsy-turvy and ransacked.

The man doing the searching turned at last to the one sitting by the wheel with a revolver in his hand.

"It ain't here, Purdy. That's all there's to it. We been over everything."

"Except that water barrel. Smash it with the ax, Bill."

Kate fired into the air twice in quick succession. This was the signal that had been agreed upon between her and Tom in case she ever needed his help when he was at a distance.

Then Kate spoke. Her voice, as hard as hammered iron, surprised herself. "I'll shoot the first man that moves."

There was a moment's startled silence. The barrel of her gun could be seen shining in the moonlight. One of the men spoke to the other.

"It's only a woman."

"I killed a deer the other day," Kate said quietly.

They happened to know she spoke the truth, for a rancher in the hills told them about it. A revolver is a poor weapon against a rifle. If her nerve held out she had them for the present.

"We ain't doin' any harm," one growled, his mind searching busily for a way out.

"You can explain it to Tom when he comes," she said.

"We ain't the kind to hurt a lady. You come right forward and we'll talk it over friendly, ma'am."

"I'll stay here. Drop that pistol." For an instant he thought of taking a chance. But she was safe behind her tree. She had him covered. The man dropped the revolver with an imprecation.

"Kick it from you."

He kicked it with the heel of his boot.

"Sit down on the ground—both of you," she ordered.

They sat down, cursing and grumbling. For fifteen minutes she held them there.

Purdy tried whining. "This ain't no way to treat an old friend, Kate. We ain't aiming to do you any harm. I always did think a heap of you."

"You may forget that stuff. I never was your friend, you barroom loafer. No, sit still!"

Behind the drifting cloud the moon went into partial eclipse. Bill crept into the brush and was gone before Kate knew it. When the cloud had passed she crawled him and knew that he was missing round to outflank her.

"Tom!" she cried in terror. And again, "Help, Tom!"

There was the sound of something crashing through the bushes, a surprised exclamation and an agitation in the underbrush.

Purdy rose, as if to go to his comrade's assistance.

"Sit down," Kate cried tensely.

Purdy looked at her standing white and resolute in the moonlight, her rifle pointed toward him. He sat down.

From out of the bushes came two men. The one in front was Bill. His face was bleeding and swollen. Behind him walked Tom carrying a rifle. "Hands up till I've looked you both over," Tom ordered.

Four hands waved skyward. He disarmed Bill and gathered in the revolver of his companion. Kate came forward, very much frightened now that the danger was over. She sat down limply on a cracker box without saying anything more definite than a piteous little "Oh, Tom!"

Lynch made his prisoners harness and hitch the team after they had repacked the wagon under his direction. This time he did not turn them loose without punishment. Under the coercion of Purdy's own revolver he drove them to the river bank. In the other hand was a coil of rope.

"You're too hot-headed, both of you. What you need is to get cooled off. Jump!"

"Jump where?" whined Bill.

"Right before you. Into the river. And keep going till you reach the other bank—or the bottom."

"God-damn, man I can't swim," Purdy pleaded.

"Too bad you never learned. Jump!" They jumped, splundered out a step or two into the deep cold water, and turned to persuade Tom to think better of it.

"You wouldn't drown us, would you?"

"It's up to you. Sink or swim just as you please, but keep going."

A bullet splashed into the water just between them. They argued the matter no longer. It was a short swim, and Tom watched them until they reached the other bank, ready if need be to throw a rope in rescue. Standing dripping in the shallow water on the other side, they shook their fists at him and cursed raucously.

Tom turned on his heel with a desperate laugh. As the wagon swung back into the road they could still hear the impotent threats of the defeated robbers.

All night they traveled. Tom made his wife a bed in the wagon. She was quite sure her nerves were too badly shaken for her to sleep, but presently her eyes closed to the rocking of the wagon. When they opened again it was early day. She opened against the curtains to see Tom making breakfast. Before her lay Fresno, shining in the morning sun.

The wagon and team were sold that day at auction, but the water barrel was not included. It had been knocked to pieces and the sacks of gold transferred to a handbag.

If you ever go out to Pomona, in that land of perennial summer, you may see the gold from the water barrel transmuted into golden eggs hanging by hundreds from thousands of trees. Tom will probably tell you to help yourself, for to the orange groves of California, visitors properly introduced are made welcome.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Petersburg, Ind., Nov. 11.—Judge John L. Bretz today fined Harvey Hays $10 and added a jail sentence of thirty days, for contempt of court, when Hays disobeyed the judge's instructions to stay in the courtroom while Sheriff Miller went to call Mrs. Bertha Hays, defendant in the case, who Hays said was too sick to attend court.

Mrs. Hays was charged with assault to kill her husband, whom she shot. Mrs. Hays was held in jail until Hays recovered.

Three attempts have been made to bring her to trial, but each time either the defendant or prosecuting witness was ill. Judge Bretz determined to find out if Mrs. Hays was really ill, and sent the sheriff to her home.

25,000 CHILDREN ARE ROCKEFELLER GUESTS

Cleveland Youngsters See Flower Show at Oil King's Expense.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 12.—Twenty-five thousand public school children, the first section of guests of John D. Rockefeller, swamped down on the lower show in the Coliseum yesterday, for a time completely baffling efforts of show officials, nearly 100 police, and a score of firemen to handle them.

One little girl fainted and one boy was trampled in the first wild rush after the doors were opened. More than 18,000 saw the show in two and one-half hours.

The children were the guests of Rockefeller, who contributed more than $5,000 for yesterday's tickets.

Although they had been granted a scant two hours' leave of absence in which to see the show and get back to their schools, thousands of the Thursday school children made a half holiday event of the show and failed to report back to school until after lunch.

Police were deluged with requests of parents to hunt for "lost" children.

Police and flower show officials had such a hard time handling the children that a busy meeting was called in Mayor Baker's office to plan some way of handling the children Friday and Saturday, when 50,000 more will see the show.

commander of the submarine, which was to shell the liner.

Captain without delay ordered the boat to take to the boats, upon which he declares the submarine turned all her guns, killing and wounding many persons, both in the boats and on the deck of the steamer. Some of the passengers who were thrown into the water and sought to save themselves by clinging to the sides of the submarine, were pushed away with jeers and insults, he asserts.

WASHINGTON IS PERPLEXED.

Washington, Nov. 12.—State department officials were perplexed today over the unexplained delays in getting definite official information on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona with probable loss of American passengers. No dispatches had reached the state department early today although Secretary Lansing had confidently expected to get word from Rome, Manila, and other points near the scene of the disaster. All information so far has been fragmentary.

A consular officer has been ordered to Tunis and on the officials arrival he is expected to get dispatches through as quickly as possible. Meanwhile Ambassador Page, at Rome, is expected to send some definite official detail. His official dispatches so far make no reference to the circumstances of the sinking of the liner, the question of warning, the identity of the submarine and other facts which are to be cleared up as promptly as possible by the taking of testimony of survivors.

STILL WITHOUT WORD.

New York, Nov. 12.—No information has as yet been received in regard to the sinking of the steamer Ancona by the Italian agents here despite their cables to Italy for details. A dispatch was received today from relatives of Mr. and Mrs. D. Canfield Jones, of Philadelphia, stating that word had been received that they are in Italy, having failed to sail on the Ancona as had been their intention.

President Wilson and the cabinet met today for the first time since last July, when the German submarine question was at one of its most serious stages. The sinking of the liner Ancona was the most important foreign question before the cabinet today, but no definite action was expected until fuller details were at hand. It was stated at the white house, however, that the cabinet meeting today was called only because the president wanted to get in touch with his official advisers before the opening of congress to discuss his annual message and legislation affecting their demands. From now on cabinet meetings will be held regularly twice a week.

POLICE COMMISSIONER SUEDE.

Muncie Man Demands $1,000 for Alleged Injuries Inflicted by Dr. Smith.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 11.—Dr. Nene V. Smith, police commission and prominent democratic politician, under indictment in the Delaware county circuit court on charges of malfeasance in office, was sued for $1,000 damages by Jesse E. Lawrence, an iron molder. He charges that Smith, as a police officer, drove up to a curb on which the complainant was standing and assaulted Lawrence with a blackjack, breaking Lawrence's jaw. According to the plaintiff, Smith said that "an insult had been given to an officer," although, Lawrence says, he had not made an insulting remark. Dr. Smith has not made a statement, but it is understood that he asserts Lawrence resisted him as an officer of the police department.

WAS'NT HANDCUFF; COULD BE BROKEN

Noted Suffragist and Peace Advocate is Separated from Husband.

New York, Nov. 12. Mrs. Chrystal Eastman Benedict, lawyer, radical feminist and peace advocate, who once advised women to "make marriage a link, not a handicap," has been separated from her husband for at least six months. Whether she intends to break even the "link" her closest friends do not know certainly.

In the studio colony in Greenwich village, where Mrs. Benedict, her husband, her brother, Max Eastman, editor of The Masses, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ida Paul Eastman, socialist candidate for the assembly, are known for their radical or artistic activities, it has been understood that Mr. and Mrs. Benedict were not in domestic accord.

Mrs. Benedict smiled when she was questioned about a disagreement.

"What my brother told you is all right," she said, "but there is nothing more to be said."

What her brother had said to a reporter who recently inquired whether there was "another woman in the case," was an emphatic "No."

Whatever is responsible for the separation, it is true that Benedict has been living apart from his wife. She is almost daily at the headquarters of the Woman's peace party, of which she is vice chairman. Benedict, until a short time ago, had charge of the Chelsea-Greenwich activities of the People's Institute.

From Max Eastman, Mrs. Benedict's brother, it was learned that "incompatibility" was responsible for the separation. But whether the "incompatibility" of a soul is any more than philosophical is not to be read in the smile with which Mrs. Benedict greets the subject.

"Of course, I can not say on what grounds an action might be brought," she said, "because all those things have not been thought of yet."

Miss Chrystal Eastman, known to the public through her connection with the Pittsburgh Survey of the Russell Sage foundation and by her appointment by Gov. Hughes in 1909 as the only woman member of the New York employers' liability commission, was married to Wallace James Benedict, an insurance man of Milwaukee, in the city hall here in May, 1911. They went to Milwaukee. In the succeeding year Mrs. Benedict became state leader in the fight for suffrage there. Returning to New York she raised nearly $2,000 in one evening at the Hotel Astor for the campaign.

SAYS KISSES HAVE NO LEGAL STATUS

Judge Declares They Never Should Be Taken Into Court.

New York, Nov. 12.—Judge Joseph Hand, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, has advanced views on the subject of kissing.

In a case brought before him in the courtroom at Stapleton he remarked that kissing was outside of the law. "Such things go from mouth to mouth, like gossip," he said, with a perfectly calm face.

"There are about as many ways of saying 'How do you do,' as there are nationalities," he continued. "Some people rub noses instead of pressing lips. Certainly, in my opinion, kissing is more civilized than the other form of affectionate approval."

"Kissing and kisses should never be taken seriously. People who try to turn a playful joke into an argument are those who have forgotten how to contract the lips."

"Kissing is a form of amusement, especially for the onlooker. For instance, take the case of those lovers of an age gone by:

"Beneath a chestnut tree they sat, He held her hand, she held his hat, He held that kissing was no crime, She held her lips up every time - I held my breath and wrote this rhyme."

"You see, the importance of being kissed cannot be over-rated, neither can the importance of remaining quiet and holding the breath."

"The only person I ever heard of who wished to put a stop to this twentieth century habit was a female policeman in Jersey."

WORK ON MURDER MYSTERY.

Howard County Officials Have Letter Written to Wood.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 12. Howard county officials are still at work on the mystery surrounding the death of Walter Collins, near Young America, and for which Ellis Wood was held for a long time in the Cass county jail.

The Howard county officials have obtained the bullet which was extracted from the head of Collins, and the clothing worn by him when found. They also have in their possession a letter purporting to have been written to Wood by Lucella Foreman, which was recently found in the vicinity of the Foreman home, near Young America.

The letter, which was without stamp, was placed in the mail box of a neighbor near the Foreman home with two pennies for postage. The letter, which was opened by the authorities, is said to have declared that "two others know of the case," and asked that Wood meet the writer at a certain corner. The letter was signed "Lucella."

The letter was taken to the Foreman home and a comparison made of the handwriting of the Foreman girl, but it is said there was no likeness in the writing.

IT'S THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER AND SHE'S CARRYING A CANE.

SO SAYING THE CAPITAL SET TAKES UP THE NEWEST FAD.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—The president's daughter, Eleanor, has just made the capital gasp by carrying a cane.

Now Washington society women are putting in rush orders for walking sticks.

The fact is bound to be the rage since the president's daughter and wife of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has started it.

The cane Mrs. McAdoo carried is an ebony lined piece with a crooked handle inlaid with silver. Sometimes she swings it in her hand and sometimes she hooks it over her arm.

Nearly every afternoon now Mrs. McAdoo dons a smart tailored walking suit and with Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, President Wilson's niece, goes for a long walk.

Just the other day the president and Mrs. Galt in a white house automobile, passed the pair. What did Mrs. McAdoo do—why she laughed and waved her cane at them.

That gave the official stamp to the fad—and so "carrying a cane" is the thing in Washington.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

H. U. DIEM SUCCEEDS JAMES A. GRAHAM

Pennsylvania.

Announcement was made Friday of two promotions at the Pennsylvania shops that will be of great interest to all the shopmen, as well as many people in other circles.

H. U. DIEM.

general foreman of the car department, succeeding the late James A. Graham, and W. A. Guy has been appointed assistant general foreman, succeeding Mr. Diem. Both men have been with the Pennsylvania a number of years and have earned the recognition they have just received.

Mr. Diem started work with the company at Wellsville, Ohio, September 16, 1884, in the capacity of a freight car builder. He served the C. & P. division in various positions at Wellsville and at Cleveland until September 1, 1907, when he was transferred to Fort Wayne as assistant general foreman of the company's car shops.

Mr. Guy entered the Pennsylvania employ as a car repairman at Ashland, Ohio, in July 1891, and a year later became assistant foreman. January 1, 1909, he was appointed assistant foreman of the car department at Erie, Pa. In October, 1910, he was transferred to Conaway as assistant foreman of the car department and in October, 1912, he was transferred to the superintendent of motive power office as assistant general car inspector of the Northwest system. From the latter position he goes to the shops as assistant general foreman.

It is understood that there is to be some changes in the manner of handling the business of the car department, but one of the officials said this morning that the plan had not been fully worked out. It will involve the separation of the east car shops and the car department down town, which includes the planing mills, the lumber yards, the car machine shop, the upholstering department, the cabinet shop, the pattern shop and the car building shop. When this change is made, an assistant general foreman who will report directly to the master mechanic will be appointed. This will probably make other vacancies which will have to be filled by promotion. The object of an assistant foreman at the down town shops, who shall report directly to the master mechanic is to eliminate frequent trips of the general foreman between the east car shops and the shops down town, which under present methods consumes considerable time.

BUSY AT 'SMITH SHOP.

Will Put on Another Night Gang Next Week.

Foreman F. A. Opitz and his men at the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop are as "busy as bees" getting out the work sent to the shop. In addition to the regular work, the smithies are engaged at present in making machinery for the car shops at Indiana Harbor, which are to be opened to business soon. Foreman Opitz is preparing to put another gang at work in the night shift. The opening of the new shop will not affect work.

SEWING GETS PROMOTION.

Is Made General Storekeeper of the Wash.

Bulletins bearing the signature of T. J. Frier, purchasing agent of the Washash, announce the appointment of A. J. Sewing general storekeeper of the Washash system, with headquarters in the Exchange building at St. Louis. Mr. Sewing was previously chief clerk to Mr. Frier and in performing the duties of that office came here frequently. He is well known in Washash circles in this city and is generally liked.

LOADING SOME FIREMEN.

G. R. & I. Helps Pere Marquette in Time of Need.

In response to an appeal for help from the Pere Marquette company, the G. R. & I. yesterday sent three of its firemen to Grand Rapids to work on the former road awhile. The Pere Marquette became flooded with business all at once and to meet the emergency resorted to borrowing experienced fire from a friendly road. E. A. Pettit, H. F. Cantant and O. C. Fredericks were sent to the P. & M.

RAILROADS TAXED TO LIMIT.

The railroads of nearly every section of the country are being taxed to handle shipments and in some sections the highest previous records are being broken. Reports from shipping centers show this. In commenting on the situation the Toledo Blade says: "Thus far the efforts of railroad officers to keep terminals clear and supply cars have met with success. In the northwest and west some apprehension is felt over the possible results of a cold snap, which would speed up the belated movement of coal, or of a heavy snow."

CARS STRIKE WAGON.

The slow pace at which the cars were moving was the only reason why an accident at Dunkirk, Ohio, on the Pennsylvania, did not result seriously yesterday. At 1:30 o'clock a freight train in charge of Conductor M. Thomas and Engineer H. Shelby was backing on a siding, when the rear car struck a wagon in which three people were riding. They were thrown out of the vehicle, but none was hurt and the wagon was damaged.

Y. M. C. A. PHONOGRAPH CONCERT.

There will be a phonograph concert at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock, to demonstrate a particular machine. The bulletin board announcing the event also bears the hospitable invitation to "bring in a friend and hear some good music."

ASSUMING OLD TIME ACTIVITY.

The machine room at the Bass shops has taken on the old familiar appearance. The force has increased until it is nearly if not quite as large as ever. During the present week eight helpers were added to the list of employees in this department.

NICE ORDER FOR CAR WHEELS.

The increased business on the railroads is having its effect upon the orders for material. All of the roads are buying more extensively. Today Mr. Stitt, a material inspector for the B. & O. company, inspected 700 car wheels at the Bass foundry.

INSIST ON REAL MUSIC.

Vaudeville Audiences No Longer Content With Counterfeits.

The vaudeville audience today embraces people from all walks of life and of all social scales, but on one point this cosmopolitan gathering is a unit. It demands the best. The story is in the musical world and will not be content with anything else, which accounts for the flattering manner in which G. Aldo Landegger, the eminent Italian, is being received at the New Palace this week. He has made several concert tours of this country with marked success and in vaudeville he has been exceptionally well appreciated.

Another artist of real distinction on this bill is Joan Verne, the premiere American Danseuse, the girl who put Mousquetaire, Mont., on something besides the county map. Miss Verne has mastered the technique of the dance under the tutelage of Pavlova and other international stars. The novel manner in which her dressing room is built out on the stage where she makes her changes so as not to leave the audience alone renders her numbers all the more delightful.

The big laughs on the bill are Fred J. Ardath and Company in the rural sketch "Hiram"; Kennedy, Nobody and Platt, the blackface comedians; Burns and Lynn in eccentric dances; Frear, Baggett and Frear, the high speed jugglers; O'Brien Havel and Company in their touch of nonsense, "Sticks and Picks." This is Bargain Week. The light of cut rates will hold out to burn only the remainder of the week.

Immense assortment of fine Suits and Overcoats at $11.75. Regular $16 and $18 values. Scores of models. Many Overcoats are half-lined with Skinner silk.

AT THE JEFFERSON

Tribe Pleases Large Audience at the Jefferson.

Tribe was the magnet that drew capacity houses to the Jefferson Thursday. This magnificent production was all that could be desired and gave universal satisfaction. The story is too well known to need a review in this column; the screen version is in some respects superior to the speaking version as what is left to your imagination in the latter is visualized for the screen. Tonight will be the last opportunity to see "Tribe." Saturday we will have "Neal of the Navy," "The Brink," a Mutual Master Picture, and "Irene and Louie," a comedy. Coming for four days, starting next Tuesday is Geo. Roban in "An Alien," an eight-reel Paramount master production of unusual magnitude. Roban is recognized as the greatest of all Italian impersonators and in "An Alien" he is seen in the crowning effort of his career.

We have the "Hatch" one-act union suits, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00. PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.

BARRARITIES IN PRESENT WAR GREATER THAN IN CAESAR'S TIME

Most Frightful Atrocities are Practiced by the Kurds, Turkish Subjects, Who Continue to Torture and Slay the Long-suffering Armenians—The Reported Ferocity of Indian and African Troops Is Tame as Compared With the Methods of the Desert Warriors of Turkey In Asia

TURKISH SOLDIERS

MOSQUE OF SAN SOPHIA

Armenians, the race that suffered so greatly from the depredations and massacres of their terrible foe, occupy the northern portion of Turkey in Asia and is on the Black sea. Below is the fertile valley of the Mesopotamia.

The Armenians work their farms and build their homes only to have them wrested away by the Kurds, who either slay the owners and their families or send them into exile.

Armenia is the buffer between the southern part of Russia and the northern part of Turkey and is under Russian rule. The Russians attempted to invade Turkey through Armenia, but were driven back. "The Turks declare they have allowed the reprisals on Armenia because that country aided the Russians.

Barbarism still prevails in the twentieth century as has been shown by the terrible acts of the Kurds and Bedouins against the Armenians. Thousands of men, women and children of this unhappy race have been placed on trains and taken to the mountains by the Turks.

There they are given meager food to last two days and are turned into a desert with instructions that they are free and if they will walk on they will come to a pleasant village. As they walk forth into the desert the Kurds and Bedouins set upon them and those they don't kill are allowed to wander about in the desert until they finally die of thirst or hunger.

Many mothers when about to go into such an exile of death have thrown their babies into the river Euphrates rather than have them share the suffering of their parents. That barbarism, as cruel and as terrible as that of the most ancient of tribes, might not have become generally known had not the European war brought out the fact in its terrible severity.

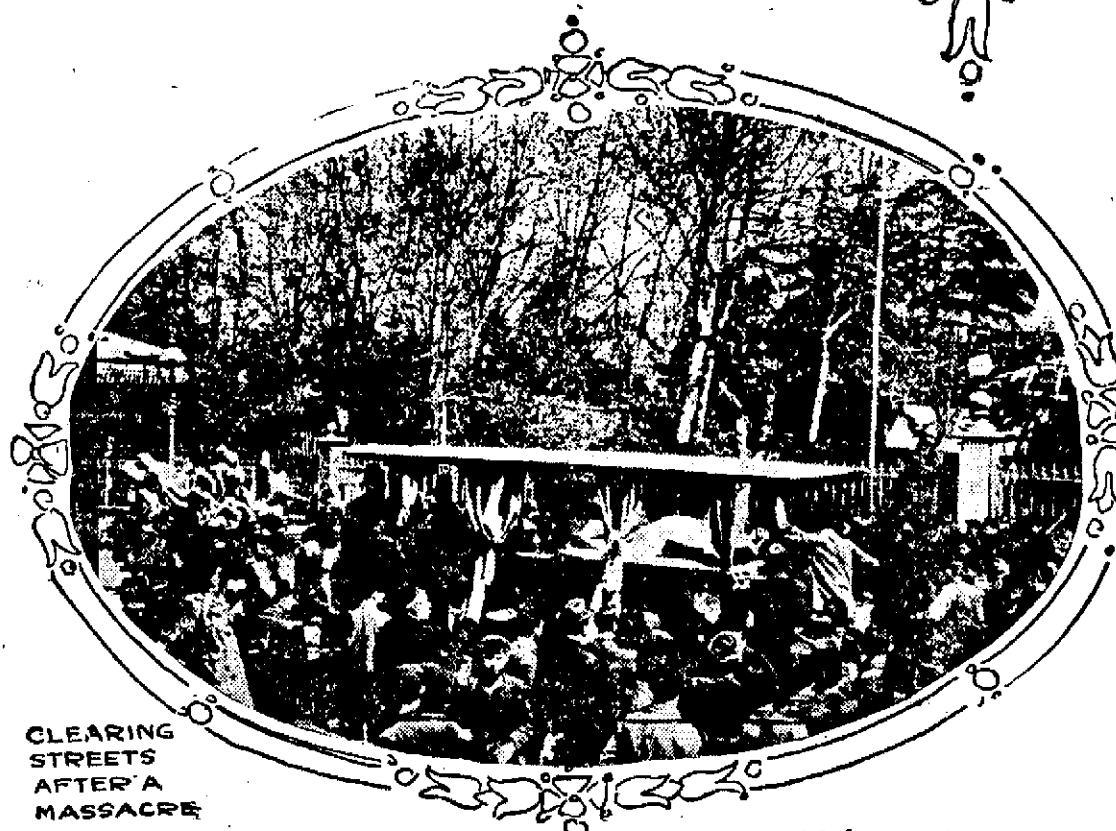

But in the present engagements civilized nations, terrible barbarians, unrestrained in their lust for blood, are practicing the most abject cruelty on other nations. The horror caused by the ravages of these demon-men has become so great that the German nation has cried out against them in the name of humanity.

Not only have the English brought from India and Africa the most terrible and blood-thirsty of their wild men, but the Turks have allowed the terrible Kurds and the wild Bedouins from Asia Minor to flock into Europe and to practice cruelty to their hearts' desire.

OUT-CAESARS CAESAR

The English have imported their wild men even from the Punjab in upper India and in Afghanistan and Turkey has released the terrible Kurds, a wandering and deadly tribe that never has undergone subjugation and is as wild today as at any time since the creation of the world. While from the war front comes the shocking stories of these wild tribes, there even comes from the United States, itself, the tale of the ravages of another race of wild-men, the Yaqui Indians of Mexico, who burn their victims alive.

Reports from various sources in-

deate that this, the great war of the Twentieth Century, is even more barbaric in ways than the wars of Julius Caesar's time when the captive Belgae were tied to the wheels of chariots and dragged before the shouting Roman populace.

The Kurds are the unrestrained allies of Turkey. They have for ages been the foes of the Armenians. The province of Armenia lies in Turkey in Asia. It is the gateway between Russia and Turkey in the east and is under Russian dominion. To strike at Russia in the east Turkey has had to go through Armenia and before its advance it released the terrible Kurds to satiate their cruel longings.

From London comes the following dispatch:

"The Turks are gradually but effectually exterminating the Armenians. The manner is to send from each Armenian village each day as many persons as a train can carry. When they arrive at Konish or some adjacent station they are turned out and escorted over the Vaurus mountains.

"Once on the other side they are supplied with rough food enough to last them a few days and told to continue their journey to the neighborhood of Mosul, as they now will be in perfect safety. But in point of fact the region is nothing but a desert, and before many hours marauding bands of Kurds and Bedouins rob and pillage these helpless men, women and children, so that those who are not actually slain die of thirst or hunger.

"The consequence is that many distracted mothers throw their children into the Euphrates rather than see them suffer. Some even sell them before they start the journey.

"An American missionary, who arrived at Constantinople recently, declared he saw as many as 15,000 around one station awaiting to be sent upon that journey from whence none would return. American missionaries scattered about Asia Minor and particularly in the Armenian district gradually are leaving upon the advice of their ambassador. The attacks on the Armenians are said to be excused by the Turks on the grounds that the Armenians aided the Kurds in taking the town of Van.

"The inhumanity of the Kurds and Bedouins committed on these wretched people has become so great as to require action.

GERMANY PROTESTS

"In the name of humanity Secretary Robert Lansing of the United States recently called on Count von Bernstorff and asked him to request the German government to intercede with Turkey to the end that such cruelty be stopped.

"Dispatches to Washington say that the Kurds again are engaged in their favorite occupation of slaughtering Armenians—men, women and children—and are a survival from the days when self-respecting men lived only, or at least principally, by the sword. Their wild tribes are scattered throughout Asia Minor, acting to thwart the most modest efforts of the land toward modern comfort, security and organization. Although once fabulously rich the country has not been able to bring forth a sufficiency through all the years that the Kurds have practiced their untamed housekeeping there.

"This housekeeping has consisted of abandoning the summer tent for the winter cottage, after the preliminaries of killing the owner and his family, and the replenishing of goods from stores at the point of rides, the transaction usually followed by the burning of the looted shop.

"The Kurd is a picturesque citizen and what ever his numbers may be—census matters in Turkey are indefinite—he is much more in evidence than the Armenians and other peoples among whom he lives. "The Kurd is the traveler's first impression in Asia Minor and in most cases he remains the predominant one. The Kurds wear clothes of vivid colors; they also wear rags, that is, the poorer ones of the most reckless nondescript. The Kurds ride the best horses, they are always armed and they oppress the Armenians, the travelers and even lord it over the Turks themselves.

"The Turks have been unable to get a complete mastery over their subjects, the Kurds, and have employed an administration of letting these marauders alone in their wild and barbarous practices. Thus the Kurd massacres Armenians, robs Armenians and travelers and considers both of these occupations his just right. In a useful state the Kurd lives in the hills and herds sheep. He is a pastoral tent dweller in the summer. In the winter he moves to the Mesopotamian plains and either lives in his tent or turns the owner out of a selected house. His tent is of black homespun goats' hair and his furniture consists of mats, quilts and cooking pots. His children go naked and his women ragged. His board is set with sour milk and when by chance he builds a winter house, it consists of a hole in the ground.

HOME OF THE KURDS.

"The burrow has a flat roof of wattle and clay and is air-tight, smoke-tight and light tight. There are small smoke vents in the roof but the whole effect is that of a prairie dog's dwelling. Within it is as light and airy as a low level coal mine.

"To be of Ashirat blood, in Kurdish estimation, is to be really worth while. The Kurds have a certain conscious superiority that gives them a bearing of nobleness and dignity. A Kurdish chief is an impressive, often an affable individual. These people are not inclined to settle down and they do not want others to do so. In some districts, however, they have taken lands wholesale from the Armenians, massacring the owners, and have thus become rich landholders. Occasionally the Kurds attempt civilization, but it is almost always at someone else's expense.

"They reject the custom of veiling their women. They reverence fire and are on subjects of religion altogether liberal. Many of them are heroic Muslims and some few are Christians. Their little feudal organizations are their nationalities and their patriotism is a devotion to the privilege of being able to live at the expense of others. They are medieval with all the headstrong irregularities of mediaeval times. It was not until 1913 that the first Kurdish newspaper was published. This was printed in Constantinople. As, however, there is no such thing as a definite written Kurdish language, this paper is carried on under some difficulty. There was something called a Kurdish movement before the war, but its labors seemed hopeless. The latest reports from the haunts of the Kurds tell of the massacre of thousands of Armenians."

SAVAGE TRIBE.

While the above dispatch to Washington gives a good description of the Kurds it but slightly touches on their other barbarity and remorseless cruelty. This has become so pronounced that early after the alliance with the Turks, the German government cut itself off from all responsibility for the actions of this savage tribe and even at present through diplomatic sources has implored Berlin to curb this race of barbarians so that shame may not come to the cause of the entente.

That their cruelty has been almost unspeakable goes without saying. The Kurds long have been the source of fear to missionaries sent into Asia Minor. They fear nothing and never hesitate to murder. To the Kurds they have been an effectual barrier against a Russian invasion through Armenia. Reinforced by Turkish troops the Russians dare not attempt to pass the barrier formed by those veritable mad men of the desert.

The cruel practices of the Kurds are such as to even shock the Turks themselves, but the latter race still is unable to curb the wild habits of their so-called subjects. Their habits of torturing the Armenians has been of long standing and has for years shocked the civilized nations of the world. Many an Armenian's family has been found slaughtered and their bodies floating in the river Euphrates while in their home a Kurd and his ragged family next day ruled.

The war on a whole has become, in certain ways, a frightful contest between barbarians and civilized races, so that all the world is crying out against such practices.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR.

Miss Francis Day Painfully Hurt in Accident Thursday Evening.

In attempting to run in front of a street car which she was boarding, at 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening, Miss Francis Day, 19 years old, of Paulding, O., was struck by the trolley of the car and knocked down. She was rendered unconscious, deep gashes being cut in her forehead and chin, besides an abrasion on the knee. She was removed to the Lutheran hospital. Miss Day was unfamiliar with the traffic rules and waited on the wrong side of the street for the car she intended to take. When she saw that the car was not going to stop she attempted to run around in front of it.

CITY WATER WORKS IS GIVEN PRAISE

But State Examiners Say Big Expenditures Are Approaching.

That the management and administration of the city waterworks department are efficient and highly creditworthy but that heavy expenditures for improvements will soon be necessary are two pointed and important conclusions stated by James P. Hoelling and Leonard H. Schrader, field examiners for the state accounting board, in their report on the recent examination of the affairs of the department of Fort Wayne's municipal government. The report has just been transmitted to Mayor William J. Hosey by Gilbert H. Hendren, chief of the accounting board, and it covers the period from Jan. 1, 1911, to June 30, 1915.

It is shown that the bonded debt was last year reduced $15,800 out of the revenues of the department and that the bonded debt at the close of the period of examination was $216,000. There has been a marked improvement in the keeping of the records by the auditor of the department, and Secretary Charles J. Beuret, who is the executive head of the department, is extolled for his management and for having impressed the heads of his divisions with his own high ideals of public service.

The report notes that the city's practice of furnishing free water for street washing, fire protection, hydrant flushing, school buildings, city buildings, libraries, parks, fire engine houses, public fountains and troughs still exists and that a vast amount of water is pumped for this purpose for which the city receives no revenues, though loss is now partly offset for the fact that the city requires the waterworks department to pay its own interest on the department's bonded indebtedness. The plant cannot be put on a paying basis, says the report until it receives compensation for service that it now renders free. Nor can it begin to set up a depreciation fund until free service is abandoned. The age of the plant and its present condition forecasts that provision must soon be made for a heavy expense for extensions and improvements. The cost of construction during the year was $60,355.34.

MAYOR INVENTS TRAFFIC SIGNAL.
Mayor William J. Hosey, dissatisfied with the various types of mechanical signaling devices for directing corner traffic, has invented one that he believes will overcome the objections found with devices already tried or examined and supply all the advantages of any of them. It consists of an upright rotary staff carrying also about sixteen inches in diameter. On both sides of this disc is the direction "stop" in red letters, large enough to be legible a good distance. The staff is to be carried in a tube that will be let into the pavement and will be rigidly planted. The device will be given a trial at Calhoun and Washington streets Saturday.

MOTORMAN DRUNK ON A STREET CAR

William Martin is Found Guilty and Fined in City Court.

William O. Martin, an imported motorman in the employ of the Fort Wayne Traction company, was found guilty in the city court Friday morning of public intoxication and Judge H. W. Kerk fined him $5 and costs. The fine was paid by a representative of the company. Martin's arrest followed his running his car into a jitney bus at Creighton avenue and Anthony boulevard at 5 o'clock Thursday evening. Patrolman Louis Kammer, who just started down town to report for duty, heard of the collision and went to investigate. Martin refused to give his name or answer other questions and the officer, noting that the motorman was under the influence of drink, and that a crowd was gathering, ordered him to take his car down into the city. He was taken from it at the transfer corner and escorted to headquarters to be questioned by Chief of Police Charles Lenz. The man was obstinate and profane and the chief ordered him locked up. Officer Kammer testified that Martin was drunk, and Chief Lenz testified that he smelled strongly of whiskey and was evidently under the influence of intoxicants. Prominently displayed on the lapel of Martin's coat was a "Safety First" badge such as is worn by employees of the company.

Friday morning the hearing on the adultery charge was continued until Monday morning and after considerable skirmishing cash sufficient was found to provide $50 bail for the woman and $100 for the man.

Deputy City Clerk Leroy Swartz identified the signatures as those of Mrs. Scott.

LAGRANGE MAN KILLED BY CARS.
L. D. Hughes Struck on Sidetrack of Grand Rapids Road at Sturgis.

Lagrange, Ind., Nov. 12.—Seeking shelter from the rain behind some cars on a sidetrack of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad at Sturgis, late yesterday afternoon, L. D. Hughes, one of the best known men of this city, was fatally injured when a freight train entered the siding and bumped the cars forward, running over the unfortunate man. Both legs and one arm were shockingly mangled and he died a half hour later in the office of Dr. Kane in Sturgis. Mr. Hughes was superintendent of the pickles company of Ohio, for which he had been superintendent of several pickle plants in northern Indiana and southern Michigan for the past fifteen years. He was slightly deaf and failed to hear warnings of his danger. Mr. Hughes was born in Ohio seventy-six years ago, and came early to this country. He served in the Twenty-third Indiana volunteers during the civil war, answering the first call for volunteers. He is survived by a widow, one daughter and two sons. The remains have been brought here for burial.

ORPHANS' HOME TWICE MUCH SUPPORT FOR AFIRE IN PAST 2 DAYS NEW PEACE MOVEMENT

Indianapolis, Nov. 12.—For the second time in two days the fire department was called to the German Lutheran orphan home here early today to extinguish a fire which started in a bath room on the second floor of the building. Early discovery of the fire enabled the forty-seven children who were asleep in the building to march out clad only in their night clothes before the flames had gained any headway. Although it has not been definitely determined, firemen are of the opinion that the fire today and the one Wednesday night was caused by some of the boys, who admitted they had been smoking "on the sly." The damage was small.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DANDERINE"

Spend 25 cents! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Hair gets beautiful, wavy and thick in few moments.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

PRUSSIA SWORE OFF SMOKING AT ONCE

Survivor of Monitor and Merrimac Fight Grows
Reminiscent.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 12.—"And I've never taken another smoke since," concluded his story of how he had narrowly escaped death when the Confederate gunboat Alabama was sunk by the Monitor. For John Prussia, aged 73, is the last survivor of that famous civil war battle.

For 12 years Prussia has been em-played by the Pacific Mail Steamship company in Yokohama, and now that the line is out of business he is in San Francisco en route to Pennsylvania, where he has a brother.

"I suppose," Prussia said, "that this modern fighting is fiercer than what we had in '61, but that was not enough for me. I was a common sailor on the Alabama. I was so busy helping around the deck that I don't know the details of the fight very well, but the old-raft shook time and again as the shells went into use and I saw comrades after comrades fall to the deck. And then the cry came that we were going down, but I knew it as well as anybody. I used to smoke and drink quite a bit in those days. Well, I slid down a rope and into the sea. Probably two miles off was a French packet, which I knew would mean life if I could reach it so I swam. But the tobacco had got my wind. I never will know just how I reached that ship, but I did. I was nearly dead from exhaustion. And I have never taken another smoke since. As for a drink, why if I should take a glass of beer, I'd tell you things that would make history ashamed of itself."

EFFORT TO RAISE $6,500.

Campaign Started in Behalf of the Kokomo Y. M. C. A.

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 12.—A campaign to raise $65,000 to wipe out the debt on the Y. M. C. A. that was erected and opened five years ago, has been started here, and preliminary to the campaign, there will be a banquet at the "Y" at which it is expected 1,000 business men will be present. The campaign is to last seven days, and it is believed that in that period the sum required will be subscribed. Sunday there were special services held in all the local churches to promote the campaign, speakers from out of the city occupying most of the pulpits.

NEW THEORY FOR BLAZE.

Indiana Man Thinks Fresh-Laid Eggs Set His Haymow Afire.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Nov. 10.—What sounds like a new theory of fire causation was presented to the local firemen by Robert Hummer, a wholesale meat dealer, whose barn burned four hours, Saturday night, before the fire was put out. Hummer says a hen got into the bottom of the hay and laid eggs and that the heat generated by the eggs caused spontaneous combustion. The firemen say green hay and lack of ventilation probably was the cause.

PURDUE TACKLES ANOTHER PROBLEM

University is Lending a Hand to the Country Church.

(By Walfred Lindstrom).

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 12.—The work of the country church is no small thing. It is a man's job. There are many things talked about and proposed in these twentieth century agricultural days, but the biggest of all these things is the country church. It is a big problem, because most people, including the church membership, think it a little one, or they don't think at all and are indifferent. The failure to see problems make them all the greater. Too many have been satisfied to give the country church a school girl's work to do, when it has all the time been aching to do the man's job.

After years of faithful work, Purdue university has come to the conclusion that better hogs and better corn are a secondary consideration to the development of character and the improvement of rural conditions. It has also come to the conclusion that the church is the proper agency through which this important work should be done, and that it would be worth their while to give of their time and effort to promote the work of the rural church.

With this idea in view the rural pastors of the state were invited to meet at the university last May, to consider their many problems. A large number of ministers were present and as a result it was thought advisable to take the inspiration of the meeting to the churches in the various districts. Following this plan there will be held at Auburn, Ind.,

under the direction of Purdue university a Rural Church Workers' conference, beginning Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 7th, and continuing through the next afternoon. The university will provide the speakers for the entire program. They will be people who have not only had the theory but who know the practical side as well. Ample time for the presentation of local problems, for proper discussion and suggestion will be given, making the meeting in the real sense of the word, a conference.

The rural church is to be congratulated that it will have the help and influence of such a great institution in the solution of its tremendous problems. If the local ministers and church workers will be willing to co-operate there is no reason why the church can't become, not only the biggest thing and strongest agency for the development of individual character, but the greatest factor for social uplift and community betterment.

Illinois Men Held on Federal Court Indictment in Unusual Case.

Danville, Ill., Nov. 12.—Charging that they had automobile accessories sent from Indianapolis under assumed names, C. O. D., and then broke into the depot and stole the parts, five men, three living at Xenia, in Cumberland county, and two at Mattoon, were indicted in the federal court of this district. The men are John C. Miller, who owns a 500-acre farm near Xenia; his son, Tony C. Miller, and Logan Estes, of Xenia, and William Royer and Isaac Flaherty, of Mattoon.

The men denied the charges and have given $5,000 bond each. Federal officers say they found on an automobile belonging to John C. Miller new parts which correspond to those stolen.

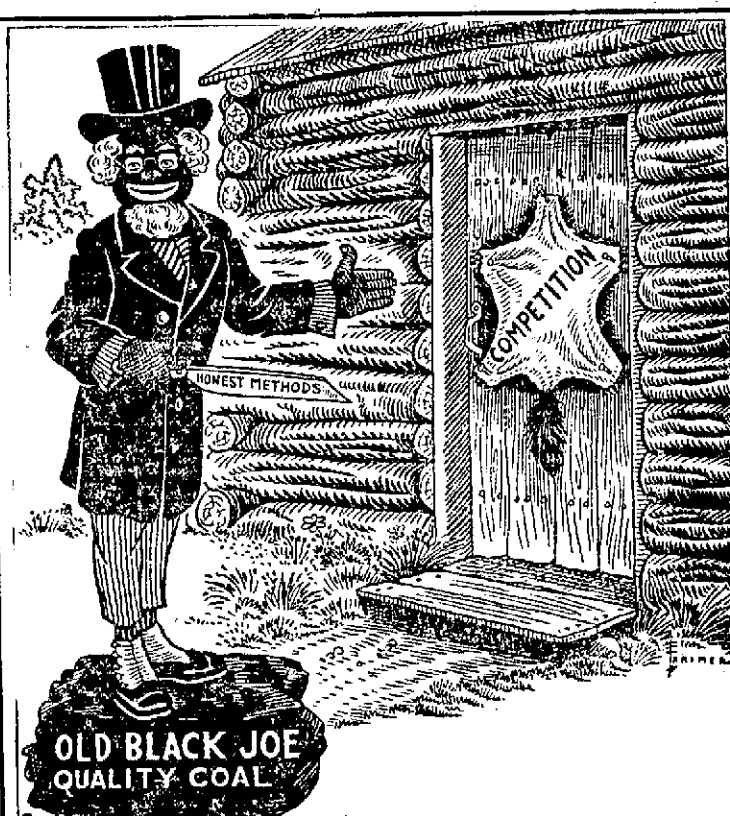

How to Prevent Croup.

It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johns, Elida, Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boy is subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and when he began having that croupy cough I would give him one or two doses of it and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

THE UNDERWORLD.

There is a saying often heard in the underworld, to the effect that there is a sucker born every minute. How true this may be I cannot vouch for, as I never was much good at mathematics, but my friend and former cellmate, "Max the Jew," told me yesterday that two born a minute is nearer the mark.

"It must be at least two a minute," said Max, "or how could business keep up so?"

"You don't mean business?" I corrected, "you mean graft."

"Graft?" retorted Max, "I ain't a grafter any more. That's a sucker's game, I am a business man, strict business in a store—no more taking jail chances for mine."

I had just met Max on S— street, for the first time in several years, and as he had looked more prosperous than I had ever seen him before—well groomed and tailored—I stopped and renewed our acquaintance, out of the curiosity his wealthy appearance aroused in me. When I knew Max formerly he had been a stall for pickpockets.

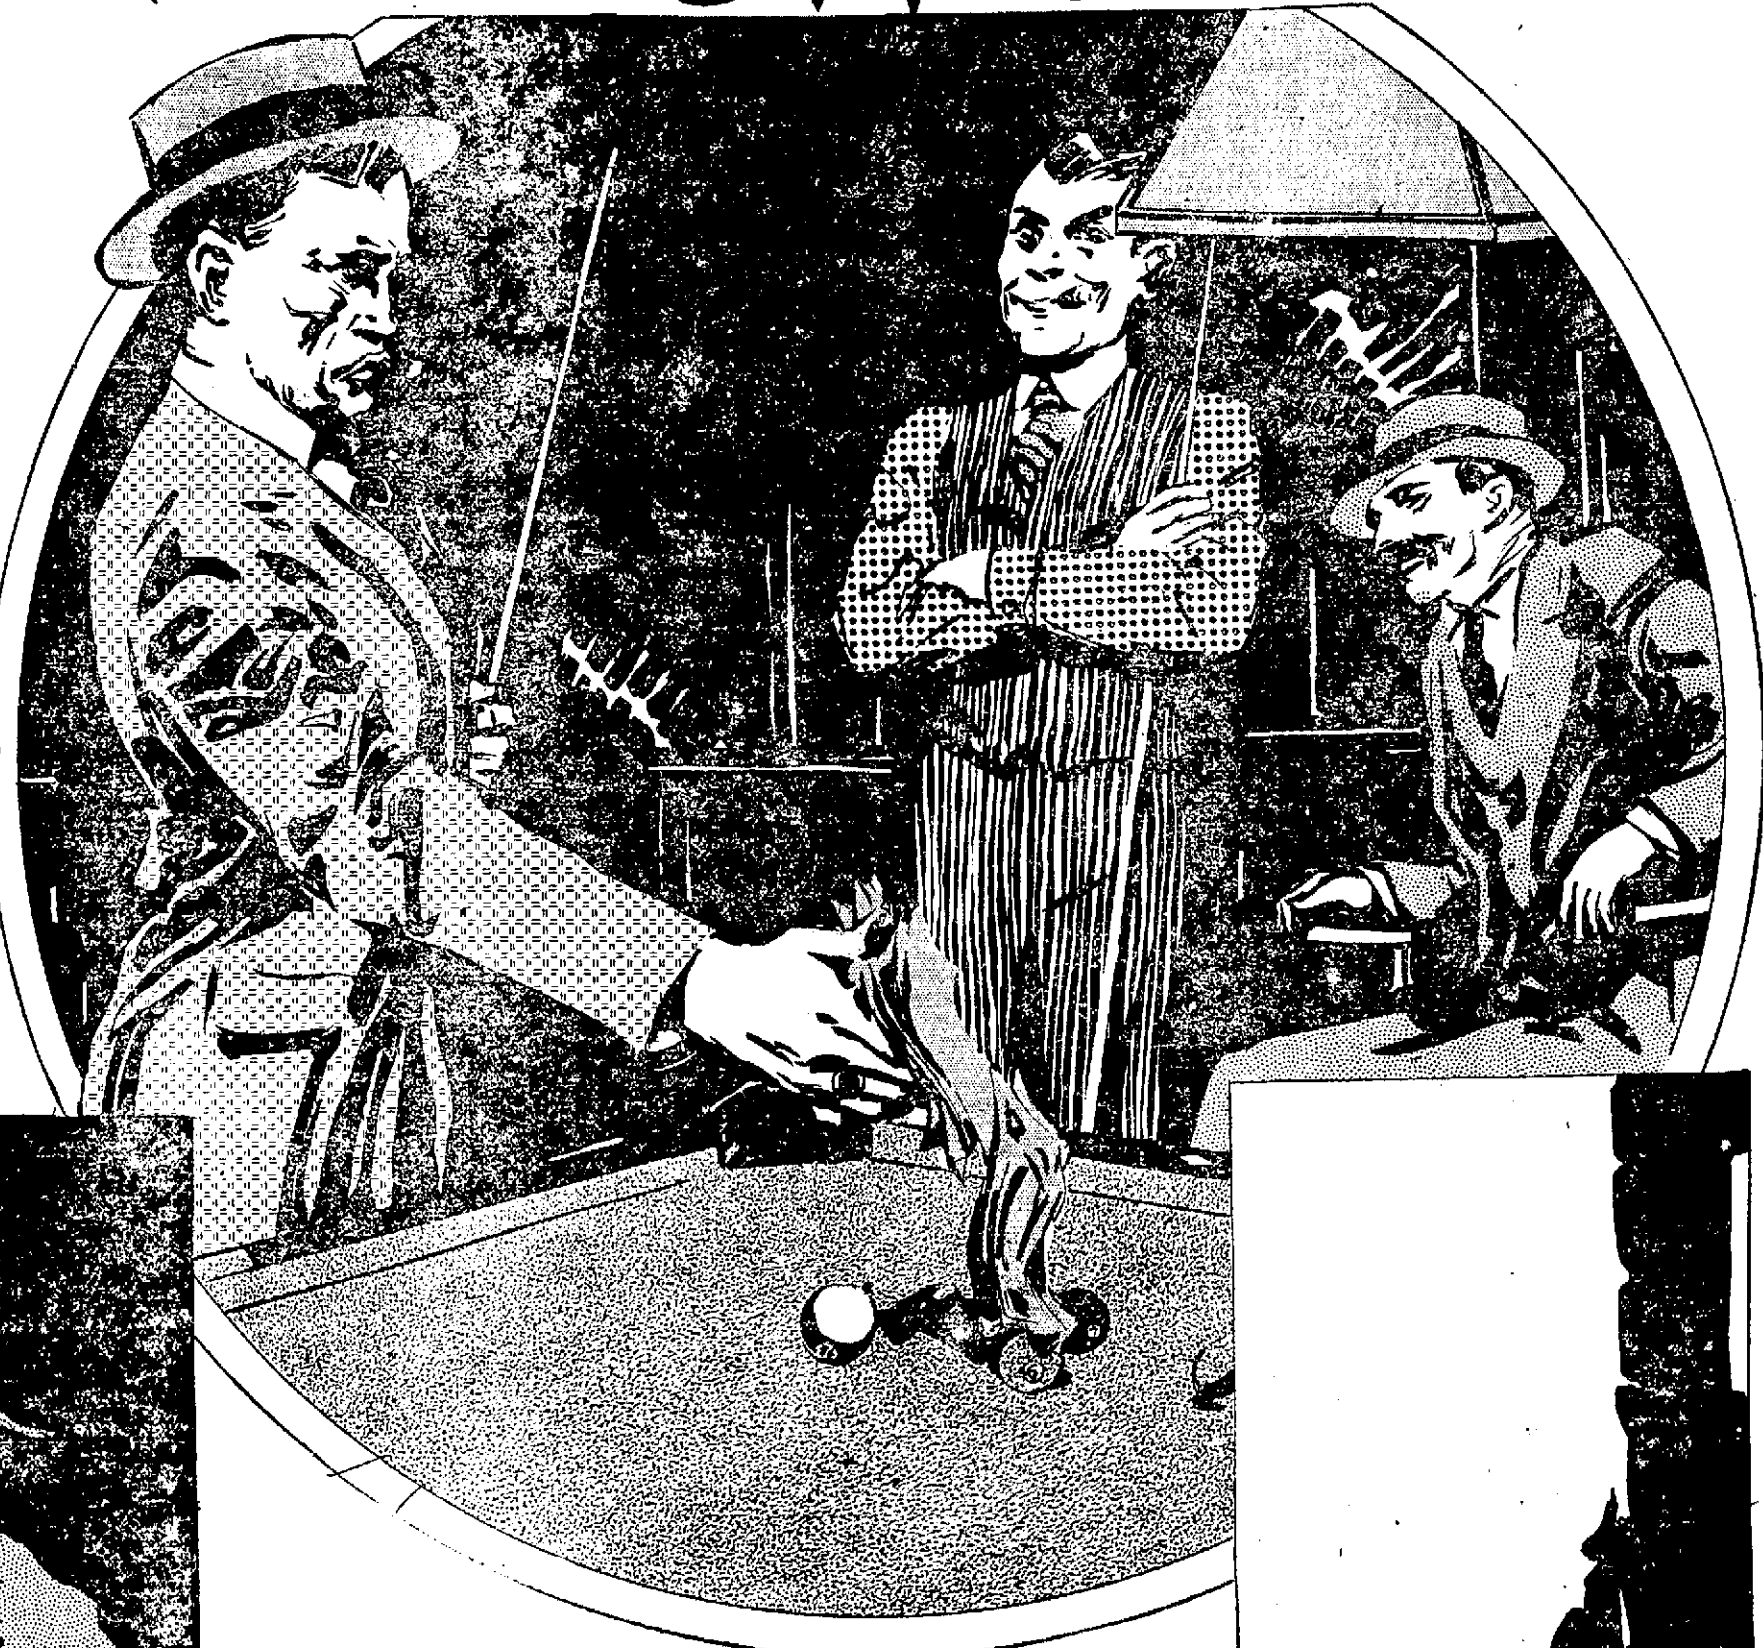

A LUCKY CROOK.

His remark concerning taking no more chances led me to draw him out about his present occupation, and as we walked along he told me

Last week John Henry (argot for sucker) a celery grower from Kalamazoo, came to Chicago to transact a bit of business. Early Tuesday afternoon, his errand finished, having nothing particular to do until train time, John strolled along S— street enjoying the balmy air of the vacation city. Passing a small jewelry store with an ornate front and rich interior, his attention was drawn by a bargain in watches displayed in the window. After some hesitation he entered the store.

Our friend Max came forward and took him in tow, and before long sold him a solid gold watch, "worth every cent of $100," full jeweled movement, eighteen carat case, for $50 cash, together with a convincing piece of paper called an everlasting guarantee (but which, in reality, is a certificate of membership to the Sucker's Club of Illinois, unlimited.)

The watch is worth $4, but under the spell of Max's "oil" and the eighteen carat stamp on the solid silver case thinly gold plated John "falls like a log." It happened that John knew a jewelry salesman stopping at the hotel and to him, an hour later, our celery grower showed his purchase and found out he had been tricked. With watch in one hand, guarantee in the other, and rage in his heart, John hurried the following story. "You see, Peters, one time I used to sell 'stump' (fake jewelry) and I got to know a lot of the manufacturers of the phony stuff. By luck, when I came out of 'slit' (prison) this last time I ran across a guy named Moranski that in the old days was in that line. I told him I was just out of hock and broke, and I asked him to grub-stake me to some slum to peddle.

"Tell the Sergeant. He'll Fix You Up All Right," Said the Patrolman.

"It was sure my lucky day, Peters. Moranski gave me a card and told me to come to that address early next morning all dolled up ready to go to work selling goods behind a counter.

"The next morning I was there with bells on and got a job as a clerk in a swell fitted up little jewelry store on the main stem. Talk about suckers falling for phony slum—a locket worth a dime brings anywhere from 25 cents to $1.50 with a 25 per cent rakeoff for the salesman."

Max went on to tell of learning the stock and tag marks till I grew tired and said, with disgust, "Aw, that is nothing but petty larceny."

"Petty larceny, hey?" snorted Max with some heat. "I got $60 for my bit yesterday; is that cheap graft?" And so, while his grafting pride was smarting under the lash of that "petty larceny" Max plunged into the meat of his story, which I will tell here in my own way.

back to the little store.

There Mr. Smooth Moranski, a stouthead gentleman of imperturbable calm, assured J. Henry that he must be mistaken in the address. "My dear sir, show me the person who sold you that watch—it never was in our stock I am sure."

For the very good reason that Max was not there J. H. could not point him out or anyone that looked like him.

"These two gentlemen and myself constitute our full force of employees," said the suave Moranski. "This should be brought to the attention of the police," he added as he ushered the bewildered man from Kalamazoo to the door.

TIME FOR GETAWAY.

As Moranski had said, there was only one course to pursue and it was with something of hopeful confidence that the sucker approached the officer on the corner and told him his troubles. The cop, hearing the tale of woe, smiled a pitying smile as he directed John to the nearest station-house. "Tell the sergeant. He'll fix you up all right," said the patrolman.

From the police station a plain-clothes man is detailed to go to the store with John, with the loud-voiced command "and bring that thief in with you when you come back."

An hour later he is back the second time in the station-house listening to the detective tell the sergeant or captain that "it is a puzzling case, boss; the store manager says he has no clerk of that description and no watches like this one in stock. He showed us his books and satisfactorily accounts for his two clerks—maybe Mr. Henry has the wrong shop in spite of the fact he says he remembers the place and the firm name over the door. There is no address or firm name on this guarantee."

"Well, Mr. Henry," said the commanding police officer, "we will detail our best men on this case and get the crook who robbed you."

AND NOTHING TO SHOW.

John Henry has not got much satisfaction, unless the knowledge that he was rolled for his money can be called satisfying—he has not even the phony watch for a souvenir because the plain-clothes man kept that for evidence in hunting down the thief. But the most interesting part of the affair is—where did Max go?

Almost at John Henry's heels he left the store. He did not go far—only a few blocks away is another small jewelry store—another of a chain of a half dozen scattered about the city, all owned by the same men. And there are several of these chains of small jewelry shops operated on the strength of the sucker being born every minute.

"But Max," I asked, "how can they keep right on doing business without being pinched?"

"Say, are you such a simp as to suppose the cops are not in with the play? That's what makes it safe. Most of the marks blow town before they get wise they have been trimmed and then it would cost them good hard cash to come back to make a 'belch' (complaint); the

How to Bankrupt the Underworld

The slicker, formerly called a bunco-steerer, is often a criminal who has discovered that he has intelligence enough to outwit society and the law without using desperate methods.

Perhaps he has served a prison term because of cupidity. Upon his release from "slit" he determines to play a game of easy money which will have few dangers and, if he can "outsmart" his victims, plans an "easy money" scheme which depends for success upon his own failing—cupidity—a weakness his victim shares. The strangest part of the game of "easy money" is that the victim has been taught from childhood that "you can't get something for nothing." If this truth was accepted by all men the business of the bunco-man would soon be bankrupt.

guys that get hep to themselves in Chicago are stalled by the bulls.

"Some weeks at — street station-house they have had ten to twenty suckers putting up a holler, but they never get a cent back. There ain't hardly a day passes that some chump copper don't get staked to a "fini" ($5 bill) by the boss, besides what he sends into the main guys for protection. Pretty soft for the uniformed burglars, ain't it?"

"Do you sell any other crooked stuff except watches?" I asked.

"Sure we do. Anything in the line of jewelry a John Henry or Jane asks for they get and get good," was the proud reply of Max.

"Say Max, what is your brother Sam doing these days?" I asked.

"Ten years," was the laconic reply.

"Is that so? What for?" "He was nailed for a 'lemon' game two years ago and got a ten spot in Sing Sing. Sam was the slickest lemon steerer that ever held a cue in his hand," boasted Max.

For the benefit of those who have never been "steered against the 'lemon' and for some of the many who have lost hundreds and thousands of dollars to the workers in this line of graft, which originated in Chicago about fifteen years ago, I will explain what the lemon is.

The fifteen balls in the game of pool are numbered and colored to distinguish each from the other and the No. 1 ball is always a bright yellow. Thus, from its color likeness, it is called the lemon ball.

Tom, the steerer, an expert pool player, flashily dressed, leaves his two confederates at the Fashion billiard hall and goes out to corral a sucker. Across the street is the well-known Theater Grand.

One after another he approaches likely looking men, asks for a match and says "Stranger, where is the Theater Grand? I am lost in this burg—only got in from Philly last night. What—you don't say? And me right in front of it. That sticks me for an ice cream soda. Will you have a drink or cigar on me—I don't drink myself because I have to have steady nerves in my business."

HESITATE AND YOU'RE LOST.

If the come-on will stand and listen he is lost. With rapid spiel Tom explains how he came to Chicago to play a world's champion pool artist a match and shows his card (fake name) inscribed "Champion Pool Player, management of Augustus Blank.

Halting in front of the Fashion, Tom says, "Here's a billiard hall; come in, I'll show you how to clean up a pool table. I'll pay the bill."

Inside, he says, "Here, take a cue, I don't want to attract attention by playing alone."

With prodigious ease he makes marvelous shots—pockets all the balls in championship style, while John Chicago Henry admires. Harry, the "butter-in," now saunters over to them and butts in with a polite "Do you care to make the game three-handed, gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," says Tom, winking at John Henry, "but," he adds, "we are betting $10 on the one ball. Whoever pockets the yellow ball wins $10 from each player."

"That suits me," assents genial Harry, turning to the rack to select a cue.

While his back is turned Tom whispers to J. H., "We will divide this boob's money. Here take this ten spot and pay me when I win, but drop out and let me play him alone next game."

QUICK WORK AND BIG PAY.

Tom makes the lemon ball with ease—J. H. pays him the $10 and quits. Harry displays an amazing fat roll of yellow bills while settling with Tom. In short order J. H. sees Tom win three games and Harry pay him $40 in all.

The steerer bewails to his victim the fact that he has only a few dollars with him saying, "If you can dig up a few hundred to show this mark we can take him for his whole bankroll on one game. It's like stealing the money. He can't play to keep himself warm."

With such apparently easy money in sight John's cupidity is aroused; half of Harry's roll looks good to him. "Say, can you hold him while I go and get some dough out of the bank?" he asks Tom.

"Sure, if you hurry. Get all you can to make a big flash with."

J. H. hurries away, shadowed by Phil, a third lemon worker, who never loses sight of the mark and returns at his heels to the Fashion. John has been to the bank, drawn $1,000, and the shadow so reports to the crooks. On his return J. H. finds Tom still playing with Harry and learns he has won every game and is $80 winner.

After a whispered consultation between Tom and John Henry, Tom proposes to Harry to "make the game worth while. My friend here will cover any amount you would like to bet."

With practiced art the two fellow conspirators play their parts. Harry, with the reckless abandon of a fearless gambler, throws his roll on the pool table and says, "Cover that if you can."

Coolly and confidently Tom counts to see how much is there and announces $1,100. Bill the shadower is now sitting looking on and is made stakeholder, as being a stranger to the bettors. The game is played and Harry wins by an apparently clumsy fluke, or else Tom loses by a seemingly natural accident. Five times out of ten the victim will dig up more money "to get even," and be trimmed over again.

SAYS WARFARE WILL LAST FOR CENTURY

Englishman Who Became a
German Discusses the Prospects.

Berlin, Oct. 20. (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Houston Stewart Chamberlain, who, although the son of an English admiral, has become a German, has contributed to one of the Hamburg newspapers a statement of his views on the present and future relations between England and Germany. He is convinced that the war between the two countries will last for at least a hundred years.

He does not mean, he explains, that the present fighting will continue for so long a time, but rather that an international struggle has commenced of which the world war is but a phase. "The German word 'Krieg,' observes Mr. Chamberlain, 'means much more than the English word 'war,' or the French 'guerre'; it really signifies an obstinate persistence in the endeavor to accomplish some purpose. In this sense, the war between England and Germany was long feared, and every effort was made to avert it, but in the end it was wretchedly brought about. Now we must steel ourselves for the contest will be conducted as bitterly after peace has been concluded as it is being conducted now."

The Germans will easily mend their relations with Italy and Russia, declares Chamberlain. France is likely to be a disturbing element, but he is convinced that force and sagacity will ultimately master that difficulty. "With England, however, the matter is different. For the struggle between England and Germany is no more fight for physical ascendancy. Each nation wishes to secure the ascendancy for its world-philosophy. The essential aim of the English Weltanschauung is the development of the will; the German is devoted to artistically directed knowledge and action."

The English philosophy produces energetic, able, but ignorant, undisciplined individuals, whereas the German method produces one great mental power in the individual and the obedient submission of all to one great purpose. Thus, the average Englishman is not nearly so well educated as the German, and is less given to reflection."

A situation has now arisen, the writer contends, which will continue until one nation subjugates the other, for the two cannot possibly live on the same footing near and with one another. Diplomatic agreements and courts of arbitration cannot in any way affect such a situation, for this is a war between two ideals of life, and it must be fought out, in war with firearms, and in peace with intellectual weapons.

"There is no need for hatred in this war," says Chamberlain, "and the German may properly perceive and acknowledge all the excellent things accomplished by the English method of life and thought."

"But it is impossible by any argument or proof to convince the Englishman that he and his race are not predestined to rule the earth. The only way to teach the Englishman that he is wrong is to compel him by force to recognize it. Once Germany holds the power in its hand, it can permit the English and others to follow the lead of their own minds in their own sphere. But in the meantime Germany must be strong and inflexible."

TWIN SIX PACKARD

Arrives in Fort Wayne.

New Departure in Motor Car Production.

The new Twin Six Packard has arrived in Fort Wayne and can be seen at the showroom of the Randall Auto Sales Corporation, 120 West Washington St., the temporary quarters of the Randall-Stults Co.

In external appearance the new Twin Six retains the well known hallmarks of the Packard line. They resemble their forerunners although the hood is shorter, the radiator tapered to uniformity, and the running boards are set about two inches nearer to the ground.

It is in the new Packard power plant that a startling advance in the art is at once revealed. While the entire chassis gives evidence of the continued refinement of detail, the motor offers marked improvements which are appreciated at first glance.

Notwithstanding the increased power and ability, the engine is smaller and more compact than before. The Twin Six motor, of three-inch bore and five-inch stroke, is exactly what the name implies, two six-cylinder blocks arranged in V form, with an included angle of sixty degrees. Clutch and transmission are made part of a unit power plant. In reality this design is a most logical outgrowth of the Packard Six, declared by many disinterested authorities to be the highest development of the six-cylinder art.—Advertisement.

Frank Farrell Came to His Death as Result of Unavoidable Accident.

Frank Farrell, who was killed Wednesday morning in the collapse of the scaffolding at the new storage plant building at the Fort Wayne Electric works, came to his death as the result of an "unavoidable accident," according to the verdict of Coroner Edward H. Kruse. None of the witnesses could give any reason for the collapsing of the tower, the evidence showing it was strongly and substantially built.

WABASH ISN'T THE ONLY FOOTBALL TEAMWhat's the Use of Scrapping When Pine Village is Here.

Fort Wayne football fans are getting tired of the constant and continual squabbling with Wabash. The Friars announced several months ago that Wabash would be on the boards Nov. 21, and following close on the heels of this proclamation came the noise of battle. For the Friars had staged a preliminary engagement with the Wabash management.

Then ever since that the business managers of the teams have kept up a wrangling, the end of which is not yet in sight, and which simply slides from one matter to another. Last night it assumed the proportions of a deadlock, when the matter of a suitable official was brought up.

Now, lookie here, Friars. Lay away from Wabash if necessary, but for the love of Peter quit wrangling. Wabash has a certain epistolical viewpoint that it will be impossible to break away from in a hundred years. It is the town's chief characteristic. Wabash feels that the world belongs at its feet in business and social activity and in sports. Its whole attitude is one of arrogance and its people have fostered this idea for years.

It would do Wabash good if the Friars simply would cancel the Wabash game for the 21st and fill in with some other corking good team, and then get a special date with Pine Village. It was Pine Village that defeated Wabash, and it would make a nice good scrap. Wabash would like to play Fort Wayne, but if the local management would cut the W. A. A. off its calendar for a year no one in the world would object.

ANN ARBOR COMING
WITH GREAT ELEVENExperts Call Independents Michigan's Fastest Team.

The Ann Arbor independents, who play here next Sunday, are considered by many the famous Carleton player, the fastest team in Michigan and one of the fastest in the country. He says they play a better brand of football than either the Detroit Herald or the Mac Park Maroons of Detroit. When it is realized that these teams are the ones that have been giving Canton, Massillon and other central Ohio towns a taste of defeat, it will be seen that Ann Arbor will show the locals some regular football.

Zarig, who has played with Indiana university, for the past three seasons without missing a game, will be a Friar tackle, and Cheeky is getting into shape to work in old time form by Sunday.

DE ORO, PAST 50, AFTER TITLE

(By Brown Holmes.)
Alfred De Oro, past 50, thinks his eye is still keen enough and his hand steady enough for him to win back the three-cushion billiard championship.

The title was forfeited by William Huey, who said being champion took too much time from his engraving business, and will go to the winner of a match Dec. 2, 3 and 4 between De Oro and August Kleckhefer, of Chicago.

De Oro has been pushing the ivories over the green cloth thirty-five years. For eighteen consecutive years he was pool champion of the world. That's longer than any other man ever held a title in any other line. The nearest to that record is Frank Kramer, bicycle champion fifteen years.

De Oro was born in Cuba. He came to the United States when ten to go to school. When he returned to Cuba on a vacation trip he and his brother started for church one Sunday morning, but stopped at a pool hall. De Oro's brother taught him to handle the cue and he has been at it ever since.

At the time of the Spanish-American war De Oro was quite wealthy. He lost nearly all his money and went to playing pool to earn a living for himself and family.

The Cuban took part in a professional pool tourney for the first time in 1887. He won the title in 1889. In 1890 he was beaten by Al Powers, but won back the title and was unbeaten in eighteen years. Henry Allen, of Kansas City, a much younger player, took the title from him.

De Oro did not break into three-cushion billiards until 1904. Four years later he won the championship. Since then he has won it and lost it several times.

In his match with Kleckhefer he will play with two favorite cues. He has used one of them thirty-one years, the other twenty-four.

ST. MARY'S WIN.

"We have met the enemy and we are theirs," remarked the Exenda basketballers from St. John's. Reformed church following a clash with the St. Mary's troups last night. The score was 18 and 8.

Dorothy, who is 13, but who appears to be 17, even when attired in her school tracks, ran away from her home at 275 River road, Passaic, N. J. She never wanted to go to school and she was particularly fond of the literature of desperadoes that thrills boys of her age.

Caddies on the Yountakah Country club's links at Delawanna, saw her emerge from the woods Tuesday. At first they believed she was a tramp, but when they observed her girlish walk they knew that she was Dorothy Wallace, the missing girl, whose description had been sent broadcast.

These caddies started toward her and she darted into the woods. They notified her mother, the wife of an engineer of construction on the Passaic Valley Trunk sewer, and Mrs. Wallace hurried to the links. With others she entered the woods and soon saw fleeting glimpses of the girl as she darted about. They called to her and tried to overtake her, but she was too swift for them and disappeared in the dense woods.

They found a cave in which the child had slept on a bed of autumn leaves several nights, remnants of lunches, begged or "acquired" from neighboring farmhouses, and the dress she had worn when she left school.

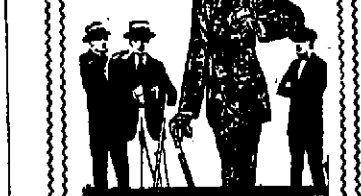

In the cave were found pieces of paper on which appeared in Dorothy's writing: "I am 'Billy Dalton,' bandit leader of the Ozarks," "Billy Dalton" and "William John Dalton."

The mother wept when she found the two long braids of chestnut hair which Dorothy had clipped off. Her hair had been admired by all who knew her.

The police sent men through the woods about Delawanna, all with lanterns, and it was said the search would be continued until she was found.

The regular drill of company E will be held Friday evening at the armory on West Berry street.

LES DARCY LOOKS LIKE COMING CHAMP

The next heavyweight ring champion is liable to come from Australia, the country that produced one heavy champion—Bob Fitzsimmons, and other good fighters. The prospect is Les Darcy, the youngster who knocked all the stars of Australia cold, then started Fitzsimmons by knocking out Eddie McGoorty and followed with a victory over Jimmy Clabby.

First Darcy was heard of as a lightweight. In a short time he was a middleweight. He is growing so rapidly it is said his career in the middle division, although short, is about at an end. According to reports he can no longer make the middleweight limit and retain all his steam.

Darcy is only 19 and it is hard to tell where he will stop in the matter of weight. It is predicted that he will be a heavyweight even before fans of the United States get a chance to see him perform.

There is no heavyweight in sight right now who seems to have a chance to beat Jess Willard. But Darcy, at the gait he is going in the ring and by rate he is growing, looks like the fellow who, before much time has passed, will be a real match for the present champion.

New York, Nov. 12.—Assuming the name of "Bill Dalton, Bandit Chief of the Ozarks," Dorothy Wallace, runaway school girl, is hiding in the woods near Delawanna, N. J. She has cut off her long chestnut braids and is wearing a tramps' clothes. Perhaps she thinks she looks like the desperate robber whose role she has assumed, but those who have caught a glimpse of her say that her girlish figure and actions betray her.

Dorothy, who is 13, but who appears to be 17, even when attired in her school tracks, ran away from her home at 275 River road, Passaic, N. J. She never wanted to go to school and she was particularly fond of the literature of desperadoes that thrills boys of her age.

MAY TAX PROFITS ON MUNITIONS OF WAR

Question is Certain to Be Brought Up at Coming Congress.

By Gilson Gardner.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Why not tax the profits of war munitions manufacture? This question will be insistently asked during the coming session of congress. The taxation question must be settled even before the military preparedness program can be logically taken up. The failure of the income tax law due to its secret provisions and the fact that most of the rich men dodge it, has made the revenue situation even more acute. It has aroused talk of inheritance taxes and even brought to the front advocates of the tax on unearned land values.

But nothing is more obvious than the logic of the proposal to tax the huge profits which are now accruing from the manufacture of war materials. The vast increase in this industry is hinted at in a few figures available on our exports. For example, it appears from the government returns that the value of cartridges exported during August, 1914, (the first month of the European war), was $154,090, while in August, 1915, it was $2,284,540. The same jump is found to apply to gunpowder, other explosives and firearms. For instance, the exports of gunpowder in August, 1914, were $16,821, and in August, 1915, they reached the figure of $5,206,118. Other explosives exported in August, 1914, were valued at $20,330, and in August, 1915, they reached a total value of $6,967,048. The month before was even larger—$9,329,303. In August, 1914, the exports of firearms was valued at $208,641. By January, 1915, this had jumped to $2,156,737.

Since August, 1914, we have exported cartridges to the total amount of $23,114,711; gunpowder valued at $14,932,801; other explosives, $34,001,929, and firearms to amount of $11,800,093. To tax these articles would be much simpler than reaching incomes, since they all have to clear at customs ports and appear in ship's papers.

How engrossing the subject of matrimony may be to a president of the United States is indicated by the fact that there have been no cabinet meetings since the Arabic was sunk, nor any meetings with the newspaper correspondents since the president returned from Harlakenden house. The "pitiless publicity" is now mostly handed out by Secretary Tumulty. And one member of the cabinet, remarked recently that if things went on as they are going he would have to have an introduction to the president the next time he met him.

Literally thousands of requests to congressmen and the superintendent of documents have been made asking for the Walsh Industrial Relations Commission report. Congressmen are now talking of printing a supply to be sold by the superintendent of documents. This would meet the situation at all. The people who want and need this report are not able to pay for a high-priced document such as this might be made if all the parts were printed. What is needed is a large supply of the separate reports at the disposal of senators and representatives to supply free on request of their constituents. Constituents who want to get copies of this document will do well to hurry in a request to their congressmen.

"The outstanding feature of the business situation in October," says the monthly bulletin of one of New York's biggest banks, "has been the fact that all trade has been unmistakably better. We expressed the opinion two months ago that as the season for fall trade came on the country would swing into a broad, general state of activity and that expectation has been realized. Every part of the country now sends good reports and the contrast they make with the conditions of a year ago is calculated to inspire the most profound sentiments of relief, satisfaction and gratitude."

The bulletin goes on in this strain, giving much detail for several thousand words. Even the report of the federal reserve board confirms the general story of prosperity and adds that it has reached the San Francisco banks and the Pacific coast generally. The west has been slowest to feel the effects of business revival, the bulletin says, but it now does feel it.

It will be an important political departure if President Wilson undertakes to pass his military preparedness program with republican and progressive help. And it appears that this is the only way in which he can get it through. The opposition is in his own party. Claude Kitchin, majority house leader, is still unrepentant and there will be a Bryan following which will voice a continued and vociferous protest. Wilson has hitherto secured legislation by strictly party action; he has relied on party organization and the secret caucus. The only exception to this rule was when he signalled across the party line, asking help from Senators Clapp, Norris, Kenyon and Cummins on his ship-purchase bill. The effort in the latter case was not entirely a success. The progressives felt that he had waited too long before hailing his "forward-looking" brethren on the other side of the party line. Much interest is felt in the working out of this new experiment.

A railroad, about 600 miles long, has just been completed which will serve the richest mining and agricultural regions of Siberia.

"House of David" Aide Loses in Mrs. Holliday's Slander Suit.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Nov. 12.—"Prince Coy" Farnell, heir apparent of "King Benjamin" of the House of David, was found guilty in the circuit court last night of slander as charged by Augusta Holliday.

The jury disagreed for hours and once asked to be discharged. Damages of 5 cents and costs were recommended.

Mrs. Holliday, who told sensational stories of marriage customs as practiced by the cult, had sued for $25,000 after "Prince Coy" had accused her and her sister, Lena MacFarlane, of perjury in the expose.

In his charge to the jury Judge Weist left only two major points for jurors to determine. The first was whether it is a tenet of the colony that intimate relationship between husband and wife is sinful, and the second whether malicious intent was indicated in Coy Farnell's published article accusing Mrs. Holliday of perjury.

Mrs. Holliday was her own last witness. She was called to the stand for cross-examination just before the attorneys began their closing addresses.

Before a crowd that jammed the courtroom to suffocation the girl told her story. It was a recital of the life in the "inner court" of Shiloh, "King Benjamin's" headquarters. Benjamin was pictured by Mrs. Holliday as a "donauber of young girls, operating under the cloak of religion."

Mrs. Holliday and her sister, Mrs. Lena MacFarlane, withdrew from the colony more than a year ago. Both signed affidavits at that time alleging that conditions of immorality were so bad among the women were guilty of perjury in their statements. Each immediately filed suit for $25,000 against the heir apparent.

Rumors were renewed last night that "King Benjamin" and his "pillars," angered by what they termed a "persecution" of their sect, would at once dispose of all their holdings in Berrien county, consisting of hundreds of acres of valuable fruit land, and move the colony to California.

From now until the holidays we will sell a one dollar shape Four-in-Hand Tie for 50c. We will receive a shipment every week.

PART OF PLUM CROP HAS NOT YET FALLEN

Some Likely Postoffice Fruit in Indiana is Still on Trees.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The postoffice department is not addicted to levity or irony, as a general thing, but a statement it has given out, is like salt rubbed into the lacrimate feelings of politicians who have failed to get jobs under the Wilson administration, as well as those who disapprove of the president's civil service ideas. The statement might well be labeled "The Politician's Tale of Woe," but the caption over it shows that it is a list of "first, second and third class postoffices where presidential postmasters have not been appointed since March 4, 1912." The period covered takes in all the time since the present administration went into power.

The list covers eight and a third long, single-spaced, typewritten sheets, and it reveals the fact that there are about 1,500 presidential postoffices where changes of postmasters have not been made under the present administration. In Indiana there are thirty-nine presidential postmasters who have not been disturbed. They are the postmasters at the following cities and towns: Anderson, Argos, Batesville, Berne, Browns-town, Cayuga, Chubbuck, Clay City, Crawfordsville, Elwood, Fremont, Garrett, Greentown, Hamlet, Hebron, Kendallville, Kirklin, Knox, Kramer, La-Grange, Lynn, Marengo, Milan, Montezuma, Monticello, Muncie, New Carlisle, North Liberty, Orleans, Owensville, Oxford, Roskohe, Rosedale, Royal Center, Valparaiso, Walkerton, Westfield, West Lebanon and Wifona Lake.

WOMAN IS BURNED TO DEATH.

Exploding Oil Can Costs Life of Mrs. Vesta Foster at Brookston.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Vesta Foster, 31, of Brookston, fourteen miles north of here, was burned to death at her home last night when a two-gallon oil can exploded and burning oil was thrown over her clothing. She was nursing the oil from the can onto some live coals in a heating stove when it exploded. Three children who were in the room with her rushed from the house and escaped injury. The house took fire but the flames were extinguished by the volunteer fire department.

"THEOLOGICAL TEA" IS THE LATEST FAD

More Theology in Feeding Than in Sending Them Away Hungry.

Boston, Nov. 12.—Drinking tea after the evening services in many Boston churches is the new fad. It is called by the ministers "Theological Tea."

This custom has now been adopted by the Central Congregational church, Newbury street; Emanuel church, Trinity church, First Baptist church, Commonwealth avenue, Meeting House Hill and many others.

At Trinity House a supper is served to all thinking of attending the meetings there.

The ladies of the Central Congregational church will serve tea in the chapel every Tuesday at 4:30 p. m., from November until May.

The Rev. Kelley Jenness, pastor of the Tremont street M. E. church, serves chocolate after his evening service, as he gets more young people to drink chocolate than tea.

"We get to be very sociable over the chocolate pot," he says. "You will find people more happy after they've something to eat. There is more real theology in giving people something to eat than in sending them away hungry."

ATTEMPT AT RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

Several States Are Trying Experiment of Laws on the Situation.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The matter of unemployment received attention in several states during the legislative sessions of the current year, resulting in the adoption of measures for relief of more or less extensive nature. The California legislature adopted a resolution requesting an investigation by the congress of the United States and the adoption of such remedial measures as might be thought necessary and proper.

The legislature of Illinois provided for a state commission on the subject, while in Idaho the state law prohibits the employment of alien labor on public works, and submitting to the public the proposition that a similar rule should control in favor of citizen labor on federal undertakings within the state.

The formation of associations of certain employees on steam and electric railways for the purpose of providing a co-operative fund from which unemployment benefits should be paid was provided for by a Michigan statute. Legislation in Massachusetts.

Of a more direct nature is legislation by the legislature of Massachusetts authorizing the employment of needy persons by the Metropolitan park commission in labor on parkways, boulevards, parks and reservations, also by the state forester, while in New Jersey the common council or other body in charge of the departments of municipalities employing unskilled labor are authorized to select "from the needy poor of such city or other municipality" residents for the purpose of such public work as may be assigned to them.

The most elaborate provision is that of the Idaho statute, which the press has called a "right to work" law, which authorized and requires county commissioners to provide emergency employment for any person who is a citizen of the United States and has been for an interrupted period of not less than six months a resident of the state of Idaho. The work is to be done on public highways or such other work as may be determined on. Applicants must be residents of the county for more than thirty days preceding the application, must show that they are unable to obtain other employment, and that they do not possess property of a total value of more than $1,000. A statement of the number of dependents, if any, must be given; also as to the amount of any emergency employment had during the twelve months last past.

May Be Suspended.
One applying for work must also agree to do with reasonable diligence and efficiency the work assigned, and a failure or refusal to perform such work is regarded as an offense for which one may be suspended for a period of one week in the first instance and for a second offense be disqualified for receiving the benefit of emergency employment for a period of one year. No person may receive more than sixty days' employment within a year and such applicant must be identified and vouchered for by some free-holder in the county where the application is made. Payments on vouchers issued by the auditor of the county and a record kept of names and amounts, and on a certificate to the state auditor of the total sum expended in this behalf, 50 per cent. of this sum shall be remitted to the county by deducting it from the sum of the general taxes collected by the state.

TO CLEAN THE PORES OF ALL IMPURITIES
The only way to get the impurities out of the pores of the skin is to use a milk massage cream. This can easily be made at home by adding to a half pint of fresh skimmed milk two ounces of powdered bryal crystal, which you can get from any druggist. Massaging this into the skin loosens and gathers all the dust, dirt, grease and poisons that accumulate in the pores and by massaging gently for a few minutes the cream will roll out, bringing all these poisons and impurities with it, leaving the skin soft and clear.
This treatment produces the same effect on the skin as the famous milk baths of the Ancient Beauties. The above formula will make enough to last you several months. Advertisement.

new $200,000 home office, the only woman's building of its kind in the world. It will accommodate the clerical business for the largest fraternal benefit society in the world for women. These honors have come to Miss West, after years of hard work, and on October 22, the cornerstone was laid with great ceremony in her home city, Port Huron, Mich. The local business men took the matter out of Miss West's hands, and the mayor declared a holiday on that date, so that the city might pay honor to its "First citizen."

Miss West is a woman who does things. She began her work on October 1, 1892, with no members and no funds. Today there are nearly 186,000 women enrolled in membership and the reserve fund of the society reaches nearly the nine million mark. She has signed away with her own hand nearly thirteen millions of dollars in benefits.

RARE BIRD IS FOUND.

South American Quail is Captured in Indiana.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 12. James Hanner, Jr., while on the road between this place and Rosedale, was surprised when a bird nearly as large as a bantam hen dropped into his automobile. The bird has been classified as a South American quail, and various theories are advanced as to how it happened to be flying so low in this latitude. Its color is bronze blue, with white about the head and tail. It has long, slender toes with membranes along the sides. It coos similar to a dove.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DANIEL IN THE KING'S COURT.

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 1:1-16, 19, 20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong
—I Cor. 16:13.

This familiar story has been selected for the "World's Temperance Sunday"—it is the first record of his Babylonian experiences and is an illustrious example of those everlasting principles which govern a successful life.

I. Daniel's Position, vv. 1-7. Nebuchadnezzar, on the death of his father, returned to Babylon from besieging Jerusalem to take the throne. He carried with him Jeholakim and a number of young men, "in whom was no blemish" (14). They were perhaps twelve years old. Among these were four who had been particularly selected for pious training and the name of each is compounded with the name of God; Daniel's meaning—"God is my judge." They are now alone in a licentious heathen palace and absolutely at the power of the king and his court. Their names are now changed; Daniel becomes Belteshazzar—"favored of Bel." Such changing of names is customary in most heathen or Mohammedan lands even today. A still greater danger or temptation confronts these young men, viz., that the king appointed them "a daily portion of the king's meat" (Am. Rev. v. 5). To refuse to eat invited ridicule and perhaps loss of life, but to eat was to break the Jewish law as to food (Deut. 12:23-25). See also (I Cor. 8:7-10; 10:27-28). Their captivity had been foretold (II Kings 20:17), but a change of location and name does not involve a change of heart as many a tempted one has discovered. These men in spite of natural appetites, danger of being thought peculiar, or even gratitude to king for lives preserved refused to eat the king's meat and to drink his wine.

II. Daniel's Purpose, 18:13. The real purpose of a man's heart not alone governs his acts but reveals what he is—God looks upon that when he judges men (II Cor. 8:7; 8:12; Luke 16:15). "Without will (purpose) there is no character" (Acts 11:23). Daniel purposed "in his heart" not to defile "himself." No compromise, no trimming because of being away from home, no partnership with the rich and opulent court. Daniel was to be "as clean as a hound's tooth." Men who dare to stand alone always find co-operation, so Daniel found those who stood by him (v. 12). Daniel exercised great tact in his dealings with the prince of the eunuchs but God had evidenced his protecting and leading care (v. 9) enabling him to win his way and persuade the eunuch to allow the suggested test (v. 12). If Christian workers would exercise more tact they would more frequently attain their desired ends (Luke 16:8). It is possible to be so unbendingly puritanical as to lay us open to a charge of pharisaical pride. Daniel illustrates spotless purity, inflexible loyalty mingled with a sweet reasonableness that always gains its ends. Daniel had sufficient confidence in his God and faith in his actions to be willing to be submitted to the acid test of experience. His was a religion that could stand without being tied.

III. Daniel's Profit (Reward), vv. 14-21. Pulse denotes such vegetables as beans and peas. Their diet was to be a general vegetable one. Samson as a Nazarite drank no wine. This age has yet to fully comprehend the reasonableness and efficacy of those ancient Jewish laws of sanitation and diet. Myriads of men are today digging their graves with their teeth. The result of this test was that Daniel and his companions were delivered from transgressing God's laws and the prince of the eunuchs from being punished because of the physical condition of his charges. Beauty, health, and strength came to Daniel and his friends with the result of pretemper, position, and influence at court (v. 19). They "stood before the king." (Rom. 14:10-12; I Cor. 3:10-15; II Cor. 5:9); (a) because of their unswerving loyalty to God and obedience to his Word (John 14:15; 16:26 R. V.); (b) because of their life of prayer, for it is the work of the Holy Spirit to give unto us wisdom (Luke 2:15; Acts 6:10) even as Daniel was thus blessed (v. 17) the spirit bestows diverse gifts (I Cor. 12:1-14:11); (c) and finally because having a special place in the purposes and plans of God their lives were counted precious in his sight (v. 27). Verily, "He that doeth the will of God abideth forever."

Temperance Application.—This lesson suggests the value of total abstinence.

"No user of tobacco has ever taken first honor at Harvard."—Longfellow.

Temperance and self-control must begin in the home and be perpetuated in the strength and power of God which alone comes through an intelligent knowledge and obedience of his Word. There is no way to win success except by means of a complete victory; to compromise is to fail. The loyalty of such is not earth born and their victories are superhuman.

MAKE A PROTEST; THEN RING IT UP PROPERLY

Diplomatic Record Must Be Kept Straight on Such Matters.

By Gilson Gardner.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Having protested vigorously—or vigorously protested—against the latest outrage committed by Great Britain on American commerce, and having rung it up on the protest register, our state department is prepared to deal vigorously with the next offender. The diplomatic record must be kept straight on matters of this sort.

Three prohibition votes have been added to the house of representatives by the elections of November 2. Five congressional vacancies were filled in that election, three in New York state. The prohibitionists made an issue in the case of the New York candidates and all three stand pledged to the constitutional remedy against liquor. In the election of William S. Bennett, whose margin was narrow, his success was undoubtedly due to the support of the Anti-saloon league. Of New York's forty-three members, only three voted last winter for submitting the prohibition amendment. These three will now be reinforced by three more and possibly by others who have begun to see the oncoming of the prohibition movement.

During the month of September, horses were exported from the United States to the value of $8,032,467, and mules to the value of $1,968,195. A new export was added—seeds—the value of $148,414. Usually the United States is a buyer of seeds from foreign markets. The total exports for September were $300,000,000, as compared with $150,000,000 for September, 1914. The total exports for the nine months ending in September were $2,532,485,167, as compared with $1,467,401,889 for the nine months period of 1914.

The factory fire in New York, where a dozen employees were burned to death, is given a national significance by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the industrial relations committee, who was asked what he thought about the fire. "The base of such crimes," said Mr. Walsh, "is economic. The employer gets a faulty building cheaper than a good one, and the workers must pay the awful toll in death and suffering. Greed is at the bottom of it, of course."

"The inquiries of the commissioners of industrial relations showed beyond dispute that approximately 35,000 lives are lost in American industry every year and that 700,000 workers are seriously injured, who do not immediately die. Among these 700,000 are the armless, the legless, the blind and those suffering from injuries which mean a lingering death. Researches of the government definitely show that the accidents which bring about this dread (loss of life and limb, and the pain and misery incident to it, are what are termed preventable accidents; that is, accidents which would not occur were the ordinary common precautions for safety taken."

Rear Admiral Strauss Tells of New 14-Inch Guns in U. S. Navy.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Battleships now building for the United States navy will carry 14-inch, fifty caliber, guns, which are believed by ordnance experts to be the equal of the 15-inch weapons in foreign navies, although of lighter weight. In his annual report, Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, chief of the navy ordnance bureau, says:

"With the object of keeping pace with the increased range of modern naval warfare, the bureau has increased the power of the 14-inch guns for the California, Mississippi, and Idaho, by increasing the length of the gun to 50 calibers and enlarging its chamber capacity. In order that these latest additions to the navy should carry the highest type of artillery, the bureau took the bold step of ordering their guns without manufacturing a trial gun. The bureau's confidence in its design has been fully justified. The first gun proved not only gave the designed velocity and pressure exactly, but its additional longitudinal strength which has been provided for, has resulted in these guns having less droop than any guns of large caliber heretofore produced. As it stands, these guns, although of lesser caliber and weight than the 15-inch guns now mounted abroad, are capable of penetrating the heaviest side armor at oblique impacts and at the greatest effective battle range, and give us the advantage of flatter trajectory, with greater volume of fire due to the increased number that we are permitted to mount on any ship of equal displacement."

"In August, 1914, a type 16-inch gun of 45 calibers length was tested. This gun fulfilled the highest expectations of its design, and the bureau believes it to be as powerful a gun as in existence today."

The report shows that the navy's armament had been kept well up to date. Older type 5-inch guns having been replaced on all ships of the first line; that anti-aircraft rifles of sizes up to 4-inch rifles have been designed, and that mounts for the disappearing guns for submarines have been built. The latter weapons will be given an increased elevation so that they may fire at aeroplanes.

Difficulty has been encountered in placing contracts for a sufficient number of the new armor piercing projectiles for big guns now being used by the navy. The rise in price due to the war is indicated by the fact that projectiles were purchased in 1913 at $320 each, while those contracted for in 1915 cost $415. Part of the increased cost, however, is due to the new design. Satisfactory 8-inch projectiles have been produced at the naval gun factory and larger shells are now being made there.

As to the value of armor piercing shells, the report says experiments during the year have strengthened the view that missiles of this type, but carrying high explosive in limited quantities, are superior to high explosive shells that depend wholly upon the force of an outside explosion to accomplish their mission. A French official report is quoted to show that plain shells carrying high explosive in large quantities were "absolutely powerless" against armor of any importance.

The Indiana Head powder factory turned out 700,000 pounds above its 1914 output last year, as a result of improved methods, and with increases authorized by congress, is expected to make 5,000,000 pounds in 1916 and 6,000,000 in 1917, the report states. In the connection the report adds:

"Owing to the increase in the output of the Indian head powder factory, contracts for private manufacture of

BE CAREFUL, MR. HENRY; THEY'VE GOT THEIR EYES ON YOU.

ROBERT LEE HENRY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—Robert Lee Henry, of Texas, sir, is not a lady's man. Everybody in Waco will tell you that.

To Congressman Henry, those of the fair and busy sex who dwell without his family circle are creatures of only the vaguest interest.

And yet—

This serious leader of political affairs has had wished upon him the concentrated attention of 100,000 women for the next five months.

The "concentrated attention" is designed to win prosaic ballots rather than to lure bouquets or billet doux.

Congressman Henry be it known, is chairman of the committee on rules in the house of representatives. When the Susan B. Anthony suffrage amendment is brought before the next congress it will be referred finally to the rules committee, and the chairman will hold the fate of woman suffrage in the hollow of his hand.

"What chance," asked Mrs. McMill McCormick, "has a congressman when 100,000 women concentrate their attention upon him for five months?"

And from Congressman Henry's bailiwick one seems to hear the echo: "What chance?"

Earl Smith Arrested for Terrible Abuse of Little Girl.

Earl Smith, 330 East Creighton avenue, a locomotive engineer on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, was arraigned in the city court, Friday morning, on a charge of cruelty to his 11-year-old daughter, Opal Smith. The case was continued until Monday for hearing and Smith furnished $200 bond for his appearance. The charges were filed by humane officer William M. Clutter, to whom and to Chief of Police Charles Lenz and Deputy Prosecutor S. A. Callahan Smith has admitted the truth of shocking accusations.

The details of the charges are in some respects revolting. Smith admits that in an attempt to break the little girl of a very common infirmity of childhood, he compelled her to submit to a shocking and filthy treatment that cannot be described in this newspaper. He also is charged with beating her cruelly and has admitted that he purchased a rawhide whip with which to flog her. Neighbors complained to humane officer Clutter of the treatment to which she is subjected at home and an investigation led to a bright little girl of quiet demeanor and womanly manners. She is kept from school and upon her falls the far greater burden of the household duties in the Smith home. Her stepmother is infirm and the child is compelled to live the life of a domestic slave. Smith had been warned to place the child in school, but had failed to do so.

Friend of a King Tramps Streets in White for Fame

Lieut. Percy Richards.

In an effort to "get known" as that he may secure an engagement as a singer, Lieut. Percy Richards, of the Swedish army and a friend of Sweden's king, has walked 4,300 miles of New York's streets bareheaded and clothed only in a white silk shirt, white trousers, white socks and white shoes. Richards, whose voice won him fame in his native country, has visited every inn, restaurant and theatrical manager in New York. "They say I'm not known. Well, I'll make myself known," he says.

smokeless powder have been greatly reduced, and at the present time there is only one contract outstanding, amounting to 700,000 pounds, with the Carneys Point plant of the du Pont Co.

The facilities for the production of smokeless powder and other explosives in the United States have been enormously increased, owing to the demands of the belligerents for these materials. It has taken many months of time and enormous expenditures of money to develop these facilities, and there conservation for the benefit of the United States government will require the most careful consideration of the department when the European war is over and the present demand from abroad has ceased.

"Great strides in development of the mine planting equipment of the fleet in the last few months are recorded in the report. It says:

"The Dubuque has been fitted out as a mine layer and mine instruction ship. Six old torpedo vessels are being equipped for sweeping. A mining division has been formed in the fleet. All capital ships are being provided with sweeping nets. All destroyers are being fitted for sweeping. A mine sweeping manual has been prepared and submitted to the fleet for comment.

"A list of steam fishing vessels of over 100 tons has been prepared and their owners communicated with, and arrangements have been made for their inspection with a view to their utilization as mine sweepers in time of war. These vessels are now being inspected. Recommendations have been made and approved that six gunboats be fitted for mine sweeping. Portable mine laying tracks have been ordered for one division of destroyers. The equipment of these tracks are to be carried in the destroyers when necessity arises. Mine laying track have been authorized for 11 vessels of the cruiser class. During the summer extensive exercises have been conducted in mine laying and sweeping in the fleet, and in general it may be said that the whole subject has been made active and progressive."

Progress has been made during the year toward gathering smaller navy guns at various yards in reserve for use on merchantmen in time of war, and instructions have been issued to provide for quick mobilization of weapons hoarded to the naval militia should need arise.

MAY SOON CONTROL ENTIRE FOOD SUPPLY

German Government Would Insure an Equitable Distribution.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Virtually the entire food supply of the nation is expected soon to pass under government control to insure an equitable distribution of supplies at fair prices among the entire population, rich and poor. Coffee, tea and cocoa were added to the list of products whose sale will be regulated by the state. The federal council authorized the chancellor to issue regulations covering trade in them.

The chancellor also was authorized to establish maximum prices for buckwheat and millet, marmalades and honey, vegetables, fruits and sauerkraut. These prices apply to producers. Local authorities in municipalities of more than 10,000 population are required to fix maximum prices for retailers in these supplies. The authorities in smaller places are empowered to take similar action if they see fit. The chancellor is given authority to set a high limit above which prices may not go.

Bread, potatoes, pork, milk and butter already have been subjected to a maximum price schedule. The consumption of other meats is regulated and limited by so-called "meatless days." Maximum prices for all varieties of meat and fish are believed to be in sight.
